Who Rules Congress?

John D., Jr., Sees a King.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

ON THE former kaiser's seventieth birthday, King George sent congratulations to the son of Queen Victoria's daughter.

Ten years ago the British prime minister was promising to hang the kaiser.

BUT you don't hang your own cousin, and a hanging would not look well in the royal family records.

THE vote in the House will decide, subject to President Coolidge's veto, the spending of $24,000,000 extra on prohibition.

More important to wets and drys, that vote will measure the dry forces' power i Congress.

Congress has obeyed dry orders for about nine years and will probably continue obeying. Congressmen know that if they vote dry the wets will forget about it. But if they vote wet the drys will never forgive them. So they vote dry while many live wet.

MR. WAGNER, who turned Texas oil into money, owns a race horse named Vermajo that will race at Tia Juana in two important races, and is nominated for the Louisiana Derby at New Orleans four days later.

FROM Tia Juana to New Orleans the horse will travel by airplane, no other transportation being fast enough. This demonstrates that it will be necessary to find for race track gambling some better excuse than "improving the speed of horses." The fastest horse is slow compared with a little runabout.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, Jr., called on Egypt's King, Fuad, yesterday. When the Ptolemys were on the throne, and Anthony ran away with Cleopatra for the sake of her gold, a visitor would have crawled to the throne on his hands and knees. That's changed.

NOW a simple visitor from over the ocean, calling on a king, whose ancestors were the richest in the world, could buy that king and not miss the money.

Moral: Invest in America.

BALTIMORE prohibition enforcement is looking for the speakeasy in which three high school girls got whisky that caused them to appear drunk in classes and cause an uproar. Speakeasies near public schools are patronized by students during recess. Empty bottles are found in rest rooms.

Baltimore is no exception among cities. That sort of prohibition needs improvement.

OGDEN MILLS, past 70, dangerously ill of pneumonia, gained strength and hope of recovery—thanks to two blood transfusions, but it failed to save him.

Not all doctors realize the important part that blood transfusion is to play in medicine. Transfusion, once used as a last resort, and usually too late, is resorted to promptly by doctors that understand its value.

IT DOES for a worn-out body what recharging does for an exhausted electric battery.

Credit is due to Dr. Henry Abelmann, of Chicago, who has done more than any other to establish the value of modern blood transfusion, having performed more than 2,000 such transfusions.

LAST night President Coolidge made his farewell talk on government expenses.

Cabinet officers, federal employes paying out public money, heard the President's last admonitions on the importance of economy.

This country should be grateful to an economical President, coming in at a time when billions had been squandered, and many might have continued the squandering.

MANY have asked, "What IS courage?" There is no doubt about Capt. George Fried's courage, or that of his crew, picking up passengers in mid-ocean.

AS FINE as his courage is Capt. Fried's seamanship. Guided by appeals for help, from an invisible source, he found his way through the storm to the ship in distress. He told his men he hoped to reach the ship by 6 o'clock. He was alongside at 10 minutes past 6. Courage AND ability, fine combination.

IN NEW YORK a man set four dogs against a miserable cat that walked into his furnace cellar, seeking warmth. The cat was killed, the man went to jail for six months—a just sentence.

What should be the sentence of a man making money by exploiting child labor? When did you hear of such a man going to jail?

NEW YORK CITY'S new police commissioner, Grover Whalen, intends to apply traffic laws to pedestrians—excellent idea.

It will facilitate traffic, and eventually diminish automobile casualties.

IT IS necessary for children and adults to realize that a modern highway is as dangerous as a railroad track, even more dangerous, since "cars" are not compelled to remain on any track, and turn sharp corners.

Regulation of foot traffic means education.

AL SMITH CALLS ON HOOVER

International News Service.

MIAMI BEACH, Jan. 29.—Wearing his famous brown derby of campaign days, a cigar cocked jauntily at an angle and at perfect ease, Gov. Al Smith went calling today on President-elect Herbert Hoover.

He was graciously received at the Hoover retreat on Belle Isle and for 25 minutes the victor and the vanquished in the most memorable campaign the country ever saw, sat in the sun parlor of the Hoover home and chatted.

The Governor congratulated Mr. Hoover on his election.

CONGRATULATES HOOVER

"I congratulated him, wished him luck, and I meant it," said "Al" when he emerged from the Hoover home.

"What did you talk about otherwise?" the Governor was asked.

"Oh, we had a general talk," Smith replied. "He told me some of the funny things that happened during the campaign, and I told him some."

It was a few minute before 11 o'clock when "Al" rolled up to Belle Isle in a big blue Rolls Royce which has been loaned to him during his stay here by Joseph M. Smoot, president of the Miami Jockey Club. He was accompanied only by his vacation friends, John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and William F. Kenney, of New York.

MISSES BREAKFAST

Gov. Smith had not had his breakfast. Always a late riser, he arose this morning with just time to keep his date with Mr. Hoover at 11 o'clock. There wasn't time for breakfast. He wore a morning coat

MELLON PLANS SPLIT HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(INS.)—A 45-minute row in the House over the Senate proposal to give Secretary of the Treasury Mellon an unwanted $24,000,000 for prohibition enforcement and curb his tax refund powers was broken up this afternoon when leaders forced an adjournment until tomorrow by a vote of 195 to 93.

During the debate, both sides were engaged in manuvering for a perliamentary advantage. Adjournment left matters in a chaotic state.

The vote, so far as a hasty checkup indicated, revealed little in the way the House will finally vote on the proposals.

Efforts of the Anti-Saloon League to crack a whip over the heads of Republican members of the Pennsylvania congressional group in connection with the prohibition enforcement fund increase met a sharp challenge yesterday from Senator David A. Reed, of Pittsburgh.

After learning that every member of the State delegation had received a letter from F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the league, urging their support of the enforcement fund, Senator Reed delivered a personal appeal that Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, of Pittsbugh, be upheld in his opposition to the measure.

Lady Heath Seeks U. S. Citizenship

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Lady Heath, British flier, former holder of altitude and time records for women, procured her first papers at the Naturalization Bureau today. She said she intended to devote herself to the upbuilding of aviation as a science and a profession among American women.

Bottle Note May Tell Grayson Plane's Fate

SALSM, Mass., Jan. 29.—(INS.)—"1928. We are freezing. Gas leaked out. We are drifting off Grand banks.—Grayson."

This note scribbled on a piece of memorandum paper and found inside a small extract bottle was picked up in Salem harbor, it became known today.

At first, because of the date, the note was thought to be a hoax but examination of the handwriting by friends showed that it resembled that of Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson, whose ill-fated airplane Dawn disappeared after leaving New York, December 23, 1927. The plane carried Mrs. Grayson, Brice Goldsborough, Lieut. Oscar Omdal and Fred Koehler.

Baby Blimp Foregoes Flight to Pittsburgh

The baby blimp "Pilgrim," of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, did not come to Pittsburgh today. It had been reported that V. R. Jacobs, assistant manager of aeronautics of the Goodyear company, would use the ship in his trip here to address the Pittsburgh Advertising Club on the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. A representative of the Advertising Club said there had been a misunderstanding in the matter which led to the announcement that the blimp would be here. Weather conditions would make such a trip hazardous, it was explained.

45 HUNTERS WHO INVADED MELLON PROPERTY FINED

LIGONIER, Pa., Jan. 29.—Forty-five hunters who couldn't resist the lure of game which abounds on the exclusive estate of the Rolling Rock Country Club, owned by the Mellons, of Pittsburgh, paid $10 fines this week for poaching.

The fines were assessed by Justice of the Peace W. I. Hunter, of Greensburg, following a round-up of alleged poachers in Westmoreland, Fayette and Allegheny counties.

Each was charged with trespassing.

Ten nimrods who testified they had invaded the club's boundaries only to dispatch game which had been wounded elsewhere, were discharged. The club is a favorite vacationing place of Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon.

GENEVIEVE FITZPATRICK

GIRL DEATH CAR PILOT PLEADS NO DEFENSE

Genevieve Fitzpatrick, 20, of 5122 Carnegie street, entered a plea of no defense to a charge of involuntary manslaughter today before Visiting Judge Charles D. Copeland, of Westmoreland County, in Criminal Court. Sentence was suspended pending disposition of a similar charge against Joseph Brizzle, of 5264 Keystone street.

The charges grew out of the death of Mike Stefanick, 20, of 969 East Ohio street. Shaler Township, who was struck on East Ohio street, near his home, by an automobile containing the defendants, August 13 last. Miss Fitzpatrick testified that she was in the driver's seat but that Brizzle had one hand on the wheel, while his left arm was around her, and that she had her left hand on the wheel. They had been to a roadhouse and had been drinking, she said. Assistant District Attorney Ralph F. Hunter and Attorney Ralph Smith were opposing counsel.

Borah to Address Fruit Men of W. Va.

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—United States Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, will speak at the annual banquet of the Martinsburg Fruit Exchange here on the night of February 8, it was announced today.

N.S. RACKET CHARGES REDUCED

Further collapse of the prosecution against the alleged North Side rum ring came today as Federal Judge Nelson McVicar quashed liquor counts in indictments against a score of individuals.

The quashed charges specified sale, transportation, possession, manufacturer and delivery of liquor by North Siders indicted in the recent Federal Grand Jury probe.

CONSPIRACY STANDS

Judge McVicar, however, refused to quash the conspiracy indictments returned against 25 suspects.

Counsel for the defendants then filed special pleas in bar, charging that the defendants were being placed in double jeopardy as they had already been acquitted on a previous indictment containing the same allegations. These pleas will be decided at the trial scheduled for next month.

CLUB PLEA REJECTED

Without prejudice to the special plea, 13 defendants later entered formal pleas of not guilty to the conspiracy charges.

A motion to quash the conspiracy indictment in relation to the Union Fishing Club, also was refused, and 14 of the 16 defendants named entered pleas of not guilty. Dr. F. H. Frederick, president of the City Civil Service Commission, had to leave court before his plea was entered and will sign

Bride, 20, Leaps From Bridge, Rescued

Mrs. Raymond Sistek, 20, of Latrobe, a bride of three months, was in a serious condition today at the home of her parents at Lock No. 2, after a 40-foot leap, police say, from the Elizabeth bridge into the icy waters of the Monongahela river yesterday.

Cramer Berry and James A. Way, of Elizabeth, waded into the stream and rescued the young woman from shallow water. She was taken to the home of her father, Michael Kechman where, physicians said, she was suffering from effects of the chilly plunge and shock. According to Elizabeth police, she came from Latrobe yesterday noon on the train and at once went to the bridge. She is said to have been despondent.

BOND CASE SNARES KNAPP

Government authorities were prepared today to go before the United States commissioner and ask permission to remove Charles E. Knapp, his wife and two other Pittsburghers to New York, there to face charges that they are implicated in a stolen bond conspiracy which, it is said, may involve millions of dollars.

Knapp, who served a penitentiary sentence for his part in the Brotherhood Savings and Trust Company bond swindle, and Mrs. Irma Knapp were arrested last night. Bennie Diamond, man of several trades, surrendered at the Federal Building today. Operatives were searching for Leo Gallagher, the fourth Pittsburgher indicted in New York.

ACCUSED AS SALESMAN

Government counsel is prepared to charge that Knapp tried to sell $1,000,000 of stolen Liberty bonds to a Canada brokerage house three years ago.

The four Pittsburghers are named co-defendnats with Romeo Forlini, of New York, in an alleged plot to dispose of stolen bonds. Forlini, who is already a federal prisoner for past offenses, told when he was on trial of a great ring for selling stolen bonds which the government now charges had a Pittsburgh chapter.

Knapp and his wife, in default of bail, spent the night in the county jail. Warrants for their arrests were issued after United States Assistant Attorney Thomas

New England Fires Take Toll of Six

NEW LONDON, Conn., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Three persons were burned to death and four others taken to a hospital with probably fatal burns when they became trapped in a fire which spread through a two-story tenement house last night. An explosion of gasoline started the blaze when occupants of the building were cleaning leather goods.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Three of the five children of Mrs. Mary Massa died of suffocation and the mother was probably fatally burned when fire destroyed their home in a three-tenement house here yesterday.

STATE AID ASSURED HARRIS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Assurance that the Harris voting machine enabling act would receive administration support were among important developments during today's session of the Legislature.

The election reform bills were offered in the Senate and would eliminate "chain voting," require voters to sign the check list and provide for appointment of overseers from any part of the county instead of the precinct where they serve.

State Senator Harris, of Allegheny, conferred with Gov. Fisher today and had an appointment later in the day with William A. Schnader, deputy attorney general in charge of legal supervision of administration legislation. The Harris bill has the support of the Pennsylvania Elections Association and the Committee of Twenty.

The recent practice in Pennsylvania of electing the Auditor General as State Treasurer immediately after the completion of his first term as a fiscal officer would be prevented by a bill offered in the House today by Representative Moore, of Washington County. His bill provides that a three-year interval must elapse before any outgoing fiscal officer could be eligible for election to the other position.

Adoption of the measure, Moore says, would prevent a "little group of 'hand-picked' officials to 'hog' the fat offices."

NO RELIEF FROM COLD IN SIGHT

No relief from the winter's longest cold spell is in prospect for the next two or three days, the weather bureau announced today.

With a keen north wind blowing, the mercury fell to 14 degrees at 8 o'clock this morning. This afternoon it reached 17, and showed little indication of rising further, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said.

Tonight a 10-degree temperature is expected. Skies will be clear, with perhaps an occasional flurry of snow.

CUTTERS RACE TO RESCUE

International News Service.

BOSTON, Jan. 29.—Coast guard cutters Tampa and Mojave, on a dramatic 800-mile dash to sea to aid the crippled British steamship Silver Maple, were close to the disabled ship today. The position of the Silver Maple was approximately 750 miles east of Norfolk, Va.

The cutter Mojave was the first to start the dash to the rescue of the Silver Maple, but because of the drift of the steamship, the Tampa was the first to arrive near her. It is believed the ship will be towed to Bermuda.

While the radio was recording the successful dash of the coast guard cutters, other craft of that government marine service were reporting that their hunt for the missing steam trawler Seiner had been unsuccessful.

Mother of 11 Shot

Mrs. Rose Hamula, 45, mother of 11 children, was shot in the presence of three of them in their home at 652 Becks Run road today with, police say, a gun in the hands of a huckster, Ben Silverman, 34, of 248 Lombard street.

Lieut. John Vandall said the shooting was an accident. A son, John Hamula, who works for Silverman, had taken him to his home to show him a new .32 caliber revolver. The son was handing the gun to Silverman when it discharged, police said.

REFERENDUM UP ON RAISE FOR POLICE

By Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 29.—The Mansfield bill, providing for a referendum in Pittsburgh on the proposal to increase the pay of policemen and firemen, was referred today to the Committee on Municipal Affairs, of which Senator Max Aron, of Philadelphia, is chairman. All of the Allegheny County Senators except Herman Brandt are members.

The bill, introduced last night by Senator William D. Mansfield, of McKeesport, provides for a referendum to be held on the date of the primary election in September and makes it mandatory for Council to grant the increases, provided they are approved by the voters. The County Commissioners would count the votes, but the city would pay the expenses of the election.

SEVEN CLASSES NAMED

A similar measure failed to pass last session, representatives of the police and fire bureaus here maintaining that they did not push the bill after they had been assured their demands would be taken care of in the ordinary budget appropriations.

The bill would classify policemen and firemen in seven classes, progressing from those serving in their first year to those serving seven years or more. The pay asked for patrolmen, hosemen and laddermen by classes is as follows:

First, $1,800; second, $1,920; third, $2,040; fourth, $2,160; fifth, $2,280; sixth, $2,400, and seventh, $2,520.

TWO PAY SCHEDULES

The pay of officers of the police bureau would be: Superintendent, $6,500; assistant superintendent, $4,500; inspectors, $3,600; sergeants, $2,700; lieutenants, $2,940; detectives, $2,940; captains, $3,180, and police operators, $2,790.

Officers of the fire department would be paid on the following schedule: Chief, $6,500; deputy chief, $4,500; battalion chiefs, $3,600; training school instructors, $3,180; captains, $2,940; pumpmen, $2,700; drivers, $2,604; chief's aides, $2,604; fire alarm operators, $2,940, and chief fire alarm operator, $3,000.

The meeting was easy, cordial and friendly. If there was any constraint it apparently disappeared in the first few minutes of conversation, in which the Democratic candidate congratulated Mr. Hoover on his election. This apparently broke the ice, and thereafter they goodhumoredly discussed incidents of the campaign.

The Governor was smiling when he came out after 25 minutes.

GOES TO RACES

Mr. Hoover, in white flannels and blue coat, accompanied his visitor to the door. The Governor stepped in the blue Rolls with Kenney and Raskob and they whirled away to their hotel at Coral Gables for a belated breakfast before proceeding on to the Miami race track, where "Smith Day" was being celebrated in the Governor's honor.

By order of Mr. Hoover, all photographers were barred, although he has been photographed with other visitors to his winter home.

Second College Boy On Trial in Killing

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—A second college boy, Richard Gallogly, member of a prominent Atlanta family, goes on trial here today for murder, a little more than a week after his alleged accomplice, George H. Harsh, had been sentenced to die in the electric chair.

Indications were that fewer than the five days necessary to prove Harsh sane and guilty of the murder of Willard Smith, a young drug store clerk, will be required to try Gallogly, charged with the same killing.

KNAPP AND WIFE JAILED IN U. S. BOND-LOOT CASE

TRIP ON CANADIAN DEAL

More than three years ago Knapp, so the Federal authorities report, approached the Browning, Harris & Denman brokerage firm of Hamilton, Canada, with a request to borrow $800,00 on Liberty Bonds worth $1,000,000.

Harris, member of the firm, was suspicious. He notified the Treasury Department at Washington. Through the serial numbers it was established, the officials say, that the bonds were part of the loot of a $1,250,000 bank robbery at Centerville, Mo., in 1923.

In a Hamilton hotel Knapp was cornered by the Federal authorities, they say, but denied knowledge of the taint attached to the bonds. He described himself as a Pittsburgh steel man negotiating for a loan to establish a new plant.

The government operatives suspected that one Romeo Forlini, alleged "fence" for stolen bonds, was directing Knapp's activities. Knapp was ordered to arrange a meeting with Forlini.

BARED HUGE RING

Forlini arrived and walked into the arms of government operatives. For previous offenses in bond thefts he was sentenced to seven years in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga. At his trial he told of a great bond-selling ring. At one time, he said, he had as much as $10,000,000 of stolen government securities in his hands.

But he didn't implicate Knapp and the Federal authorities felt they hadn't a case against the Pittsburgher. He was allowed his freedom.

Recently a government operative went to Atlanta and talked with Forlini. He told Forlini things which must have convinced the prisoner that the government was in a position to extend his seven-year sentence.

Forlini talked. He was taken back to New York, and he testified before a Federal grand jury. Result: Knapp, Mrs. Knapp, Gallagher and Diamond were indicted.

GUIMARIS QUESTIONED

There was another important witness before that New York grand jury—one Frank Guimaris, of Pittsburgh, who had served time in the Rockview (Pa.) Penitentiary, convicted of conspiracy in a stock deal at Clearfield, Pa., of which Knapp was said to have knowledge. Guimaris later was released on a habeas corpus writ.

Assistant United States Attorney Thomas J. Todarelli, of New York, represented the eastern federal officials at today's hearing. He had with him the indictment which charges the defendants with a conspiracy to forge, counterfeit, alter and pass registered convertible bonds of the government.

The indictment charges that Forlini, Knapp and Gallagher held meetings in New York in 1925, that Knapp and Diamond deposited $1,500 to Knapp's account in the Union Trust Company, that Knapp sent four registered bonds through the mails to Mrs. Knapp.

SUSPECT ON PAROLE

Not much is known of Gallagher. He is at liberty on parole for alleged irregularities at the September (1927) primary in Pittsburgh and he was arrested during the presidential campaign and accused of fraudulently soliciting contributions to Gov. Smith's cause. Bennie Diamond has been reported as a man of many trades—broker, sign salesman, tailor. During the investigation of the Brotherhood Bank swindle Diamond was questioned.

Of its case against Mrs. Knapp, the government has revealed only that to her were mailed four government bonds by her husband.

For his part in the Brotherhood Bank swindle Knapp, pleading no defense, was sentenced to 18 months to three years in the Western Penitentiary. He was arrested in October, 1926, after Roland A. McCrady, president of the bank, told city detectives that Knapp had disappeared with a satchel containing $320,000. McCrady said he had given Knapp the money to buy Liberty Bonds worth $640,000.

STORY DISPROVED

Knapp, arrested, insisted that a John Russo, of Chicago, to whom he was to have sold the bonds, had robbed him of the $320,000 in Riverview Park. But most of the money was recovered—buried in the yard of Eddie Goodfellow, of Perrysville, a bookmaker. Goodfellow, too, went to jail.

This latest investigation of Knapp's activities brings the government, if indirectly, into the Brotherhood Bank episode. Whether the prosecution of Knapp will bring out additional details of that case has to be determined.

President McCrady, Treasurer John L. Nelson, Director W. J. Kelly and Frank T. Redman, a broker, have been acquitted on embezzlement charges growing out of the case.

FISHER DENIES 4-CENT GAS RAISE PLAN

Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 29.—Gov. John S. Fisher emphatically denied today that he and other Republican leaders had agreed upon a four-cent gasoline tax.

At the conference yesterday did you agree upon a four-cent gasoline tax?" he was asked.

"We did not," was the Governor's reply.

After the conference, which was held behind closed doors and which had as its chief topic the bill creating the proposed Department of Revenue, there were unconfirmed rumors that Fisher, W. L. Mellon, Joseph R. Grundy and others present had decided to boost the tax on gasoline.

DISCUSS FINANCES

The Governor this morning stated that a number of methods for securing revenue for the Highway Department had been discussed at the conference, but that such talks were informal, the only decision being to have the entire financial situation on that branch of the state government reviewed.

When he presented his budget to the newspapers, the Governor stated that additional revenues would be needed if the state took over the maintenance of city streets over which state highways passed or returned a portion of the motor fees to cities as is demanded by Pittsburgh's councilmen. An additional cent on gasoline, administration leaders have intimated, would more than take care of the funds necessary for this.

BIG SURPLUS

Nothing has developed to indicate that Governor Fisher or the Mellon-Grundy organization is willing to force a tax through the Legislature, especially in face of the $23,000,000 surplus and the frequent and vigorous declarations of State Treasurer Samuel S. Lewis that the Highway Department has plenty of money on hand and in sight for all of the construction it will be able to physically accomplish in the next two years.

STATE STUDENT SAVED IN FIRE

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—The third serious fire in the Gentzel Building in the last 10 years occurred here today, four families being made homeless. The building which houses the Penn State cafe was partly destroyed.

The flames started in the heating plant. One occupant had to be removed by means of a ladder. He is L. L. Saltzer, Sacramento, Pa., a freshman at Penn State. Smoke and flames blocked his exit from the room.

The cafe, a woman's shop, and four apartments were seriously damaged.

Bus Driver Is Held In Ambridge Fatality

Police of Rochester, Pa., are holding Joseph Whan, 23, driver of a passenger bus of the Greyhound Lines, pending an inquest into the death of Charles Miller, 45, of Elm lane, Ambridge, who was killed yesterday when struck by a bus driven by Whan.

Miller, employed on construction work at the Sewickley Valley Hospital, was waiting on the sidewalk for a bus in the Beaver road, near Leetsdale. The brakes of the machine are believed to have locked, causing the bus to skid on to the sidewalk, pinning the man against a building. Another man was slightly hurt.

Cabman Returns $500, Pays Fare, Scorns Reward

PEORIA, Ill., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Ralph Campbell, a taxicab driver, found $500 in his cab. He remembered his passenger, looked him up, and returned the money.

But that isn't the half of it. Campbell positively refused a reward. And then he drove right down to headquarters to reimburse his cab company for the extra mileage run up on the meter by reason of the return of the money to its owner.

R. R. SUES STATE OVER ROADWAY

A fight between the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railroad and the Pennsylvania State Highway Department at Avella was revealed today when injunction proceedings brought against the Highway Department disclosed an unsuccessful attempt on the part of the railroad to block the highway by laying tracks across it and the contractor's retaliation by ripping them out.

The dispute will be settled legally Thursday at a hearing on the injunction before Judge James Brownson in Washington county court. The railroad maintains that to relinquish their property at Avella would seriously cripple their expansion facilities.

The highay under construction is route No. 545, a new road from Pittsburgh to Wellsburg, W. Va., through Bridgeville, Traveskyn and Avella.

Last Thursday, Herber revealed, Coss and Otto, Wheeling contractors, found themselves blocked by the track and when the railroad refused to move the rails, the contractor tore them out with a tractor.

The state highway department maintains it exercised its right in relocating the highway where it will be most beneficial to the town and the public in general.

Fried, Sea Rescue Hero, Called to Washington

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Capt. George Fried of the rescue ship America has been called to Washington and when the liner sails for Europe tomorrow she will be in command of Chief Officer Harry Manning, who had charge of the lifeboat that saved the Florida's crew, it was learned today.

Announcement of Capt. Fried's summons, which came from the United States shipping board, was made at a luncheon given to him and to Manning by Charles V. Bob, sportsman. The reason for the summons was not disclosed.

OSERS' SLAYER FOUND INSANE

CANTON, O., Jan. 29.—Edward Kaltenbaugh, the 21-year-old Grove City (Pa.) farm hand who murdered John Oser, 35, and his wife, Bertha Oser, 32, on their farm near Canal Fulton, O., is insane and unable to distinguish between right and wrong, three alienists, appointed by Stark County courts, reported today.

The alienists made their report to Prosecutor Henry W. Harter, Jr. Harter said he was going ahead with plans for prosecution nevertheless.

On February 11, Harter said, he would try to convince a jury that Kaltenbaugh was sane and, if successful, would ask that the murder trial start February 28.

Kaltenbaugh murdered the Osers a few days after he started working on their farm, then took their auto and went to see a girl friend in New Castle.

$250,000 FIRE IN OIL CITY

OIL CITY, Pa., Jan. 29.—Fire of undetermined origin swept the plant of the Rouseville Cooperage Company early today and imperiled the Pennzoil Refinery and the Crystal Oil Works. L. M. Manion, an owner of the cooperage company, estimated the damage of $250,000.

The blaze was discovered by Franz Pritchard, Pennzoil watchman. Seventeen hundred steel barrels, intended for shipment today, were destroyed in the fire. Two tanks of Pennzoil gasoline were quickly emptied when fire threatened them.

Girl Takes Guest Of Hotel 'for Ride'

A strange girl who W. S. Quimby, a guest at the Fort Pitt Hotel, took for an automobile ride early today, took $150 from his pocket, he told city detectives. Quimby said that after he had left the taxicab he discovered his loss.

LEGISLATURE LIST HEADED BY BONUS

By W. I. GRUNDISH,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 29.—The most ambitious program of legislation affecting war veterans ever prepared in this state has been presented to the Legislature.

The program, which is sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, consists of 15 separate measures, including a $50,000,000 bond issue proposal for adjusted compensation, which was presented by Capt. John S. Purucker, of Pittsburgh.

That proposal, which must be approved by two sessions of the Legislature and by a vote of the people in 1933, provides for bonus payments to veterans of the World War, the Spanish-American War, the China Relief Expedition and the Philippine Insurrection.

OTHER VETERANS' BILLS

The other measures on the program are:

A constitutional amendment which would give former soldiers preference on contracts for public works, for employment in state employment bureaus and on civil service lists.

Bill providing emergency compensation of $30 a month for single veterans and $45 a month for married veterans.

INSURANCE EXEMPTION

A bill prohibiting anyone not entitled to it from wearing the button of the Disabled Veterans of the World War, other organizations already having this legislation.

A bil appropriating $30,000 for the care of battle flags of Pennsylvania regiments in the custody of the state.

POPPY SALES RESTRICTED

A measure providing for the printing of the proceedings of national meetings of war veteran organizations.

A bill making it a misdemeanor for any but veterans' organizations to sell poppies.

Film Director's Car And Funds Attached

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—The legal troubles of Marshall Neilan, film director, have been increased by attachment papers served on his bank account, an automobile and a forthcoming week's salary of some $4,000 for alleged non-payment of $2,500 in wages to former employes of his film company.

In a pending cross suit, filed recently by Jim Tully, "hobo" author, in answer to Mrs. Tully's divorce action, Neilan was named co-respondent.

DRY AGENTS FLUNK, FIRED; RAIDED HOSTESSES CHEER

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(INS.)—Broadway night club proprietors, especially those awaiting trial as liquor law violators, were given a pleasant "kick" when they read today that 40 of the most experienced enforcement agents in this district will lose their jobs by Thursday for failure to pass their civil service examinations.

Cabaret owners figure the ousters will eliminate testimony against those awaiting trial. Those to lose their jobs include, it is said, a number of agents who procured evidence in raids on Texas Guinan's, Helen Morgan's and other bright light resorts.

In spite of the conviction of Tommy Guinan, brother of "Texas," for operating a "nuisance," Broadway night club owners see a disposition on the part of the authorities to "ease up" a bit.

Some time back those arrested were in many cases charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law; now they are accused of maintaining a nuisance.

'COL. PATHFINDER' TOUGH OLD HOG, BUYER ASSERTS

Pigs may be pigs, but "Col. Pathfinder" would have made a pretty good substitute for concrete, in the opinion of Ben Breakstone, East Pittsburgh butcher, who, last night, before Justice of the Peace M. T. Gorham, sued Thompson J. Anderson for false pretense.

Breakstone testified he had purchased Col. Pathfinder, a 400-pound porker, from Anderson after Anderson told him it was a young pig, freshly killed. Col. Pathfinder had quite a pedigree, Breakstone said Anderson told him.

Testimony of A. W. Hinnan, Braddock veterinary, was offered to show that the pig was aged. Breakstone told Gorham it was impossible to carve the meat, and before a crowded courtroom the justice of the peace made a vain effort to cut part of it.

Anderson contended that Breakstone knew he was buying a boar and denied he had said the animal was a young pig.

Braddock Hero Of Sea Coming Home Soon

Mrs. Carl Kellams, of 414 Oak street, Braddock, stepmother of Fonce Kellams, member of the crew of S. S. America which rescued 32 from the S. S. Florida, received word from her son today that he will be home as soon as he can make arrangements.

"I am well," he wrote, "but have been kept busy ever since we landed. I want to get home just as soon as I can, but just now I do not know when I can make it. Will let you know definitely later."

The porker was sold Butcher Breakstone by Anderson, the buyer claiming misrepresentation of age, that the porker was tough old-time butcher, set the age at 3½ years. Because it was sold as a year-old pig, Anderson was held for court for false pretense. "Expert testimony" by Fisher.

CITY TO SPEED $8,000,000 PROJECTS

Council has adopted a resolution by President James F. Malone asking the Department of Public Works to make an early beginning on improvements totaling $8,000,000 for which legislation and money has been authorized.

The measure states that in addition to granting demands of taxpayers for streets, seweres nad bridges, the projects, when begun, would materially relieve unemployment.

The pending schedule includes:

Grading, paving and curbing of 200 streets at an estimated cost of $2,158,000; East street, Irwin avenue and North avenue bridges, and an extension of Mt. Washington roadway from Liberty Tunnel to Seventh and Carson streets, $3,000,000; resurfacing and repaving improved streets, $1,250,000; raising North Side streets above flood level, $600,000; extending Boulevard of the Allies from Craft avenue to a point near Bates street and the creation of a traffic circle in that vicinity, $400,000; concrete steps and retaining walls, $150,000; sewers in various sections of the city, $60,000.

HOSPITAL HERE TO EXPAND

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Following a conference between Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, and Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, the Veterans' Hospital at Aspinwall in all probability will be converted from a tubercular institution to a general hospital.

Gen. Hines pointed out that facilities at the institution are adequate for a general hospital, with sufficient grounds to allow for an expansion program in connection with necessary new buildings.

Its necessity as a pulmonary sanitarium has passed, it seems, since much of the bed equipment is never used, the director stated.

Street Repairs Asked

Charles W. Elicker, Allendorf and Faulkner streets, has submitted a letter to Council asking temporary relief from the poor condition of streets in that vicinity. He said traffic was forced to use private property within a foot of residence doorways and suggested repairs to the roadway.

PRINTER HALTS STATE ACTION ON CRUISERS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 29.—Failure of the printer to have copies of the Howe resolution, urging Congress to approve the naval construction program now being considered, prevented the House from taking action on the measure today.

Miss Helen Grimes, Allegheny county, stated she intended to oppose the passage of the resolution, principally because of her belief that the Legislature should not attempt to dictate to Congress.

Representative George F. Howe, Allegheny, who introduced the measure last night, declared that the resolution is not introduced in any effort to "dictate" to Congress, put merely to show the sentiment of the elected representatives of the people of the state in favor of a navy second to none.

COOLIDGE FOR BUDGET

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—President Coolidge plans to send a budget recommendation to congress immediately asking for appropriations to begin cruiser building operations at once, provided congress approves the Naval construction bill without the stipulation that the vessels should be built within a fixed time.

Suspension of the proposed cruiser construction program in the event an armament conference between Great Britian and the United States is called, was proposed in an amendment to the cruiser bill offered today by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska.

Prohibition Ghost Stalks in Senate

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—The subject of prohibition was injected into debate in the Senate before the passage of the Buckman bill to authorize appointment of assistant district attorneys in sixth class counties. Senator Buckman said the Bucks County Court had been swamped with criminal cases since the advent of prohibition. Senator Weingartner interjected the remark that in his home county, Lawrence, the County Court was swamped long before prohibition.

FAULKNER NOTE REACHES KLINE

Mayor Charles H. Kline today received from North Side ministers a letter requesting removal of Charles Faulkner as North Side police inspector and urging appointment of "one who will effectively see to it that our laws are not disobeyed," from a group of North Side ministers.

Mayor Kline declined to comment on the communication except to say he would take it under consideration.

The request for Faulkner's removal was contained in a resolution adopted at a meeting last Saturday in Carnegie Music Hall, North Side, under auspices of the ministers.

2 BILLS TO REVISE STATE CONSTITUTION CONFLICT

Special Dispatch to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 29.—Two conflicting proposals for a convention to revise the state constitution will feature this session of the Legislature.

One of them reached the assembly today when Representative D. Glenn Moore, of Washington, presented a bill calling for election of delegates to the convention at next November's election. It makes revision of the constitution necessary. This proposal is backed by the Committee of 70, of Philadelphia.

The second is backed by Mrs John O. Miller, Pittsburgh, and will not reach the Legislature until next Monday night. Instead of ordering that the constitution be revised, it leaves the decision to voters. Her proposal, which will be introduced by Senator Horace W. Schantz, Lehigh County, president pro tem. of the Senate, proposes a referendum on ballots next November. In that referendum voters would decide whether the constitution should be revised, and election of delegates would come later. Mrs. Miller is former state chairman of the League of Woman Voters, which has backed general revision of the basic law for many years.

Mrs. Miller's proposal is similar to the effort to amend the constitution in 1921. At that time voters defeated a proposal to call a revision convention.

Moore's bill directs that delegates elected next November shall meet in January, 1930, to begin their work, and that the revised draft shall be submitted to voters for ratification in November, 1930. If approved, the new constitution would become effective January 1, 1931.

Crimes Sentence Law Up for Repeal

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—A public hearing will be held here on the proposed Ludlow act repealer introduced by Representative Thomas Wilson, McKean. The House Committee on Judicial General referred the repealer, which would permit judges to fix maximum and minimum sentences at their discretion, instead of having to make the minimum half the maximum provided by law for the offense, to a sub-committee.

O. K. SANITARY MERGER

Completion of plans for the merger of the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company of this city with the American Radiator Company was made certain today.

Directors of the American Radiator Company at a meeting in New York formally accepted the proposal to give one share of their common stock for three and two-thirds shares of Standard Sanitary common.

A committee was appointed to complete the transaction. Standard Sanitary directors will meet on Thursday to act on the plan but their approval is practically assured since the present terms were proposed by officials here.

Planes carrying passengers fly 20,000 miles daily, the guide shows and the total mileage of all commercial air transport planes is about 38,000 miles daily.

STUDENT NURSE DIES OF POISON

Miss Leota Gnagey, 21, died in St. John's Hospital last night of poison which she swallowed early Sunday, according to the hospital report to the coroner's office.

Miss Gnagey, a student nurse at the hospital, is said to have swallowed poison in the nurses' home while temporarily insane. Hospital attaches reported that Miss Gnagey, whose home was in Port Allegany, McKean County, had been living with her sister, Mrs. Catherine Besser, 4008 Oswald street. The case was reported as a suicide and the body was taken to a North Side undertaking establishment. Miss Gnagey had been at the hospital two and a half years.

WOMEN OPEN COUNCIL HOUSE AS HOTEL

The Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women, incorporating nearly all of the Catholic women's organizations of the county, will open its beautiful council house at 5210 Penn avenue, Friday, as a working girls' residence.

Girls from out-of-town, regardless of religion, who work in Pittsburgh, or visiting women will be able to find quarters and meals there.

In conjunction with the opening of the women's hostelry, the council is conducting a drive for 3,000 new members.

The second and third floors will house the hotel rooms. Three parlors and a dining room on the first floor, and a recreation hall on the second will furnish ample quarters for relaxation and entertainment.

The idea was fostered by Mrs. John T. Horan, president of the council, and the advisory board. Fay Ide Lauer and Catherine O'Donnell, secretaries, are in direct charge of the house.

The old mansion, built by Murray Verner, street railway magnate and engineer, was bought a number years ago by the council and has been used as a gathering place and center of the affiliated clubs' activities.

BEAVER, Pa., Jan. 29.—Joseph Lesinski, 38, of Beaver Falls, convicted of involuntary manslaughter in the death of Lester Shaffer, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1, and serve four months in the county jail. The prison sentence will be commuted if the defendant pays the sum of $500 to the widow.

POLITICS COSTS HIM JOB, LAWYER KILLS WIFE, SELF

BOULDER, Col., Jan. 29.—(INS.)—Two tragic lines in a farewell note today explained the deaths of J. E. Kirkbride, 46, brilliant graduate of the University of Colorado law school, and his wife, Frances.

It was a case of "humane" murder and suicide, according to the note.

"Frances begs and pleads to be released from earthly bonds," read one line.

"Silly, assinine politics cost me my position as deputy district attorney," read another line.

Kirkbride shot his wife as she lay in bed. He then sent a bullet through his own brain. Mrs. Kirkbride had been a patient in a Denver psychopathic hospital. On January 7, her husband failed of reappointment to his position.

"Maybe I'm wrong," the farewell note concluded, "but I've thought it over from every angle, spiritual, moral, legal, social and humanitarian, and it seems the gracious thing to do."

MAGISTRATES' PAY RAISE PLEA COLDLY RECEIVED

Six of the magistrates get $3,000 a year, while the morals court and traffic court officials each get $4,000. The pending bill would grant each $6,000.

No announcement was made after the meeting, but rumors persisted that the magistrates got so little encouragement that they began trying to effect a compromise on $5,000.

The request for the increase is not accompanied by an indorsement from Mayor Charles H. Kline. Belief is held that the magistrates have a rocky road ahead, as Council's attitude is said to be that the salaries are sufficient for their one or two hours' work a day, with the exception of morals and traffic courts where the hours are a little longer.

Council is practically committed to increasing the salaries of employes now paid $2,940 a year and less, and it was expected that increase would be the limit for this year, at least.

The magistrates at the meeting were A. D. Brandon, of Morals Court; J. A. Staley, Jr., of Traffic Court, and William Soost, George H. England, John Orie, John J. Sweeney, Edward M. Hough and Leo Rothenberg, of police courts.

1,500 PRIZE BIRDS SEEN AT POULTRY SHOW HERE

Duquesne Garden was transformed into a mammoth barnyard yesterday. Proud cockerels and fiery bantams crowed lustily to give the signal for the opening of Pittsburgh's fourth annual Poultry Show.

More than 1,500 prize-winning birds—pigeons, bantams, chickens and turkeys were brought into the exhibition hall in the course of the day. For a week the hall will reverberate with a symphony of crowing, cackling and squeaking, as poultry fanciers from all parts of the country exhibit their prize breeds.

Chief interest will center in the competition of exhibitors to carry off the highest number of points for the silver loving cup, offered by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, one of the most coveted prizes of the show. Well-known poultry experts will judge the various birds for the many prizes to be awarded.

There are many members of the fowl aristocracy that have already won public admiration. G. M. Simmons, of Corry, Pa., is the owner of a state grand champion single comb white Leghorn cockerel. He has won first honors at poultry shows at Erie, Rochester, N. Y., and numerous state exhibitions.

John Seath, of Turtle Creek, is exhibiting a national champion in the shape of a white Wyandotte hen. The bird won first prize at the National Poultry Show at Madison Square Garden, New York, last week. William Kurtz, of Mt. Oliver, who has been breeding poultry for 27 years, has a collection of rare and fiery golden Seabright bantams.

Homing pigeons are much in evidence at the show. W. S. Steuermagel, 5161 Dearborn street, East End, is exhibiting a champion 500-mile Belgian homing pigeon. The bird was imported from Belgium and has since raced thousands of miles in this country.

While the show is in progress every day this week, Pittsburgh will be the gathering place of prominent poultrymen, who will attend various meetings in connection with the show. Harry J. Singer, secretary of the Mutual Poultry Association, is show manager. Other officers who will attend the show are Alfred Christison, president; Hiram Singer, vice president; John J. Riley, assistant secretary, and George Seath, R. F. Kittle, George V. Beech and Samuel Pratt, directors.

BUDGET PARERS FIGHT FIRST DEFICIT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(INS.)—After a final word of injunction from President Coolidge that without constructive economy in government, prosperity cannot continue, departmental heads went to work today to chop Uncle Sam's expenditures to the end that the fiscal year ending June 30 may not be marred by the first deficit since the budget system went into effect.

1921 OUTLOOK GLOOMY

A gloomy picture of conditions in the republic in 1921 was painted by Coolidge. At that time, he said the government was permeated with extravagance. The business of the country was prostrate. Employment was difficult to secure with 5,000,000 persons out of work. Wages were declining, the price of securities low, market scarce, confidence in the economic structure shaken and progress stopped.

"The cause of this distress was not difficult to ascertain," the President said. "The country has been living beyond its means. It had been spending more than it earned, which meant that it had been using up its capital. The savings of previous years were being exhausted principally through government extravagance."

JOBS PICK UP

Each of the succeeding years brought an ever-increasing improvement in the business of government, with expenses greatly reduced, efficiency established, confidence inspired and workers restored to their jobs.

"I believe that the federal government today is the best conducted big business in the world," Coolidge said.

"The closing months of 1928 and the opening weeks of 1929 have seen American industry and commerce at the highest point ever attained in time of peace."

In virtually all lines of government, commerce, industry, education, art and society substantial progress has been made. Coolidge said savings deposits rose from $16,500,000,000 in 1921 to more than $28,000,000,000 on June 30, 1928, and that the amount of life insurance in force nearly doubled, reaching a present total of $87,000,000,000.

New Kensington Man Detained in Shooting

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Jan. 29.—A coroner's jury last night held Sam Romeo to await the action of the grand jury in the shooting to death of Tony Municuci, 42, of Arnold, who was fired upon as he and two others are alleged to have tried to force their way into Romeo's apartment Sunday night. Paul Gleo, who accompanied Municuci, was held for court by Justice of the Peace John B. Hageman, charged with violating the Snyder act.

STOP "FLU" before it starts!

MODERN mothers wouldn't be without Ex-Lax. For it helps to keep the body free from intestinal poisons that are the source of such winter ills as "flu".

Without griping or upsetting the stomach, Ex-Lax relieves constipation and so protects good health.

Children love this safe laxative. For it tastes like chocolate candy. It is chocolate treated with tasteless, non-habit-forming phenolphthalein which physicians prescribe. Keep Ex-Lax always on hand for the family.

Ask your druggist for Ex-Lax—today. Three sizes, 10c, 25c and 50c.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Just Rub Away Danger

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief as effectively as the messy old mustard plaster.

Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold

You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

HER HUSBAND'S AWFUL COUGH ANNOYED EVERYONE NEAR HIM

COUGHED WORSE NIGHTS AND WHEN INDOORS

"My husband months ago saw a doctor who said he was all right but that cough clung to him night and day. He would come from outdoors into the house. Movie or Church and soon he would be hawking and coughing terribly and at night he was all stuffed up," declared Mrs. D. R. M——.

"He even took Cod Liver Oil, although he hated it. I finally told our doctor, who laughingly said: "Men are all alike and you can't blame him much, so go get him a big bottle of Lin-O-Nine, which is a nice tasting Flaxseed Oil, Cassia, Eucalyptus, Betuia, Irish Moss and Glycerine remedy, far better than Cod Liver Oil and works quicker."

RESULTS WONDERFUL

"He liked Lin-O-Nine so well he took a spoonful before meals until the whole bottle was gone. It not only stopped the cough—it built him up fine. I never saw medicine work such wonders before. Children love to take it, too."

A cough is dangerous this time of year. Well-stocked druggists have Lin-O-Nine, 50c or $1.00 sizes, or send dollar bill to nationally famous Kerr Chemical Company, Brentwood, Md., for large bottle, parcels post.

BANISH INDIGESTION COLDS RHEUMATISM

SWIFTLY SURELY SAFELY

WITH THIS NEW DISCOVERY

—by conquering the usual cause—too much acid—or as doctors call it—"acidosis."

ACIDINE, the most powerful known enemy to acid, kills toxic acid at its source in the stomach and kidneys and literally strangles it, relieving you from further damage from its relentless ravages.

IF ACIDINE FAILS TO RELIEVE INDIGESTION and its results—gas, sourness, sleeplessness and sick headache in the quietest, most soothing and immediate manner you have ever known, every penny you have paid will be refunded by your druggist.

IF ACIDINE FAILS TO PREVENT COLDS AND THE FLU, or fails to relieve them within twenty-four hours, then back goes every penny you have paid.

IF ACIDINE FAILS TO RELIEVE RHEUMATISM WITHIN THIRTY DAYS when taken after meals as directed, then your druggist will cheerfully refund the cost of the trial.

A cure all you may say? No, indeed, just one of the latest scientific discoveries of a famous research laboratory. ACIDINE is the most powerful known enemy to acid wherever found in the human system. ALL THESE TROUBLES RESULT FROM TOO MUCH ACID, AND NATURALLY ACIDINE IS THE MOST EFFECTIVE AGENT FOR FIGHTING THEM.

Remember, we take the risk. A trial costs you nothing if it fails. Buy ACIDINE today, and find out for yourself why in a few short months it has become perhaps the most priceless, the most useful of all home remedies. Your druggist has it and recommends it.

Gets 10 to 20 Years For Fatal Stabbing

Sam Pilla, of 2505 Carson street, rear, was sentenced to the Western Penitentiary for 10 to 20 years by Judge Charles D. Copeland yesterday in Criminal Court. He was charged with murder and entered a general plea of guilty when arraigned. The court fixed the crime at second degree murder after a hearing. Pilla fatally cut Stoyan Sabot, 38, of Weirton, W. Va., last September 27. He claimed self-defense, testifying that the quarrel resulted from Sabot's attentions to Mrs. Pilla.

N. Y. Police Seize Car and Driver Of Mrs. Whalen

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—While Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen was acting as master of ceremonies at the city's greeting to the heroes of the America, Mrs. Whalen's chauffeur and car, illegally parked, were hauled to a police station, leaving her stranded on a chilly Fifth avenue curb.

"My wife's machine was in the wrong," the commissioner said. That was before he had seen Mrs. Whalen.

"It was most annoying," she said. "I had a luncheon appointment and had to go to it on a bus."

He was sure he was in for his usual winter colds

But "Triple Action" keeps him well all winter long!

"I AM very susceptible to colds and when I had to go out selling in the worst day of the winter, I was sure I was in for my usual prolonged cold and coughing spell. When I came home that night, however, I took Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. Almost immediately I felt better. My nose cleared up, my cough stopped.

After that, every time I began sniffling or coughing, I reached for Smith Brothers'. All winter long Smith Brothers' kept me well.

I can't begin to figure out how much money, worry and trouble Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup has saved me." MR. A. MELVIN

To brush teeth and forget gums, is an extravagance that may demand as its price health, beauty and youth. In this life of ease and luxury, gums are undernourished and under-exercised. If neglected, they surrender to diseases that sweep the system and often cause loss of teeth. Only dental care can stem the advance of gum diseases once they are contracted. Prevention is easier and less painful.

Be liberal with yourself. See your dentist every six months. Continue to brush your teeth. But also brush gums vigorously with the dentifrice designed to help keep them firm and sound... Forhan's for the Gums.

BLANCHE RING

BLANCHE RING'S ROMANCE ON ROCKS

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The New York American said today that Blanche Ring, musical comedy star, and her actor-husband, Charles Winninger, had separated.

"It's true," the paper quoted Miss Ring as saying. "We have reached an amicable understanding to live apart. We are still on friendly terms, however—there are business relations between us and all that. But live together—no! We won't see each other any oftener than necessary."

Winninger denied to the American that there was any rift.

They were married in November, 1912, in Boston, while Miss Ring was starring in "The Wall Street Girl," and he was stage manager and playing minor roles.

Both have important parts in Broadway shows this season.

Miss Ring was first married to James Walker, Jr. They were divorced in 1904. Later she married Edward McKay in London. They were divorced shortly before her marriage to Winninger.

Daughter Arrested, Then Woman Relents

Mrs. Mary Kvaternick, of Watkins avenue, Wilmerding, had her daughter, Mary, 16, arrested as an incorrigible, but yesterday, when the girl appeared before Judge Josiah Cohen in Criminal Court, the mother relented and asked for a parole which was granted. The girl smoked cigarets, stayed out late at night and refused to go to school or help at home, the court was informed. She was placed in jail January 14 on a charge of incorrigibility brought by the mother. Mary promised to obey in the future and was paroled for a year in the care of her mother.

MUSIC

SYRIA MOSQUE

PROGRAM.

Overture, "Academic Festival." Brahms
Symphony, D. Minor ..... Franck
Lento—Allegro non Troppo.
Allegretto, Allegro non Troppo.
Tone Poem, "Don Juan" ..... Strauss
Suite, from the Ballet ..... Strawinsky
Introduction—The Fire Bird and Her Dance.
Dance of the Princesses.
Infernal Dance of the Kastchei.
Berceuse—Finale.

There was surely much to admire in the fine concert offered by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in Syria Mosque last night. It is the first visit of the Chicagoans in many years, and their playing contradicted the suspicion against much music and many musicians that have come out of the West, namely, that they are frequently over-rated by enthusiasts or boosters.

First of all, Frederick Stock, who conducted, is not only a very practical orchestra man, but also a musician of tremendous symphonies for every school of music. He was brought up a classicist and has kept abreast of the times in so far that his modern music is as delightful as his classics are profound. He is little of the showman, plays entirely without neuroticism, but with a worshipful attention to the plastic beauty of the music in hand. His music never lacks the dramatic force of the sensationalists. It is always in repose and always robust.

Stock's program brought us from the later romantic music of Brahms, through the French and German transitional period, to the most representative disciple of present day music, Strawinsky. Although we are hearing Cesar Franck's symphony frequently enough, it was pleasant to know that Stock had joined the conductors who no longer look upon Franck as a "mystic" (although his music savors of the church as much as Schumann's processional in the Rhenish Symphony) and that he prefers to interpret the mind of a vigorous thinker rather than the thoughts of a recluse. In Strauss and Strawinsky one feels the orchestra rather than the program behind the composition when Stock leads. It is a new sensation and not altogether disagreeable, for the ensemble is never lopsided.

In spite of the fine homogeneity, the audience could not help sensing the particularly fine quality of the Chicago string choir, especially the cello, and the woodwinds. By all means let us have more of this orchestra and Frederick Stock.

Grove City Company Wins U.S. Tax Refund

Federal Judge Nelson McVicar, in an opinion Monday, ruled that the Erie Coal and Coke Company, of Grove City, was entitled to a refund of $65,706.7 in income taxes from the government. It was an additional tax for the year 1917 paid under protest by the company to D. B. Heiner, collector of internal revenue in the Pittsburgh district, on April 20, 1926. The court upheld the contention of the plaintiff that the money could not be lawfully collected five years after the company filed its income tax for 1917.

Delehanty, 5720 Rippey street, a former city policeman, for four months' wages from August 1, when he was arbitrarily placed on the retired list without pay, until December 1, when pension payments began.

In an accompanying letter Delehanty said he was a policeman for 20 years and a city detective for the last two years.

During an illness last July he asked Peter P. Walsh, superintendent of police, for a leave of absence to take treatment at a sanitarium. Walsh told him to consult Frank Boyd, inspector of detectives, and if excused he would lose no pay.

Obtaining Boyd's consent, Delehanty went to Mt. Clemens, Mich., but he was there only a short time when he was notified he had been placed on the retired list during a "shake-up" of the force.

Upon his return to Pittsburgh, the former policeman talked with Walsh, who promised to have the regular wages continue until Delehanty began to receive his pension, but so far the money has not been forthcoming, the letter said.

HAVE YOU A "WHATNOT" IN YOUR HOME?

THE term "Whatnot" is just a figure of speech for the little anachronisms from which few houses are free, unless they have been furnished very recently and wisely.

This is the time to gently but firmly dispose of these undesirables, and replace them with modern pieces in harmony with the times.

Worse than these, is the badly designed furniture—the heavy over-sized pieces with intricate carvings and cheap ornamentations, which stores continue to show on the grounds that their customers want them.

Maybe they do! But there are others who do not, and for these there is Horne's.

The February Furniture Sale

See the furniture showing of this store, compare it with the showings elsewhere. You will see the difference!

Don't let anybody tell you you can't afford Horne furniture. The February price tickets will convince you differently. Also please bear in mind that you have the privilege of deferred payments, and that this store's arrangement in this respect is particularly liberal and satisfactory.

Wash Goods That Are Washable

The name "wash goods" has always been applied to a great many different fabrics—cottons, linens, rayons—everything, in short but silks. Unfortunately, owing to unsatisfactory dyes, a single washing was frequently sufficient to show that not all these fabrics deserved the name.

It has only been within the past few years that manufacturers have discovered the means of satisfying the demands of Horne's and other progressive merchants whose constant ambition has been the safeguarding of the customer's interest.

Now, you may obtain washable wash goods at Horne's . . . materials dyed with colors which are, to all practical purposes, fast to light as well as washing.

The materials are made to meet our own rigid requirements and then they are submitted to a severe test in our own laboratories before the colors are pronounced fast. You may now choose with perfect confidence from some thirty different varieties of fast-color wash goods, priced from 30c to $1.25 yard.

Old Folks Say Doctor Caldwell was Right

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the baby because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

Rosalie Adele Nelson
Rosalie Adele Nelson,
The Original Lucky Poster Girl

"I'm a 'Lucky Girl' because I've found a new way to keep my figure trim. Whenever the desire for a sweet tempts me, I light up a Lucky Strike. It's remarkable how nicely the toasted flavor of Luckies satisfies me. Toasting has taken out all impurities—all that is left is the thrilling Lucky aroma. I certainly am lucky to be 'The Lucky Girl.'"

ROSALIE ADELE NELSON

THE modern common sense way—reach for a Lucky instead of a fattening sweet. Thousands are doing it—men keep healthy and fit, women retain a trim figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest tobaccos, skilfully blended, then toasted to develop a flavor which is a delightful alternative for that craving for fattening sweets.

Toasting frees Lucky Strike from impurities. 20,679 physicians recognize this when they say Luckies are less irritating than other cigarettes. Athletes, who must keep fit, testify that Luckies steady their nerves and do not harm their physical condition. That's why Luckies have always been the favorite of those men who want to keep in tip-top shape and realize the danger of overweight. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

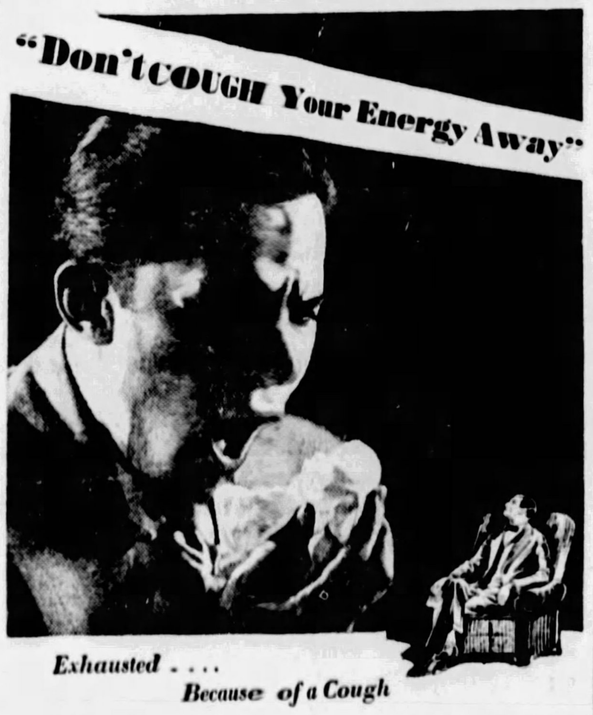
"Don't COUGH Your Energy Away"



Exhausted . . . .
Because of a Cough

A STUBBORN cough can wreck your whole body—sap vitality. Each spasm not only irritates the delicate membranes of your throat but puts a severe strain upon your chest, stomach and other vital organs.

Your health demands that coughs be checked. They feed upon your strength—lower your resistance—expose you to more serious infections.

At the first sign of a cough or throat irritation, take PERTUSSIN. It helps Nature free the air passages of germ-laden mucus, soothes the irritation and quiets the cough. PERTUSSIN has been prescribed more often for coughs than any other advertised remedy.

PERTUSSIN is safe even for small children and convalescents—a good remedy for "coughs that hang on". It is free from dope—does not upset the stomach and can be taken as often as necessary. At all druggists.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

INTO THE MIST

By LILLIACE M. MITCHELL

BETTY BLAINE had red-gold hair. That is, people who liked her said that it was red-gold. Most people liked her. There were two or three girls who didn't like her as well as they might have; they called her a red-head. It's all in the point of view, of course.

The only reason those girls didn't like her as well as they might have was that men always seemed to like Betty. She had a jolly, impersonal line of chatter that made her excellent company. They didn't care about men liking her in general. It was because Keith Harmon in particular always seemed to seek her out that the girls disliked her.

Keith Harmon was easily the most desirable man of the crowd. Perhaps he was desirable because he was interested in girls as a group, but not alone. Perhaps it was because he never attempted to be modern and pet them. Perhaps it was just because he was different from the other men they knew. Whatever it was, there was the fact. The girls all had interesting little day dreams about Keith Harmon, wherein he played the part of the prince in the fairy tale. In each dream the girl was blonde or brunette, slender or plump, tall of short—each as the girl herself happened to be.

Sometimes these day dreams lasted far into the night until the girl would really fall asleep and have a real dream. In the latter case, Keith Harmon always heard about that dream, detail built upon detail.

On the Friday of the Griggsby house party there was a rainbow in the morning. Betty knew something of weather signs, enough, at least, to know that a rainbow in the morning foretells a rainy day. When she packed her week-end clothes, therefore, she put in a raincoat and a rain-hat and a stout pair of walking shoes. Betty was blessed with naturally curly hair so that whenever it rained she welcomed a chance to go walking to "set" the curls. The same end could be accomplished by running a wet comb through her hair, but a hairdresser had once told her that this was a needless procedure if the weather turned damp and that the less she wet her hair the more glossy it would appear. She even took the trouble of telephoning to Martha Waggs and Natalie Storm to tell them that it promised to be rainy and that they had better take suitable clothes along.

"Not for me," laughed Natalie. "I just got a good water wave and if it rains I'll play bridge near the fireplace. You don't catch me wasting a perfectly good wave in the rain! Not I!"

And on Saturday afternoon the rain started in earnest. Rain? It poured down in sheets. There were only six so that there could be one table of bridge and two left over.

"I've got a letter that I must get off," Keither Harmon said.

"I'm going for a walk in this rain," Betty murmured.

They all laughed. Who would be so foolish as to leave a comfortable room with a roaring fireplace to go out into such a storm? They were so deep in their game within a half hour that they had entirely forgotten Betty. When Keith Harmon came back he looked around.

"Where's Betty?"

"She said she was going for a walk in the rain," said Natalie. Then she added in an undertone: "I'll bet anything she's gone to her room for a beauty nap."

But Keith Harmon wandered out of the room wondering. He even borrowed a raicoat from the hall closet and went out on the grounds. At the far end of the garden there was a little covered pergola and in this, he thought, he saw Betty's red curls. He strode forward.

"Do you want to catch your death of cold?" he demanded.

She laughed. "Oh, now, I shouldn't go so far as to say 'death' of cold, should you? It isn't cold at all. It's just rainy."

"But what's the sense of going out to get drenched?" he asked.

"I like it," she answered.

"So do I," he said unexpectedly. "Let's tramp a mile, what do you say?"

"Let's," she said briefly.

Even in the graveled roadway walking wasn't easy. From time to time they went in ankle deep and stumbled upgrade again, laughing and panting. It was Keith who first suggested turning back. Betty's cheeks were cherry red and her hair was in tight little curls under the rain-hat which she had put on again as soon as she had left the pergola.

At the pergola he took her arm and turned in.

"Want to sit here for a while?" he asked carelessly. "Do you often walk in the mist?"

She nodded. The rain by now was barely coming down, and a silver mist covered everything like the silver skeins thrown over a Christmas tree.

"Like it?" he asked.

"Love it," she said promptly, her eyes dancing with joy and health.

"And you'd love me, too, if I walked with you in the mist?"

"Oh, of course," she said lightly, the color coming into her cheekes more deeply.

"For ever more!" gasped Natalie, when they told her a half hour later. "Well, there's more than one way to kill a cat!"

"I shouldn't care to drown while I was drowning the cat," Martha said sourly.

Had Tried Many Medicines Without Results Before the Master Remedy Restored His Health.

How Konjola not only brings health after all else has failed, but builds up the entire system, is being explained by the Konjola Man, who is demonstrating this remarkable remedy daily at the McCulloch Drug Store, Penn avenue at Sixth street, this city, where scores are going to learn of this marvelous record of this wonder remedy for the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and for rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. This astonishing medicine, which has made a million friends, is designed to bring quick and lasting relief in the most stubborn cases. Thousands who have been restored to health when hope of getting better was abandoned, are lavish in their praise of this amazing compound. One of the ardent friends of Konjola is Mr. George A. Southerland, 24 Home avenue, Oil City, Pa. Mr. Southerland, who is 78 years of age, tells the Konjola Man now in this city, how Konjola gave him health for which he had sought for years in vain. He said:

"For quite some time I have been in a very weakened and rundown condition, the result of constipation, kidney trouble, indigestion and loss of sleep. I was so weak that I was forced to stop and rest numerous times when I walked downtown and back. Despite every effort to find something to help me, I became weaker day by day, and had about reached the conclusion that at my age I could not hope for restoration to health. About this time I began to notice in the Oil City papers endorsements of Konjola, the new medicine. Many of the cases, wherein this remedy had brought about relief quickly and thoroughly, were similar to mine. I had little faith, having been disappointed so often in my search for health, but I decided to give this remedy a chance.

"Greatly to my astonishment and delight I noticed a marked improvement in my condition after taking the second bottle of Konjola. My indigestion disappeared and my appetite returned. No longer did I have to rise at night because of my kidney ailment. Constipation was totally relieved, and my strength is coming back so swiftly that I can walk to town and back without stopping to rest. It surely is wonderful that a medicine could do all these things so quickly, and even more remarkable when my advanced age is considered. We never get too old to learn, I guess, and at 78 I am glad to say that I have discovered the greatest medicine in the world."

What joy it would bring to the thousands who suffer if they could read the numberless testimonials from men and women made well and happy by this master medicine. Konjola asks merely for the opportunity to make you, too, well and strong again.

Konjola is different from any other known remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time many weak, rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product, until now, Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this section.

The Konjola Man is at the McCulloch Drug Store, Penn avenue and Sixth street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the merits of this astonishing medicine. Free samples given.

ALWAYS DEAD TIRED?

How sad! Sallow complexion, coated tongue, poor appetite, bad breath, pimply skin and always tired. What's wrong? You are poisoned. The bowels are clogged and liver inactive. Take this famous prescription used constantly in place of calomel by men and women for 20 years—Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They are harmless yet very effective. A compound of vegetable ingredients and olive oil. They act easily upon the bowels, free the system of poison caused by faulty elimination and tone up liver.

Be beautiful. Have rosy cheeks, clear eyes and youthful energy that make a success of life. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c.

No Trick

to get him to take this Cod Liver Oil

Don't starve your little ones of life-giving vitamins—when there is a genuine Norwegian cod liver oil that every child actually loves! They take it as readily as milk and smack their lips for more.

Physicians Recommend It

Scott's Emulsion helps to ward off sickness, colds and grippe. It builds up little bodies. Puts roses in little cheeks. Makes legs and arms strong and firm.

For 60 years physicians have recommended this particular cod liver oil because it is emulsified. This makes it so easy for little people to digest and assimilate it rapidly.

All druggists have Scott's Emulsion in two handy sizes. A few cents' worth a day is a powerful guardian of health.

"COMPLETELY MOTORIZED"

. . . thanks to the USED CAR

"I HAVE a wife, a daughter and a son," a business man writes, "and each of us needed a car. To buy four new cars was out of the question for me, but thanks to the present-day bargains in used cars, my family has been completely motorized at surprisingly small expense."

A rather unusual family, but the idea is not new. Very many American families in all circumstances have found in the used car an economical means of enjoying the convenience of two- and three-car ownership. For a used car is unused transportation which may be enjoyed by the next owner at an attractive price.

Used cars are opportunities

A good automobile is built to stand years of use. It will provide many thousands of miles of transportation. But only occasionally are all its years and all its mileage used up by one owner.

The cars which General Motors dealers are taking in trade offer great opportunities to buy unused transportation at low cost. The convenience of the GMAC Plan of Payment is available.

HOST OF ENTERTAINERS AND NOTABLES ON AIR

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

TONIGHT'S radio schedule reads like an index to "Who's Who Among Radio Entertainers." All these stars are booked on the same evening:

Duncan Sisters, Avon Comedy Four, Gladys Rice, and a host of theatrical stars; Roy Chapman Andrews, the famous explorer; Carlton Boxill, tenor; Harry Reser in a specialty number; the Question Mark fliers and a double host of prominent speakers: Agnes Davis, soprano, who won the Curtis Institute Scholarship; Wendell Hall, "red-headed music-maker," and, if you please, our own Lucille Flanders Black, piano virtuose, who makes her second appearance tonight from WABC at 7:30 o'clock.

Before we get lost in the detail of other wonderful features on the air let us tell you something about Miss Black. You have heard her name often over the radio but we surmise that you never guessed that she was a Pittsburgher. Miss Black has played as accompanist to Godfrey Ludlow, Yascha Bunchurk, Doris Niles, Mario Cahl and other musicians heard frequently over WJZ and WEAF. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Flanders, of 6331 Howe street, East Liberty. She graduated from Pittsburgh Musical Institute and Carnegie Tech.

FEATURES PLENTIFUL

When it comes to the other features on the air we don't know where to begin and we believe it would be Washington diplomacy to let the reader do justice to the radio schedule as he sees fit. We wouldn't like to recommend one certain feature and then have you miss another feature on the air at the same time that you might have enjoyed more. You get the point. Fine.

All the sweet things we have told you about in the first few paragraphs are to be found on Pittsburgh station programs tonight.

We will say a few words about programs from stations out of the city.

Gurney E. Newlin, president of the American Bar Association, will speak on "Fundamentals of the Law" over WJZ at 7:30 p. m.

A selection from Verdi's great opera, "Il Travatore," will be played during the Slumber Hour of Music through WJZ, WRC and WHAS at 11 p. m. Other selections include Herbert's "Yesterthoughts" and Klemm's "Love Dreams."

CINCINNATI SYMPHONY

The Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro" will be played as the opening number by the Cincinnati Symphony over WLW at 8 o'clock. Rubinstein's "Melody in F" and Herbert's "March of the Toys" will be other numbers. At 10 p. m. the Cossacks will give "Valse Bluette" and a baritone solo, "Gypsy Love Song." The Variety Hour at 11 will offer an accordion solo, "Wedding of the Winds" and a vocal presentation, "Don't Be Like That."

The Quintile Ensemble composed of harpist, cellist and baritone, will play at 11:30 o'clock over WLW, followed at midnight by Ted Weems' Orchestra.

Penn. Mother Was Guessing

When your child is underweight, pale and listless, is bilious, sallow, feverish, fretful, with bad breath, coated tongue and no appetite, nine times out of ten it's a sure sign his little stomach and bowels are weak.

Don't experiment in cases of this kind. Just follow the example of the millions of mothers who are using California Fig Syrup to regulate their children's stomach and bowels and give tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

Mothers all over Pennsylvania are eager to tell how this rich, fruity, pleasant-tasting preparation clears up the most stubborn cases of constipation and makes pale, lifeless children rosy-cheeked, bright-eyed and full of energy again. Mrs. Catherine B. Garman, 5428 Irving St., Philadelphia, says: "From the very first my little son, Edward, had trouble with his stomach and bowels. It had me guessing until I decided to give him some California Fig Syrup. It stopped his trouble quick, brightened him up, made him eat. Soon he started gaining weight and now he's the picture of health."

See that the Fig Syrup you buy bears the name "California," so you won't be imposed on by imitators.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburgher To Wed on Saturday

HOUSES out along Fifth avenue and over in the Ridge avenue section of the North Side are beginning to take on that familiar "blind" appearance—a sure indication that either midsummer or midwinter has arrived. Drawn shades effectively tell a story of a family departed to seek more comfortable temperatures. And, of course, at this time of year these closed homes mean that the Florida hotels are crowded and winter homes filled with families and their guests, not to mention boatloads of travelers headed for Europe.

But the fact that so many folks have left us doesn't mean, necessarily, that the North is totally inert, socially speaking. There is a little entertaining now and then, and a couple of interesting weddings to add luster to an otherwise dull period. I've just heard about another wedding set for this week which I am sure you will be interested in hearing about, even though it is to take place out of town, since the bridegroom is a local man. This is the marriage of Katharine Whitten, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Charles E. Whitten, of Greensburg, and Charles Chauncey Mellor II, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Burt Mellor, of the D'Arlington Apartments.

The ceremony, I understand, is going to be performed at 5 o'clock on Saturday afternoon in the Westminster Presbyterian Church of Greensburg, and will be followed by a reception in the Greensburg Country Club. I'm not just sure, as yet, whom Katherine is to have for her attendants, but I can tell you that John Beatty, of Pittsburgh, is going to be Mr. Mellor's best man. There will be three ushers, including George C. Calvert, of Elyria, O.; John Veach, of Oil City, and Guy Batchelor, of this city.

Two of the out-of-town guests, I hear, will be Mrs. Mellor's cousins, Mrs. W. S. Terriberry and Mrs. H. R. Bennet, of New York, who will stay with her over the wedding. These two visitors you will be interested to know, are daughters of the late C. S. Reinhart, so well known as an artist, who was born in Pittsburgh.

* * *

WE can't really get away from the fact, though, that the majority of our society group is leaving us to the rigors of winter and making its way to warmer climates. Just this week two of our girls, Ellen McClay, daughter of the Samuel McClays' of Devon road, and Anne King Scott, daughter of the J. King Scotts, of Devon road, are leaving with Mrs. J. Howard McFeely for a three months' cruise on the Mediterranean. They will sail on Thursday, I believe, on the Providence.

And early next month, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Rhodes and their son, George P. Rhodes, Jr., of Wilkins avenue, are going to sail for a Mediterranean cruise.

Among the Sewickleyans who are planning Southern trips are the Frank Scott Willocks and their family, of Academy avenue. They are going to leave within a few days to spend the rest of the winter in Florida. And Mrs. James G. Pontefract, of Shields is planning to leave shortly to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mrs. and Mrs. William S. Charnley, at their winter home in Southern California.

Charles D. Armstrong, of Lexington avenue, has returned home after visiting his son-in-law and daughter, the Andrew B. McClarys, at Windsor, Vt., and Mrs. Armstrong is remaining there for another fortnight I understand. The Armstrongs went East primarily to inspect some improvements being made on their summer home, Indian Knoll, at Osterville, Cape Cod, and later they went on up to Windsor.

* * *

MISS ANN MARIE GOOD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Good, of Darlington road, whose marriage to Wayne Yontz Scofield, of Wooster, O., son of the Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Scofield, of Pulteney, N. Y., will be solemnized February 9 in the Good home, will have Miss Katherine MacClosky for her only attendant. William Post, of Wooster, is to be Mr. Scofield's best man. The ceremony will be performed in the morning by the bridegroom's father.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT L. WICKLINE, of Cedar boulevard, Mt. Lebanon, have returned from Eustis, Fla., where they visited Mrs. Wickline's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Smith, of Aspinwall. They also spent some time in Miami and St. Petersburg before returning home.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS M. JONES, of Woodmont street, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth McCalley, and Raymond F. Gove, of Pittsburgh, formerly of Erie, which was solemnized last Thursday. After a western trip, Mr. and Mrs. Gove will be at home in Beeler street.

* * *

MRS. HARRY S. DAVISON, Mrs. Butler R. Davison and Mrs. John Kraft, all of Beechwood boulevard, will sail Friday on the Rome to spend two months traveling on the continent.

* * *

OWING to the illness of the prospective bridegroom, invitations have been recalled for the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Goettler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Goettler, of Brownsville road, and George Flotzinger, of Pittsburgh, which was set for Thursday.

* * *

THE Pittsburgh Chapter of the Muskingum College Alumni Association will hold its annual banquet March 8 in the Roosevelt Hotel. The Rev. Robert W. Gibson is president of the chapter, with the Rev. R. B. Johnson, secretary; Miss Margaret H. Miller, secretary, and Samuel Weir, treasurer.

* * *

MRS. FRANCIS WORCESTER, Mrs. F. C. Houston, Mrs. R. W. Lindsay and Mrs. J. L. McBride will be hostesses at the luncheon for women members of the Shannopin Country Club and their guests to be held tomorrow afternoon. Bridge will follow the luncheon.

* * *

JAMES LINDSAY, chairman of the University of Pittsburgh junior prom, to be held February 15 in the Hotel Schenley, will be assisted by James Patterson, Viers Adams, Robert C. Taylor, Norman L. Park, Thomas Haddon, Allen Wilkoff, James McCollough, Joseph Donnelly, Glenn Flannery, Miss Gertrude Kromer, Miss Bernice Greer, Richard Kernahan, Miss Anna Louise Semmelrock and Thomas Foster.

20th Century Club To Hear Grand Duke

GRAND Duke Alexandre Michaelovich, brother-in-law and cousin of the former Czar of Russia, will address the Twentieth Century Club next Monday morning. Speaking of the Kellogg multilateral treaty in his current events talk before the club yesterday morning, Dr. William Starr Meyers, of Princeton, referred to the treaty as "a decided gesture for peace and a tremendous step ahead of anything we've done before." "We must come down to actualities if we want peace," Dr. Meyers said. "We must remember that it takes only one to make war, but it takes two to make peace. Why can't we have a little common sense? A dishonest peace is worse than war. Most advocates of peace argue emotionally. Let us have our emotions, our ideals, our sentiment, but no illusions." In his discussion of the cruiser bill, Dr. Meyers declared himself to be in favor, not of disarmament, but of proportionate armament, and remarked: "International diplomacy is a matter of barter and trade and we must have something to trade with." To talk of "outlawing war" is utterly silly, Dr. Meyers said, for that means repudiation of all that has been done in the last 300 years to bring war within the restraints of justice.

* * *

THE Woman's Historical Society laid aside all business yesterday and did honor to its president, Mrs. Jay Turner, giving a luncheon and reception in the Congress of Clubs. The society is unique in that it holds its president's day in midseason, rather than in the fall, as do the majority of clubs. Mrs. H. A. Calderwood was chairman for the day and introduced those who gave the program, Mrs. H. J. Kreiling, who pleased with a group of contralto numbers, and Mrs. C. Ellsworth Parker, with soprano solos, (Mrs. Kreiling's sister, Mrs. Alma Seiffert, accompanying both) and Mrs. Norval R. Daugherty who read. Several visiting presidents were there to felicitate Mrs. Turner, among them Mrs. Carl E. Cosiowsky, of the Congress of Clubs; Mrs. E. H. Bingler, Oakland Women's Club; Mrs. James L. Wible, Bridgeville Woman's Club, and Mrs. T. S. Loring, who represented Mrs. Val E. Schott, of the Crafton Club. The society's own past presidents also were called upon for greetings.

A MUSICALE will be the attraction at the weekly meeting of the College Club, Friday afternoon. Jean McCrory Newman, contralto, will present the program and for the tea which will follow Miss Frances Harper will be chairman of hostesses. Her aides will include Mrs. John D. Evans and Mrs. Frank D. Newbury, who will pour, and Mrs. Nelson Clarke, Miss Gertrude Heard and Mrs. O. F. Opsion. This afternoon the general readers and the drama readers combined their meetings, and during the remainder of the season will continue to meet jointly. Mrs. J. Hartley Anderson reviewed Virginia Wolff's "Orlando." The next meeting of the parental education group, on February 5, will be addressed by Miss Alice Parker, of the Teachers' Training School.

* * *

MLLE. BERTHE LEVY is arranging the program for the "matinee artistique" which the Alliance Francaise will give on Saturday afternoon in the Hotel Schenley. Eighteenth Century French songs will be sung by Mrs. Frank Wertheimer, a one-act French play will be presented by Torrance and Mary Rachel Baker, children of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Forbes Baker, and a monologue will be given by Mlle. Levy, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Lawrence Litchfield.

MISS CORA HELEN COOLIDGE, president of Pennsylvania College for Women, will introduce Ruth Bryan Owen when she lectures in Pittsburgh on February 6 under auspices of the Women's International League for Peace. Miss Coolidge's father and William Jennings Bryan, Mrs. Owen's father, were in Congress at the same time.

* * *

DR. THOMAS D. BAKER, of Carnegie Institute of Technology; Dr. John G. Bowman, of the University of Pittsburgh, and Dean Virginia Gildersleeve, of Bernard College, will be among the speakers at the Delaware-Pennsylvania conference of the American Association of University Women, which will be held in Pittsburgh February 15 and 16. Sessions will be in Margaret Morrison College.

THE Kellogg treaty, some phases of the last election, war debts and Russia were discussed by Dr. William Starr Meyers, of Princeton, before the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club yesterday afternoon.

Sugarless cereal means a fight

A little sweetening does away with an awful lot of trouble

CHILDREN'S meals should not be something to be dreaded. One of the most important of all dieting problems is to get children to eat enough bone-building, health-promoting foods. Ranking among the highest of foods for children are cereals, and yet, as an eminent food authority recently stated it, "Sugarless cereal means a fight."

He went on to advise mothers to make these necessary foods welcome and even looked forward to by the children through intelligent and judicious sweetening. Sugar in itself is the most perfect fuel to furnish energy for active children, and best of all it makes other necessary foods so easily and gladly eaten.

Children should not dread their meals. The wise mother or nurse, by an intelligent use of sugar, can enable children to enjoy all kinds of healthful cereals, fruits, vegetables and milk. Properly sweetened cereals also encourage the child to eat more milk. Sugar is Nature's ideal flavor. The Sugar Institute.

OLD GOLD PAUL WHITEMAN HOUR

© P. Lorillard Co., Est. 1760

Madge Bellamy explains the growing popularity of Old Golds in Hollywood

"The 'hero' in a movie may easily become the 'villain' if he coughs at the wrong time. A cough isn't nice at any time, but when it interrupts the taking of a movie scene, it's a calamity! Re-takes are costly!

"The high tension of movie work makes smoking a vital relaxation. But we relax with OLD GOLDS. They're so smooth ... as smooth as the polished manner of Adolphe Menjou, who himself is an OLD GOLD fan.

"While they're the most enjoyable of cigarettes, OLD GOLDS mean absolute 'fade-out' for throat-scratch and smoker's cough."

BOY DELIVERS MOONSHINE DURING RAID

A 16-year-old boy was arrested by Federal prohibition agents after he is alleged to have entered a store with a basket full of moonshine at 109 South St. Clair street while they were raiding it yesterday.

The boy, Hyman Gettelman, who resides there, walked in with the basket, said to have contained 30 half-pints of moonshine, which the raiders seized. Joe Kaufman, 28, alleged proprietor, and Pauline Kaufman, 60, were taken into custody after liquor had been found in a rear room, agents declared. The three were released on $1,000 bail bonds each.

Twenty-eight pints of moonshine were reported found in the home of Ralph Samuel, 45, at 5715 Mignonette street, when the raiders searched the place. Samuel was arrested.

Antonio Barchak, 48, and Nora Barchak, 41, taken in a raid on a store at 1401 Penn avenue, were released on bonds, according to the agents. A small quantity of moonshine was reported found there.

Reviewers Find Music, Romance, Comedy and Variety on Stage and Screen

'THE THREE MUSKETEERS' ADDS ANOTHER ZIEGFELD HIT TO NIXON SCORE

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

GLITTERING gold and glittering steel, gallant words and gallant blades, loyal hearts and loyal swords, all flying and flashing to some of the best music Rudolph Friml has composed since "The Firefly," kept the audience at the Nixon in a trance last night till nearly half-past-eleven. It was another Ziegfeld revel—but it was a revel that paid due reverence to the immortal romance of Alexandre Dumas, "The Three Musketeers," which was unfolded with but few and unimportant deviations from the stirring pages of the book.

Those were the days when men died for love and dared all dangers to serve King or Queen, Cardinal or France. At least they did so in the chapters of Dumas and the dramas of Hugo. William Anthony McGuire, who made the libretto of this operetta—it deserves that title—has caught and kept this spirit with admirable taste. He has not even violated the plot to make opportunities for the rich clowning of Lester Allen—that is, not very much—just a wee bit—and that so deftly done that it is worthy of all praise.

All praise is merited also by the great fighting scenes he has furnished for D'Artagnan—one showing his escape from the Cardinal's men at the Calais Inn, the other in Milady's bedchamber when he trusses the Comte de la Rochefort with the four-poster as a battleground. Egad, there hasn't been such swordplay since the days of Newton Gotthold and Kyrle Bellew! Dennis King deserved his uniform as a guardsman and the love of his Constance for his brave battles no less than for his brave singing of the ballads that fall to his lot in the scintillant score.

A REAL GASCON THIS!

This Dennis King, you know, really looks like a dangerous Gascon, like a fearless fire-eater and irresistible lover. From the moment when he enters on his perishing nag, well made up to show its protruding ribs, we know that here is the hero of Dumas as Dumas must have seen him. And he does not disappoint in all the adventures that follow, swaggering and swashbuckling his way to England and back in the service of the Queen and in defiance of the Cardinal, whom Reginald Owen played with suave cynicism.

But Dennis King is only one of a very fine singing cast—all three of the Musketeers carry out the illusion of Dumas' romance and meet the exigencies of Friml's score. Detmar Poppen was portly and ferocious as Porthos; Douglas R. Dumbrille caught the pensive courage of Athos; Joseph Macaulay reflected the elegance and light humor of Aramis, and sang "Ma Belle" with fine fervor.

The three women who had the principal roles were no less effective—Vivienne Segal as Constance, Yvonne D'Arle as the Queen, and Ruth Lyons as Milady. They sang well; they looked well; they acted well. That must be said of every one, and of Harriet Hoctor, the American premier danseuse, it must be said that she displayed a terpsichorean technique that would provoke raptures if it came from Paris.

ALL IN PERFECT TUNE

The dancing of the Albertina Rasch Girls was in perfect tune with the atmosphere of the whole production. That is one of the chief merits of this operetta—that it doesn't get lost in modern banalities. There is no cheap comedy or meaningless vaudeville—no Goldfish Ballet from the fountains of Versailles or Butterfly Minuet from the garden of the Tuileries. Somebody has exercised marvelous restraint and discretion.

But on the other hand everything has been done to enhance the romantic atmosphere by every glamour that was permissible. The scenery really catches the charm and glory of old France and old Paris. Everything is fragrant and radiant. There is royal splendor that doesn't look like tinsel. There is color and glow and warmth and rich romance that would have satiated the gorgeous African soul of old Dumas. It is really an achievement on the part of Ziegfeld to have put on this heroic panorama with hardly a false note. And thanks to Dennis King, who looks D'Artagnan, and Rudolph Friml, who has produced some lovely music, it is altogether a thing of joy and esthetic delight.

Girls Frolic In Academy

"Stolen Sweets," Academy Mutual burlesque, employs new runways on which Ethel Clayton and her girls make merry in song and dance above the heads of the audience. Principals and chorus also have their moments on the runway.

Harry Levine and Edith Palmer are co-featured in the show and La Jade, East Indian dancer, is a special attraction. Thelma Lewis, ingenue prima donna and Ruth Le Vine, soubret, also are prominent, as are Artie Lewis, straight man; William J. Johnson, eccentric comedian, and Bosh Leonard, dancing soloist and juvenile.

FRESH CROOK ON PENN SCREEN

"Alias Jimmy Valentine," as O. Henry wrote it, was a delightful little story with one of those adroit human quirks for which Henry was celebrated, that of making a bank robber a hero through the application of his skill to save a child accidentally imprisoned in a safe. As Paul Armstrong adapted it in the play of the same title 20 years ago, it was a successful melodrama marking a beginning of the popularity of crook plays. As William Haines plays it in the present film version, the third to reach the screen, by the way, it is a farce.

William Haines

Haines, it appears, can never be anything but a smart aleck and that is what he makes the cool and steely-nerved crook in his interpretation now on the Penn screen. Yet it has a lot of laughs, many of them caused by Karl Dane and Tully Marshall, completing the crooked trio headed by Haines. John Barrymore is the detective in this film and Lelia Hyams is the small town girl whose charm holds Jimmy in the town where there are many opportunities for "a grasping young man," to quote one of the subtitles. There is some sound and talk, but it is nothing to boast of.

On the stage "A Perfect Girl" revue introduces Helen McFadden, daughter of the famed physical culture advocates, who demonstrates excercises and sings. Joe Penner, comic, is the popular feature of the stage acts, which include songs and dances by a numerous company. The overture and organlogue also are appreciated. Teddy Joyce, as master of ceremonies, was applauded for his specialties.

Aldine Offers Love and War

"True Heaven," a sound picture in the Aldine this week, really has nothing to do with heaven. In fact, most of its action takes place in an atmosphere of war. And you all know what Sherman said about war. Of course, the "heaven" idea comes with the happy ending when the hero and heroine find themselves united in each others arms.

The story has to do with a young British officer and a somewhat mysterious girl. They meet early in the picture, they meet early in the picture and the spark of love is ignited. Later they meet behind the German lines of the World War (or it is some other days), with him the hero as a spy in the service of England and she the heroine as a spy in the service of Germany.

Lois Moran

BETRAYS SWEETHEART

Torn between love of her enemy soldier boy and of love for her country, the girl finally succumbs to duty and betrays him. But the armistice arrives in the nick of time and he is saved from the firing squad.

George O'Brien acts satisfactorily and looks handsome enough both in British and German uniform. Lois Moran loves and gets hysterical in good movie form.

The bill includes Joe E. Brown, stage and screen actor, in a screen talking comedy skit; the Crooners, melody makers, and Francis White, from the musical comedy stage. Movietone news pictures and a film comedy also are on the bill.

Sheridan Has Talkie, Acts

"Red Hot Speed," Reginald Denny's first talking picture, tops the bill in the Sheridan Square the first three days of the week. It is a comedy romance that has to do with a young attorney and a girl who likes to speed along the highways. Alice Day plays the girl. A talking specialty act is presented on the screen the early part of last season, is a hodge podge woven around a little girl who goes into a chorus despite the protests of her sweetheart, is given the leading dancer's part when she becomes ill, makes a hit, goes to Paris and makes a bigger one and then returns famous to home and romance. Crickets, waiter and chef in her mother's restaurant, is prominent in all of the details.

Desiree Leslie, blonde and pretty and a capable dancer, plays the title role with charming grace. Marguerite Ball, another skilled stepper, whose character is that of the leading dancer whose place Mary takes, is featured in a ballet number and other dance specialties. The Webb Sisters, Lorraine and Virginia, also add to the wealth of stepping.

Singing features include George Mayo, cleverly carrying the second comedy role, George Goff, the juvenile, and the Embassy Boys, Barth, Wysong and Williams.

For an evening of fun and novelty you can't go wrong on Ed Wynn and "Manhattan Mary."

Girls Frolic In Academy

"Stolen Sweets," Academy Mutual burlesque, employs new runways on which Ethel Clayton and her girls make merry in song and dance above the heads of the audience. Principals and chorus also have their moments on the runway.

Harry Levine and Edith Palmer are co-featured in the show and La Jade, East Indian dancer, is a special attraction. Thelma Lewis, ingenue prima donna and Ruth Le Vine, soubret, also are prominent, as are Artie Lewis, straight man; William J. Johnson, eccentric comedian, and Bosh Leonard, dancing soloist and juvenile.

Best Remedy for Obstinate Cough Made at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough or chest cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It also promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and at the same time, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in severe bronchial coughs and "flu" coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

DISCIPLES OF ILLUSION SEEN IN FLESH AND SHADOW

Doree Leslie is the charming leading woman with Ed Wynn in "Manhattan Mary," George White musical comedy in Alvin.

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS.

"ED WYNN is the whole show," remarked a patron leaving the Alvin last night following the completion of the performance of George White's combination of musical comedy and revue, "Manhattan Mary." That's dismissing Mr. White's gorgeous and novel production with a shrug of the shoulder, it would seem, but the patron may be excused, because Ed Wynn, who is a whole show in himself, is so much in evidence and dominates the scene so completely when he is on the stage that it really seems as if he does monopolize things pretty much.

Not that it is a bad idea. Not at all. Wynn is so good in this production that he never becomes tiresome, as too much of a good thing is wont to do at times. Crickets, the role this charming fellow plays, is the best thing Wynn has done on the stage.

Ed Wynn

And he does not do it all on the stage either. He comes down and sits with the audience. He gets into the orchestra and directs the musicians for the glittering finale of the first act. And every move he makes and every word he utters is the cause of laughter.

"Manhattan Mary," which has had a long New York run since it originally appeared here in the Nixon by Chic Sales. It is titled "The Star Witness."

The stage vaudeville has Oscar Stanage and his orchestra in a skit, "Music With Variations." Fourteen musicians are featured. Cole Ward and Company present "The Pool Shark," a novel comedy skit. Harrison and Daiken also offer comedy. The Paulson Sisters complete the stage bill. An organlogue and news pictures also are presented.

German War Film in Grand

There is the drama of war being unfolded in the Grand this week. And the faces that march away amidst the flags and the cheers before you are real faces—you have no assurance that they ever come parading safely home again. And the bodies that you see strewn over miles of war frontage have been stilled forever, for the war god and not some knicker-attired gentlemen in Hollywood was behind the "megaphone."

This drama of war is known as 'Behind the German Lines." It is heralded as the official German motion picture of the World War. It presents a panorama of a sort of the highlights of the tragic conflict from beginning to its close—showing news reel glimpses of armies and navies in action and close-ups of the outstanding leaders—such as Woodrow Wilson, the Kaiser, Von Hindenburg and numerous others.

Woodrow Wilson

Sandwiched between all this are quotations from the official records of the German warstaff and moving diagrams that depict the struggles between the contending armies. While most of the action shown takes place on the Western Front, there are episodes of events on the Russian and Italian frontiers. The production is presented with a synchronized musical score and sound effects.

In spite of the title, the picture doesn't really show so much what goes on behind the German lines as what goes on up on these lines. The immediate happenings in Germany that led to the Kaiser's abdication, including the letting down of the morale of the German fighting men, are conspicuous by their omission.

Vitaphone talk acts and news pictures are on the bill.

MARKET KING RUINED IN STANLEY

"The Wolf of Wall Street," photoplay of a stock market king who deliberately ruins himself in the market in order to carry down with him a business associate whom he finds to be the companion of his inconstant wife, gives George Bancroft a good role on the Stanley screen. It is a part that just fits his rugged physique and booming voice, which is employed well in the picture, the closing sequences of which are in dialogue.

Baclanova, talented Russian actress, playing the wife with artistic skill, also is heard, in dialect, of course, which is appropriate as the character is that of a foreign woman. Paul Lukas, also a European actor, has an accent that does not seem to fit the name he bears, Tyler. But he acts his part of a faithless friend capably. Mme. Baclanova's singing voice, of pleasing quality, also is heard in the film. Nancy Carroll and Lane Chandler provide the youthful romantic element in juvenile roles.

On the stage "Dixie Follies" introduces various specialties of song, dance and comedy. There also is a well played overture and vaudeville skits on the screen, visualized and vocalized by Vitaphone.

DENNY FILM IN HARRIS AMUSES

Reginald Denny has brought a speedy comedy romance to the Harris sound screen for three days. It is a real entertainer and is titled "Red Hot Speed." It also serves to present Denny as a talking actor on the screen, having a number of dialogue sequences. All of the talk episodes are very well done.

The plot concerns a young assistant district attorney and a pretty girl speeder who is paroled in his care. The big "kick" is that the girl is the daughter of a newspaper editor who is conducting a drive against reckless and speeding motorists. Naturally, the girl tries to keep her traffic court "invitations" a secret from her father. And this is the fact that leads through a number of clever comedy situations.

Reginald Denny

TALK AND SOUND

The production is as neat a sound and talk comedy as has come to our town. Denny's voice registers well on the screen—also his laugh, which is quite infectious. Alice Day does creditable, vocally and otherwise, as the girl.

The vaudeville portion of the bill is headed by Midget Follies, a revue in about 10 scenes, which is presented by 14 midgets. Other vaudeville acts are Halpin and Denure, in a comedy skit, and Mason and Gwynne.

The sound screen also presents an entertaining specialty act by Chic Sales. It is titled "The Star Witness." News pictures and an organlogue also are offered.

DAVIS MENU IS RICH IN HUMOR

Laughter is the principal ingredient in the vaudeville bill in the Davis Theater this week, at least four of the nine acts being comedy, and fast comedy. Robert Emmett Keane and Claire Whitney have a sketch called "Room 909," which is witty and well-acted—another welcome step toward the revival of the one-act playlet in high-class vaudeville. Jack Anthony and Bill Howland give a very funny Italian and Irish dialogue, in which a divorce becomes a "transfer" and a "root haircut" turns out to be a shingle. Roy Rogers in a drunken scene, called "Show Me the Way Home," extracts a lot of amusement out of Prohibition, which he says is better than no booze at all. And Stan Stanley, down in the audience, keeps everybody laughing by his interruptions of Julia Keller on the stage.

MRS. CHAPLIN IS LIKED

The head-liner of the program is Lita Grey Chaplin, former wife of the sad-faced Charlie. Assisted by two pianists, she sings four sentimental ballads. She has a sympathetic voice and a pleasing personality, and the audience received her with much cordiality.

Most remarkable of all the acts is that of the Nine Allisons, who are extraordinary vaulters and tumblers—some of their breakneck stunts seem almost incredible, and they have a continuous accompaniment of applause while they are on the stage.

Delightful also is the Tiny Town Revue, in which a well-trained group of little people display dancing skill and singing charm in a way that captivates the audience. The Spanish dancing of the Del Ortos, which concludes the bill, is well done, but marred by the hoax at the close.

Spooky House Enright Film

"The Haunted House," a picture of mystery and comedy, is the current photoplay in the Enright. The house is a cobwebby, spooky affair, perched high on a cliff by the sea. And it is overrun by a queer assortment of characters, who peer through picture frames and who appear at the least expected moments. All of the action centers around a search for a hidden treasure—the search being the outgrowth of an attempt to poison a nice elderly gentleman in the opening sequence of the drama.

All the while the hunt for the valuables is unfolding before your eyes, the sound screen gives forth weird, swishing sounds of a dubious nature. Chester Conklin tops the cast and brings in the comedy relief. Other players are Thelma Todd, Flora Finch, Montagu Love and William V. Mong.

There's an entertaining stage show, too. Ann La Verne and Ronald Fayles, assisted by two or three other players, do some neat dancing. Comedy boys, Winfred and Mills, amuse with Chinese atmosphere and Negro dialect. Vitaphone acts and Movietone News are other features.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

Nothing to Do 'Till Tomorrow!

ALL that remains to make this life one long day of rest is for somebody to discover a way for us to get our vitamins without bothering to eat the spinach and the liver.

* * *

Otherwise, modern life is SO EASY that we are getting soft. And restless!

* * *

We touch a button—and lo, there is light! We turn a knob—and behold, there is tropical heat!

HELEN ROWLAND

* * *

We do our housekeeping by pressing a series of buttons, and our cooking with imagination and a can-opener.

* * *

What with flivvers and taxicabs and airplanes, we should never WALK anywhere, if we did not invent little excuses such as chasing a golfball. All our heavy exercising is done with an electrical belt.

* * *

We do not even have to use our memories. Because, if we forget anything like a clean hanky or our face powder or our umbrella, there is always a little slot-machine handy, where we can push in a coin and pull out the forgotten article.

* * *

We get our religion and our musical education, pleasantly canned to taste, over the radio. We never have to get up on a rainy Sunday morning and trudge to church. Salvation comes to US over the air!

* * *

And as for pain, we never suffer it! We take our castor oil in sarsaparilla and it is a positive pleasure to have a TOOTH pulled by a modern dentist!

* * *

Even dying is made easy and cheerful with opiates, and an up-to-date undertaker can make your funeral look as gay and attractive as a pink tea.

* * *

All the bothersome details of office work are taken off a man's shoulders by soft-footed stenographers, who do everything for him, from his Christmas shopping to thinking up his alibis, remembering his appointments and bracing up his English. Nothing to do 'til tomorrow—and nothing much then!

* * *

Is it any wonder that women are getting restless and bored, and men are becoming rovers and adventurers? Is it any wonder that young men are rushing off to the North and South Poles and flying the ocean just for a new thrill for excitement?

* * *

Is it any wonder that husbands are becoming Casanovas and wives are becoming neurotics? We've GOT to have something on which to exercise our imagination and expend our pent-up energies and emotions.

* * *

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Protect Your Baby When "Flu" Threatens.

ON the morning of the day I write this I visited the children's pavilion of a great hospital. I happened to run into an old friend who has charge of the babies. It always does me good to meet this great doctor. He is enthusiastic over his work and devoted to the cause of humanity. Sometimes he is spoken of as "the doctor of doctors" because he is called so frequently to see patients in doctors' families.

DR. COPELAND

I started to tell you of one little patient I saw in the hospital. This little youngster is only 22 months old, but my doctor friend carried the child through a terrific attack of pneumonia. The clinical chart showed the temperature actually reached more than 107 degrees.

It is very rare indeed for the fever to reach any such point. I recall a patient I saw soon after the Spanish War, when the temperature went even higher than this. But that occurred in a man of naturally strong and vigorous body, who could withstand such an experience.

The ailment of the baby I am talking about started with a mild attack of influenza. As a matter of fact, the danger of influenza is in the secondary involvement of the lungs. Uncomplicated influenza is not serious. But when the lungs are attacked then there is trouble.

Many a baby has become the victim of pneumonia as a result of a common cold. Babies do not resist colds as grown people do. An ailment which is of no particular importance to an adult may be serious indeed if it attacks an infant.

The respiratory diseases are the most serious disturbances that babies have. They are responsible for most of the fatalities among infants.

I am telling you all this with one purpose in mind. I beg of you to guard your baby against infections of the nose and throat. What we speak of as "just a cold" may be nothing more to a grown-up, but to the baby a cold is a serious matter.

Don't forget that the common cold must be regarded as an infectious or contagious disease. It may be of so mild a type in the adult as hardly to have any effect upon another adult. But when the germs of the same cold are passed to a weak little baby there may be serious results.

Guard your infant against contact with persons who have colds. If you have a cold, take every precaution against passing it on to the baby. Bear in mind that the moist secretions of the nose and throat of a person with a cold are capable of carrying the disease to the baby.

For the Lovelorn

Wondering

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am an interested reader of the Lovelorn column, and now I am coming to you for advice. I am a girl in my teens and a freshman, and the boy I go with was a freshman, but he flunked, so he ran off. He told me he was going, but didn't tell his mother. He also told my mother. Miss Gale, he would tell me he loved me every time he saw me, but how do I know he isn't out with some other girl now? All his boy friends tell me how much he thinks of me. I have been trying to forget, and also trying to get in with another boy. How can I? He wrote me a note not so long ago and told me he loved me, but since I went with this other boy he doesn't attempt to speak, but he watches me all the time. How can I get in with him? Good luck,

WONDERING.

It is extremely selfish in this boy to want you to seclude yourself and have no other friends for his sake. You are both much too young to confine your interests to each other. Have other friends and try to forget a boy so weak that he couldn't face flunking.

EVER CHANGING YOUTH -:- -:-

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

WHAT'S the fascination of Youth? What a question! Just as though everyone in the world didn't know that it's the infinite variety of youth that appeals.

Isn't there a quotation somewhere about "Age cannot wither nor custom stale her infinite variety?" I'm not so sure of the words, but it's something to that effect.

Two years ago we thought the seal-haired girl the last word in youth and loveliness. With her swinging stride and emulation of all her brother's tricks and mannerisms, and, yes, appearance, she was truly Modern Youth—of the day. Then along came 1928 and brought a girl, still athletic, still youthful, but a bit more feminine. The trend seemed to be back to Grandmother's time. Skirts were longer and wider, hair more softly curled and everything about her seemed to be more the cuddly kitten type. And now comes 1929. What's she going to be this year? The stylists tell us that Femininity is THE thing. Curls and laces and flounces and ribbons and softness are all that matter this season.

But—does it really matter? Youth is ever Youth, and none can deny the charm and appeal which Youth, however sophisticated, has for us all.

And in the eyes of Love nothing matters but the loved one. Whether she be curls and frills or boyish bob and clothes like Brother's, she's THE girl for all time, any time, every time. Youth, the evanescent, lovely thing that we all strive to keep; the will-o'-the-wisp that eludes us all, excepting where the heart is concerned.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Marion Accepts Her Stepfather's Peace Offering.

AS Dicky made his flamboyant announcement that the luxurious motor standing by the curb was the "new family car of the Underwoods," I heard Marion catch her breath, and looking quickly at her saw that her face had again darkened with the jealousy of her stepfather which was so shadowing her mother's life and her own.

I had only a second's opportunity. Harry Underwood with the expression of a boy who has bought his first Christmas present for a girl, was gazing at his wife's face which for the instant was turned away from her daughter and toward the new car. I did not care what Dicky or Mary saw or heard, and I caught Marion's hand in mine and pressed it warningly.

"Don't spoil your mother's pleasure in this," I whispered.

She threw up her head angrily, as might a colt pricked by the spur, and her eyes as they met were hard, unyielding. But she is too sound at heart for real meanness or rancor, and the next instant her eyes softened into misty contrition and she returned the pressure of my hand.

"I'll be good," she whispered, and I released her hand just as Lillian, after an agitated ejaculation of "Harry!" which voiced a whole gamut of emotions, turned to her daughter.

"Marion! Look! Isn't this wonderful?"

I saw the girl square her shoulders as she went forward toward the car, and guessed that she was nerving herself to praise it as she would have prepared for the drawing of a tooth. But it is not in the nature of any girl or boy to resist the lure of a smart motor car, and I heard genuine admiration in her voice as she put her hand on the hood.

"It sure is the spiffiest thing—and—see—Mary—it's a——" naming a high-powered car, by no means even middle class in price. "It ought to go."

"She'll go, all right," Mr. Underwood put in with excited emphasis. "Of course she's not this year's model—I'm not in the millionaire ranks yet, but she's last year's and she's only been run enough to break her in nicely. And I got the greatest bargain on her, Lil—this so you won't be worrying about the sheriff on my trail."

"That's a great relief," his wife told him with dancing eyes, but I guessed there was more than a soupcon of truth in the words. Harry Underwood never had been noted for his ability to save money although he could earn any amount of it, and though not a wastrel, he was an extravagant spender. But there was something about the statement he just had made to his wife which carried the conviction that he not only had spoken the truth, but that the purchase of the car had been a carefully-thought-out thing with but very little thought of his own pleasure entering into it.

"I'm glad you like it, Marion," he went on. "I've planned it ever since I got free of the bandages, but I was afraid I wasn't going to be able to pull it off before you went back to school. You'll need it to get all your traps down there if I'm any judge."

Marion started violently, and I guessed that she was torn between her reluctance to accept any favor at the hands of her stepfather and the alluring prospect of returning to school by a smart motor car instead of by train. Mary, whether intentionally or not, gave her an opportunity of pulling herself together by exclaiming excitedly:

"Oh, boy, aren't you the lucky girl, Marion. Just think of driving up to the front door of your school in that! I'll bet there won't be a spiffier car in the whole yard and mighty few that come anywhere near it."

Marion took a deep breath and looked at her stepfather squarely.

"It's wonderful," she said tremulously, "and—and—I'm very much obliged to you for thinking of me. I'll love to go back to school in this."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, January 30

ALTHOUGH the affairs of this day may be very lively and under high stimulus, according to the ruling position of Mars trine Luna, yet there is sign of a mentally morbid or melancholy outlook which may be responsible for precipitating an unreasonable situation or an ill-advised change. This is the general complexion of feminine or domestic affairs, which should be held under rational control if the presaged activities are to be turned to good account. Flighty or gloomy judgments spell disaster.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a very active year, with good opportunities for initiative and enterprise, but a tumultuous judgment and an unwholesome or sordid outlook may inspire to sudden and undesirable changes. With sound judgment and controlled action there may be many advantages.

A child born on this day may be active, aggressive and enterprising, but a distorted personal outlook may bring unhappiness and defeat.

Do not worry about the future. You will meet it, if need be, with the same reason you now employ in your present affairs.—Marcus Aurelius.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Bad Form

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

In announcing the marriage of her daughter, which is proper?

Mrs. John Brown or Mrs. Mary Brown?

The father and mother are divorced and the father has remarried. A. W.

MRS. JOHN BROWN is a form that is not correct for a divorced woman to use, and especially in this case, when the husband has remarried. The form of Mrs. Mary Brown is sometimes used by divorced women, but to me it is not dignified, and is never used by people "in society." The best form for the name of a divorced woman is the use of the last name of her maiden name prefixed to the last name of her husband's name:

Mrs. Worthington Brown.

Choosing Guests

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it good form for a woman to ask a divorced man up to her home for dinner, when he is a friend of both husband and wife? My husband thinks it shows poor taste. What do you think?

READER.

IF the invitation is extended by the wife as the hostess of the home, and if the husband is to be present at the dinner, I cannot see why in the world it should be considered poor taste.

DON'T LET YOUR HANDS GET OLD!

... preserves the satiny suppleness and texture of youth ... Instantly whitens hands.

Society Hands—playing gracefully over the tea things, lighting a cigarette, dealing out cards. Thinc keeps them smooth and cool as ivory, accents their smart perfection.

HANDS UP! Let's look at them! Do they give away your age—even make you appear older than you are? That's a trick hands have unless you watch them carefully.

The famous "youthful grandmothers" of stage and society say that their hardest struggle to keep young-looking is with their hands. Nowhere does age so quickly betray itself as in their suppleness and texture.

Look at your own hands! Do they look like the supple, milk-white hands of a debutante? Or do they show at a glance how busy they are at housekeeping and office tasks? Are they work-scarred, red and rough? Traced with tiny grimy lines that soap and water simply won't remove? Prematurely old-looking?

Never mind. No matter how much you use them—no matter how unsightly they may be now—you can make them as exquisitely white and soft as if you kept them demurely folded in your lap!

New Beauty for Your Hands in 2 minutes!

An amazing new kind of cream will do for your hands—in two minutes—what expensive massage and rejuvenation treatments do for your complexion. A two-minute test with THINC Hand Creme (pronounced "think"), as this marvelous cream is called, will prove your hands naturally white and youthful. Consistent use of THINC will keep them that way.

Instantly THINC banishes any dryness or irritation—smoothes away every bit of roughness—blanches—beautifies. It's like a touch of magic, bringing your hands new loveliness while you wait! No wiping it off, for it leaves no trace of greasiness. No waiting for it to dry, for it is instantly absorbed. THINC makes your hands as smooth and cool and white as alabaster!

Efficient Office Hands—deftly typing, handling smudgy carbons, sorting through dusty files all day—and paying for it with a tracery of fine grimy lines. With THINC to protect them, your hands can be always attractive.

Trade and Universal Marks Registered U.S. Patent Office and Principal Countries of the World

THINC Hand Creme is unique. It is not a cold cream, vanishing cream or lotion, but a wholly new preparation especially designed to preserve the precious beauty of your hands. It has the unqualified endorsement of Good Housekeeping

Note the Instantaneous Improvement

Try this simple two-minute test before you go to bed tonight; smooth a bit of THINC on one hand and then compare that hand with the other. You can plainly see the instant whitening, the astonishing improvement. Leave the dainty cream on your hands all night and see what a difference there is in the morning. Depend upon THINC always to preserve the charm and youth.

Get THINC Hand Creme at any drug store, toilet counter or beauty shop and make the two-minute test tonight. Money back if not completely delighted.

RECIPE TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

You Can Make a Better Gray Hair Remedy Than You Can Buy.

Gray, streaked or faded hair is not only unbecoming, but unnecessary.

Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or the druggist will put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is easy to use, does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

ANTI-NOISE BILL AMENDED

Council has received amended ordinances prohibiting calliopes "or other musical instruments" from using streets and also barring radio loud speakers so located in store windows and doors that they disturb pedestrians.

The loud speaker prohibition would not apply to the broadcasting of international, national or state events of public interest. Violators of either measure would be liable to a fine of $50 or 30 days in jail. Council received a letter yesterday from the Chamber of Commerce indorsing both ordinances.

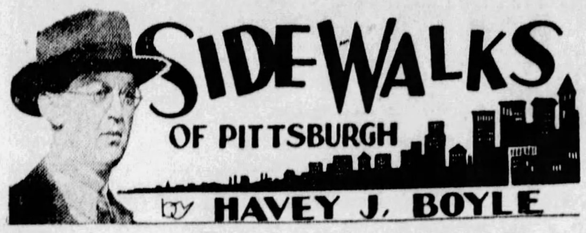
Council Gets West Carson Street Plans

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH



by HAVEY J. BOYLE

YOU have heard about the telegrapher who stuck to his post, dashing and dotting the words that tell relief parties that the railroad station is aflame. About the doughty telephone girl who up to the last minute keeps buzzing for needed relief as the waters rush down from the reservoir. Of the singer who sings how gay and happy he is, although he has just staggered from his dressing room crumpling the news that little Pasquale is running a high fever. Well, how about the columnist, who true to tradition and to his trust, passes up a dandy bridge game to address a young ladies' club? The world is filled with such sacrifices—but how would we ever learn about them if columnists didn't recite them?

* * *

Addressing a ladies' club is a novel experience. Imagine having a group of the fair sex sitting around silently while a mere man is given the floor and allowed to speak his lines. It is so different from the usual order. (Cries of "Hear, Hear," from the men.) It is so refreshing to be able to have one's say without hearing a female voice say: "Oswald, I wish you would quit speaking while I'm interrupting you."

* * *

THIS addressing women's club must be a pretty good racket. A lady from McKeesport called me up and asked me to address a McKeesport club. At first she wouldn't take no for an answer, but later on she wisely conceded I must be right.

"What do you charge," she asked. I wondered how long this had been going on. "I'm an amateur," I said, "and I don't take money. In times past, however, the ladies have got together and knit some socks." "And what do you speak on?" the lady asked. "My favorite speech is one that gives a comprehensive history of a volunteer fire company."

An hour later the lady called and showed real discernment. After all, the club had heard a newspaperman last year. And thus I lost another engagement.

* * *

I never accepted an invitation to speak without much protest and without a few warnings, but it's remarkable how many people must be actually convinced before they believe a man who says (a) he's a poor talker and (b) he has nothing in particular to say.

In making a talk I always feel like the young clergyman, who, believing he had made a great hit, was recounting this impression to an elder. Said the elder: "Young man, remember this: If you said anything good it was said thousands and thousands of times before you were ever born. If it was never said thousands and thousands of times before rest assured it was no good."

* * *

PERHAPS, dear readers, (if you both are listening) you'll think that my office is cluttered up with committees begging me to give them just a few moments. Be disillusioned. In a fairly long career I have been asked to speak but 10 or 12 times. That fact should be great assurance to everyone. After all, the public is to be trusted.

* * *

But I have my weaknesses and they are letters like this one, just received, and photostatic copy of which will be produced for any doubting Thomases:

"I have never written to you before, nor to any other newspaper columnist for that matter, but I have enjoyed your writings both as a peerer through the sport lens and in your present capacity so much I honestly believe it is due you as a column conductor to know what your readers think of your work. No, I'm not selling anything and I don't want tickets for anything. No suggestions, either, as to how you should run your column. . . . That's all, brother, (I'm an ex-volunteer fireman myself). I just wanted to send a ray of sunshine in this flu-ridden world."

* * *

AND, having accepted that boquet, I'll be on guard for the gentlemen with a paddle. I never received a compliment that I didn't make ready to duck the brick. "Life is that way, isn't it?" as characters in drawing room plays always ask somewhat fatuously.

ANNEXATION ASKED BY MIFFLIN

Council has received a petition from property owners asking the city to consent to the annexation of a section of Mifflin Township adjoining the portion of Hays Borough which recently was added to Pittsburgh.

The petition has 1,438 signers, said to represent 60 per cent of the taxables of the territory to be annexed. The principal area in the section seeking annexation comprises the McElhinney heirs' plan of lots, the Calhoun Park plan and the Lincoln Place plan.

2 ROADS ASKED BY WEST VIEW

The West View Board of Trade last night passed resolutions urging two major highway improvements in the district.

One calls upon the state and county authorities to widen to 30 feet and to improve the Perry highway between the city line and the Five Mile House to connect up with the improved portion of the same highway.

The other asks that the county improve Lowrie Run road extension from the Perry highway to Babcock boulevard, a distance of about a mile.

NEW EAST END PARKING RULES

Council has received from Safety Director James M. Clark an ordinance establishing additional restrictions to automobile parking in the East End district.

The measure prohibits parking on both sides of Penn avenue from Center avenue to Shady avenue between 4:30 and 6 p. m. and on both sides of Center from Shakespeare street to Penn avenue between 4:30 and 6 p. m. The ordinance also prohibits parking on both sides of Fifty-fourth street between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m.

GIFT OF $10,000 MADE TO FOSTER MEMORIAL

A gift of $10,000 has been made to the Stephen C. Foster memorial building fund, it was announced at a dinner of the advance gifts committee last night in the University Club. This first donation was made by Oliver S. Hershman in the name of his wife.

It is planned to erect a building near the Cathedral of Learning in Oakland and every cent donated to the fund will go directly into the building. The land already has been donated by the University of Pittsburgh and the university has also agreed to maintain the structure.

The speakers last night were Mrs. Will Earhart and George R. Wallace. E. T. Whiter, chairman of the building fund executive committee, who introduced the speakers, turned the meeting over to Frederic Schafer, chairman of the advanced gifts group. Other speakers were A. L. Humphrey, Councilman Robert Garland, Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent of city schools; T. P. Gaylor, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. Arthur B. Siviter and Mrs. T. C. Donovan.

Pastor Placed in Mental Hospital After Wild Ride

BERKELEY SPRINGS, W. Va., Jan. 29.—After a wild ride in which his automobile plunged over an embankment, the Rev. J. C. Bright, United Brethren supply pastor for Sleepy Creek and other circuit points, was committed to the state hospital by a mental hygiene commission.

He was uninjured in the plunge, which occurred Saturday night after he had concluded a week's series of evangelistic meetings at Indian Springs.

7 HURT IN TWO CRASHES

Two grade crossing accidents in McKeesport within a half hour of one another caused injuries to seven persons last night. Five of the injured are in the McKeesport Hospital in serious condition.

An automobile carrying Mrs. Nellie McKown, Mary McKown, Mrs. Anna McKown, Irene Kavanaugh, Mrs. Lena Kavanaugh and Charles Steddard, all of Elizabeth, was demolished when hit by a freight train on the Eighth avenue crossing of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Steddard, who was driving, escaped with cuts and bruises, but the women were all injured seriously.

A short time later Claude P. Shaw, 30, of McKeesport, was cut and bruised when his machine was struck by a shifting engine on the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad tracks at Fourth avenue and Market street. The machine was dragged for 50 feet before it turned over. Shaw escaped with cuts and bruises.

COUNCIL ACTS ON SCHOOL

Harry A. Little stirred up a hornet's nest in City Council yesterday by offering a resolution calling upon the Board of Public Education to tear down Allegheny High School Building in response to recent appeals from pupils for a new structure.

The resolution said many of the old school buildings in the city "may be classified as old and inadequate," and referred to a recent inspection by the Fire Bureau as proving that Allegheny High was not modern or adequate.

The measure authorized the Fire Bureau to inspect, immediately, all school buildings.

Discussion of the resolution hinged on a question of putting to a vote a motion to adopt the measure and an alternate motion to send it to committee for pruning. The latter carried.

The majority of Council believed the resolution "too drastic" and urged caution in condemning any school building. A warning was sounded to avoid alarming parents by making Allegheny High appear unsafe.

FOUR LANES OF TRAFFIC SOUGHT

The City Planning Commission has submitted to Council plans for the improvement of West Carson street, from Smithfield street to Chartiers Creek, McKees Rocks.

The improvement was urged in a letter forwarded recently to Council by J. B. Yohe, vice president of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad Company. He stated the company was delaying terminal extensions running into millions of dollars until the city reached a decision on the street project.

Under the commission's plan the first step would be the repaving of Carson street so as to provide a four-vehicular lane artery from Steuben street to McKees Rocks. The proposal would include the rebuilding of the West Side Belt Railroad Bridge spanning the street near Steuben street.

The Point Bridge south approach would be so constructed that westbound traffic on Carson street may pass under the south approach, while east-bound traffic will pass on the level of the approach.

Later steps provide for a two-level thoroughfare from Smithfield street to a point near Monongahela Incline, where the overhead highway will descend to the street level.

WILKINSBURG'S PAYROLL RISES

Wilkinsburg council went on a spending spree last night and, after approving the 1929 budget of $472,498.75, voted to raise the salary of every borough employe, save those of titled or elective offices. Police and firemen, clerks, borough engineers and street cleaners were among those to benefit by the raises.

The biggest raise went to Charles Sperling, borough engineer. A $1,200-a-year increase was voted him, boosting his annual salary to $4,800. While Council voted to raise the pay of police and firemen, the demand for more men for the two departments was not considered.

The chiefs of the police and fire departments received increases of $25 a month. The lieutenants got $10 a month more, and the firemen and patrolmen $6.50.

Council also approved the new tax rate of 11.5 mills. This is a half-mill reduction from the rate of 1928.

U. S. POLES AID EXHIBIT

Approximately 5,000 members of the Polish National Alliance will attend and exhibit at the Polish National Exposition which will open May 15 at Posan, Poland, according to Attorney C. W. Sypnieuski, of 436 Diamand street, censor for the Alliance, who returned from Europe last Friday. Attorney Sypnieuski was in charge of arrangements for the construction of the pavilion which will house the American and other foreign exhibits. The exposition is expected to spur industry and commerce in the new republic.

Fitch Way Paving Being Protested

Council has received numerous protests against passage of a pending ordinance authorizing the grading, paving and curbing of Pitch way between Glenarm avenue and Flatbush avenue. Among the objectors are J. H. Doke and Charles E. Showalter, 920 Bellaire avenue.

ROSS TOWNSHIP TAX 4 MILLS

The 1929 tax levy for Ross Township was fixed at 4 mills by the board of township commissioners last night, an increase of half a mill over last year. This is believed one of the lowest tax rates in the county for suburban territory.

The millage will provide about $45,000 for all expenditures for the current year, and will carry the fixed charges on an improvement bond issue of $63,000 voted last summer.

The first public meeting to consider the proposed zoning ordinance will be held tomorrow night in the Perrysville school. Attorney John E. Winner, who drafted the measure, and members of the zoning board will be present to explain its provisions.

Carnegie Fire Chief Lacks Auto License

Chief Orin Baux, of the Carnegie Fire Department, who has been driving one of the borough fire trucks for 12 years, has not had a driver's license for at least three years, it was announced last night. Baux consequently was ordered not to drive any of the fire trucks. Ralph D. Hoffman, of the police and fire committee, gave out the order. Baux admitted he did not possess a license, but said he had made application for one Friday night.

ASK TAXES BE EXONERATED

Council has received a resolution authorizing the city solicitor to authorize an exoneration of 1929 taxes on property sold by the Mary E. Schenley estate to the city, to provide parking area banking Bigelow boulevard. Council authorized purchase of the property for $26,915.83, but the transfer was not completed until after the assessors had placed the tax charge against the Schenley estate.

Taxpayers of Hays May Get More Time

The Councilmanic Finance Committee will consider today a resolution submitted by City Treasurer Wallace Borland authorizing an extension of the period in which discount may be allowed on tax payments from Hays Borough from December 21 to February 1.

It has been the practice to begin collecting city taxes January 1 and to give a discount for all payments made during the first month. However, Hays Borough was only recently annexed to Pittsburgh and the preparation of tax bills delayed collections until January 21. Borland proposes to give taxpayers there the discount privilege for a full month.

Accused Munhall Policeman Is Fired

Accused of neglect of duty, Patrolman Warren W. Davis, of Munhall, was fired from the borough force by members of the police committee at a special meeting yesterday. Davis, assigned to special duty, deserted his post and during his absence thieves broke into one of several buildings he had been ordered to guard, according to Councilman W. W. Peck.

A resolution authorizing payment of $115.12 in addition to the $500 previously granted to the Ladies' Auxiliaries, Veterans of Foreign Wars, for the expenses of their conference last month will be considered today by Council.

Steel Plant Surgeon Safety Meet Speaker

More than 1,500 men and women, representing 75 industrial companies, were present last night at a rally of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council in Moose Temple. Dr. J. W. Colcord, plant surgeon of the Clairton works of the Carnegie Steel Company, told the audience that periodical physical examination of employes has proved mutually beneficial to employer and employe.

Heber McDowell, of the Booth & Flinn organization, also spoke and George H. McLain, safety director of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, presided.

NEW NORTH SIDE POLICE, FIRE STATION PROPOSED

Council has received from Harry A. Little a resolution calling for prompt action on the construction of the proposed combination police and fire station for the North Side.

A companion measure points out that the present fire headquarters on the North Side has been the scene of frequent fires, some of which threatened the expensive apparatus with which the building is equipped.

NEWSBOYS IN CORAOPOLIS LOYAL TO SUN-TELEGRAPH

The 19 boys who handle the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in Coraopolis—and the Sun-Telegraph alone, of the Pittsburgh evening and Sunday papers—all received letters proposing that they drop the Sun-Telegraph and handle another paper instead. Every boy refused.

The boys receive their papers at T. C. O'Donovan's news stand, 406 Mill street. They are satisfied with the profits they make handling the Sun-Telegraph and with the treatment received from Mr. O'Donovan.

Mr. O'Donovan has conducted the news stand for 22 years, and during that period has seen many of his newsboys grow up and advance into positions of prominence. One of his former newsies is Luby DiMeolo, captain of the University of Pittsburgh's football team. Another is a prosperous dentist. A third received $500 as a Christmas bonus from his employers last month. It has been said that a list of O'Donovan's former newsies would serve as a "Who's Who" of Coraopolis.

The boys handling the Sun-Telegraph under Mr. ODonovan's direction feel they need no other "protection." He has started bank accounts for the youngsters and helped them in other ways. Some of his boys have handled papers for as long as six years, and he has had as many as three boys of the same family working for him.

One of the Sun-Telegraph boys in Coraopolis, Robert Ashville, 15, a Negro, of 104 Main street, makes $8 a week. He deposits it in a savings account.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.

Just had a long visit and lunch with Ambassador Morrow. He is tickled to get back to Mexico, as he feels that there is where he can do the most good to his country. He told me of many helpful changes going on there now.

Coolidge will have no brighter accomplishment to look back on than in his judgment of sending Morrow to that post, for after all, peace and good will with your neighbor is a nation's greatest recommendation. You show me a man that gets on fine with his neighbors (no matter how often he beats his wife), and he must be a man with some good in him (if it's even just good judgment.)

Yours, WILL.

WHO'S GUILTY???

CAN YOU SOLVE THIS DETECTIVE STORY?

Mr. Southeby's Great Day

By Evelyn Johnson and Gretta Palmer

Mrs. Quail looked up nervously from her bridge game.

"Those ruffians playing poker," she said glancing angrily over to the far corner of the smoking room, "they're been drunk during the whole crossing."

"So disagreeable," said Mr. Southeby.

There was a crash as the glasses were swept to the floor, and a confused uproar as the drunk lunged at Moody and Moody struck back viciously.

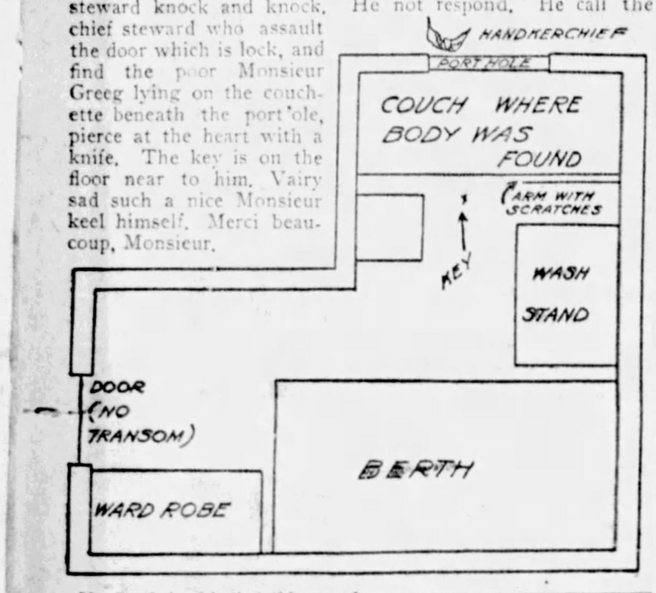
The nice gentlemen playing bridge and drinking liqueurs pushed back their chairs and shouted for the steward or requested their wives to be calm in loud hysterical voices. Several ladies screamed. Little Albert rushed in from his pantry muttering, "Quelles crapules. C'est ignoble!"

Griggs and Moody were separated before any damage had occurred except a large, ugly bruise over one of Moody's cold gray eyes. Most of the passengers retired, however, and the incident made a very nasty impression.

* * *

Next day, an ominous rumor went around. Mr. Griggs, averred Mr. Southeby who sat at the captain's table, had been found dead in his cabin. Very few people felt like playing deck tennis that morning.

Mr. Southeby, who prided himself on being always well-informed, presented Griggs' steward with a $10 bill, and the steward became loquacious. Monsieur Greeg have gone to the bed at 11. He alway' have the bath at 9. The bath steward knock and knock. He not respond. He call the chief steward who assault the door which is lock, and find the poor Monsieur Greeg lying on the couchette beneath the port'ole, pierce at the heart with a knife. The key is on the floor near to him. Vairy sad such a nice Monsieur keel himself. Merci beaucoup, Monsieur.



Mr. Southeby felt that this was a big day for him already. But when the captain took him aside and asked him to make certain inquiries, he wouldn't have changed places with old Mr. Schultz, who had a $15,000,000 tin-foil business.

MR. SOUTHEBY could have been observed buzzing happily about among the more discreet passengers. "The captain felt I should do this," he would say with a modest smile. "There has been a little unpleasantness and it is important to know where Mr. Moody was after 11 o'clock." But he hugged to his bosom the thrilling information that the authorities were dubious about Griggs having committed suicide, since he had a perfectly good Colt in his drawer and had no need to end his days with the unpleasant-looking knife found in his bosom. Mr. White, Griggs' buddy and traveling companion, had never seen anything remotely resembling that knife in Mr. Griggs' possession.

There were also some unaccountable scratches on the arm of the couch where the body had been found, and most curious of all, one of Griggs' own pocket handkerchiefs was knotted to the open window of the porthole. If it was suicide, as they had first supposed, there were some very strange features involved. The steward had seen Griggs go into his cabin at exactly 11, hence the interest in the vindictive Mr. Moody's movements after that hour.

Mr. Southeby drew a blank in his quest. Several passengers had seen Moody on the promenade deck at various times between 11 and 2, and he had then gone to sleep in a deck chair, in a well-lighted spot, for the rest of the night.

THE captain had nothing to report. He had interviewed the crew. A steward had seen Moody enter a men's washroom near Griggs' cabin around 11, but Moody's own cabin was on that same deck, the one under the promenade deck. Only one person on the big liner had observed anything suspicious in Moody's demeanor. The radio operator had left the radio room for a few minutes that evening and upon returning had seen Moody sneaking out of his place of business. This seemed merely odd, nothing more.

As the captain said, the door being locked from the inside seemed to settle the matter, as there were no duplicate keys except the one Griggs' steward had on his person, and as there was no crack under the door to shove the key through. And besides, the porthole did not open on any deck. It was an odd affair, said the captain.

BUT Mr. Southeby was able to feel that his day had not been in vain after all. As he afterwards told his friends in Stamford, "I never liked that Moody from the first day out when he refused to play shuffle-board with Eloise, and the poor girl was trying so hard to reduce. I can scarcely regret that he met his deserved punishment. It was pretty baffling for a while. Did I ever tell you how—"

How did Moody manage to murder Griggs under the circumstances?

Solution of Yesterday's Mystery Story: "The Vanishing Napoleon"

Emil Borco had been planning to disappear for some time. He was the mysterious buyer who had sold such quantities of stock short, and with the help of his mechanic he had contrived an arrangement that would enable him to disappear during this trip. He had made a trap-door in the floor of the lavatory of the Lockheed-Vega where there was room in the compartment beneath for a man to hide. It was the belief of the chief mechanic that Borco intended to hide in the plane and make his get-away after the landing when every one else had left the ship. But Borco had a far neater idea, although it might not have appealed to the mechanic. This unlucky man was of about Borco's build. Nothing was simpler than to poison the wine brought to the mechanic on the afternoon before the flight. Since every one expected his vacation to commence the night before the hop-off, his disappearance caused no comment. Borco hid the body in the compartment at the bottom of the plane and put his own watch and other marks of identification on the corpse.

After the plane was well under way, Borco went into the lavatory and removed the body from the compartment and threw it overboard. He knew that a fall from that height would make the features unrecognizable. Then he hid in the compartment, got out after landing when every one had left the plane, and traveled to a secluded island where his Russian mistress joined him a week later. The mechanic's body was found and was, of course, believed to be Borco's.

NANCY DEANE

Ginger Laughs When She Hears Wescott's Plan To Help Nancy

CHAPTER XX.

"A NICE little place in another part of town." When Howard Wescott said this Nancy was getting out of his car and was so conscious of being watched from behind the curtains of Mrs. Carmondy's parlor that she paid little attention to them. Once inside the door they struck her as being kind of odd.

What did he mean, find her another place? As it was she couldn't even afford this place, not until her first pay day, at least, when she could pay Ginger for allowing her to share her room. Just as soon as she received her first money Nancy intended to get other quarters. She thought she would take one of Mrs. Carmondy's cheapest rooms until she got her bearings and had saved a few dollars.

The modeling job, luckily, would bring her more cash, actually earned by herself, than she had ever had before. She knew she was going to earn the money at a great sacrifice to her pride; she anticipated what her townspeople would say when they went to the style show and saw her walking out on the stage in "The Debutante," or in a leopard coat, or any of the expensive garments that she was ordered to wear.

"I must explain to Mud and Darry somehow," she said, "but Jimminy Gee, I can't be held back by their old-fashioned ideas, sweet as they are. They're living in a world that just doesn't exist any more. Why, neither of them has been out of Washington for 40 years, and they've never known anyone but their own kind of people."

Nancy's imagination started leaping ahead again. She saw herself earning lots of money—enough to furnish one of those bright apartments in Squirrel Hill, say, and having Mud and Darry come to Pittsburgh.

"They would be comfortable and warm and they would never have to worry about coal bills or anything," her imagination told her, "but how am I ever going to earn enough money to keep a place like that going?"

It was her common sense speaking now.

Wescott's words were still fresh in her mind, and there was a troubled expression on her pretty face when she turned the knob of Ginger's room and walked in. Ginger, quick at reading faces (it was her creed that the girl who couldn't read faces wouldn't get very far in this world) knew at a glance that something was worrying Nancy.

"Gosh. You look as though the bottom had fallen out of things all right," Ginger said.

"Or I should say that the bottom had fallen out of things wrong. Lose your job? Or did the millionaire sheik try to get funny?"

Ginger had an uncanny way of sensing things. Sometimes Nancy thought she could read thoughts. Now, what prompted her to say—"Did the millionaire sheik try to get funny?"

Nancy knew that if she related just what had happened in the office that day that Ginger would certainly regard Howard Wescott's actions as "trying to get funny."

"Was I frowning?"

Nancy tried to shake off her heavy feelings as she would shake off her heavy coat, but the operation wasn't so simple.

"I was just thinking—well, I really don't know what I was thinking," she said.

"Oh, yes; to be truthful. I was thinking how hard it is to earn enough money to have all the things you need. Wouldn't I love to have a little apartment here some place and to have Mud and Darry come down. They'd be so comfortable and warm in the winter and wouldn't have to work so hard as they do in that old, draughty house at Washington, with stoves and no water or anything. I just wonder if I'll ever be able to earn enough to rent a place. Are they so terribly expensive?"

She turned to Ginger, hoping she could give her some encouragement, a little hope that some day she would earn enough to manage a place down here for Mud and Darry. There was no encouragement in Ginger's face, not a spark.

"You ARE a baby," was what Ginger said. "Do you suppose for one minute that I would stay in this dump, paying $8 a week, if apartments were cheap. It isn't that I wouldn't have one if I wanted it, but I prefer paying my own rent for awhile yet. This baby isn't going to be obligated to any man for anything—yet."

Ginger gave a hard little laugh.

Nancy didn't quite understand the laugh. She didn't quite understand what Ginger meant by being obligated to any man. She thought Ginger must have misunderstood what she meant.

"Oh, by the way, Vic's been calling you for the last half hour," Ginger said, changing the subject, "he and Jerry are coming over, so save your appetite. And fresh yourself up a little."

"Oh dear," said Nancy. "Don't they ever get tired of calling up, and calling on girls. I thought we'd be alone tonight. I want to do a little mending and get some clothes ready for tomorrow."

"Yep, but that's how life is in the big city, Goldie Locks," Ginger said, "may heaven help the working girl. She's got to rack her life and nerves all days in some noisy, dirty, grinding factory or office, being a football for the moods of some boss, and then she comes home and looks sweet and pretty and be good natured to meet the boy friends.

"If you'll excuse the language, Goldie, it's a h—— of a life. Say, why don't you tell the Wear-Ever to go jump in the lake, and that Wescott guy, too. You'll never get anywhere workin' for $18 a week in an office, an' I'm tellin' you Wescott ain't givin' you nothin' for nothin'.

"Take my advice and stick with him a couple of weeks, and by that time Ziegelbaum will be so sweet on you that you'll have him eatin' out of your hand. Then you'll be modelin' permanent like I am. Just don't let Ziggie get too sweet on you, see. Modelin' is easy, the pay's pretty good. An' the job gives you a lot of time so you can rest up and be full of pep when the lochinvars come out of the west. I mean the West End."

Nancy wondered if ever she could look at things in the same hard and calculating way that Ginger did. She didn't answer, but started to slip out of her dress. She longed to jump into a warm bath. She thought it would soother her nerves, sort of wash away the sharp memories of the day.

"By the way, how DID Wescott behave himself today?" Ginger asked, "try any of the soft stuff yet?"

Nancy didn't move or raise her eyes from the little tear in the seam of her dress, which she was examining.

"He's a handsome devil, I'll admit, an' he's rich, but there's something about that man I don't like," Ginger continued. "I can take a lot from some fellow that's not society like Westcott is, or that hasn't got money and influential relations, but I'll be darned if I'm going to let one of those so-sure-of-himself guys get away with anything so far as I'm concerned.

"Say, when I think that they think they can have anything, take anything they want from a girl, do anything they want, just because they've got a lot of jack, it gets me to seein' red. That's why I wouldn't trust Wescott farther than I can see him. You wouldn't catch this chicken with him after dark. He looks dangerous to me. The fact is, I know he's dangerous."

"Ginger Varden, you're getting too excited," Nancy answered.

"You're imagining all sorts of things that aren't true at all. Mr. Wescott hasn't shown himself to be anything but a perfect gentleman. I don't know anything about his reputation, and what's more I don't care. I'm just a clerk in his office and it's no business of mine what his life outside the office is."

"My, how goody-goody you've got all of a sudden," Ginger said.

There was no sting, no sarcasm in her voice or Nancy would have paid attention to the remark. She continued:

"Mr. Wescott has been very kind to me. He's going to let me off at 3 o'clock next Wednesday and Friday afternoons so that we can get up to McKeesport and Washington in plenty of time. He's even going to let me off early a couple afternoons a week so that I can take some work in shorthand and typewriting and won't have to do night work.

"He says night work is too exhausting after a girl has worked in an office all day. Not only that, but he's offered to drive me up to the style shows himself."

"Whe-e-ew!"

Ginger prolonged the whe-e-ew until it was a long whistle. She put her hand to her forehead and pretended that she was fainting.

"Stop, this is too rich for my blood," she said, waving a hand in front of her face as though she needed air.

"Wescott's going to let you off at 3 o'clock? He's going to drive you up to those towns? And he's going to let you go to business college on his time? And paying you $18.00 a week besides? You're not having a game with me, kiddo? You wouldn't be foolin' your old Aunt Hannah?"

"There's no kiddin' about it," Nancy answered. "What's so surprising about that?"

To Nancy, whose mind had always been absolutely without evil thoughts, who knew so little of the actual world she lived in, there was nothing strange in the story she had just told.

"Wait 'till Vic Flemming hears about that. He'll be furious. There will be another fight and some more black eyes, and some more bail money, I'll wager," Ginger said.

Vic Flemming need hear nothing about it," Nancy answered, "what business is it of his? He's nothing to me but a man I met a few days ago and evidently believes in love at first sight and asked me to marry him."

"Vic's nutty about you," said Ginger, "I've seen him gone on a lot of girls, but never like this. He's thinkin' you're Cleopatra, Sweet Genevieve and the Lorelei all rolled into one. I never saw him so earnest about a girl in my life. He'll go absolutely wild when he hears this."

"You leave Vic Flemmings to me," Nancy heard herself saying.

She didn't know just how she was going to handle Vic, but she knew that she wasn't going to let him think he owned her body and soul, and that he could interfere in her life, in anything she did.

"Oh, I will. If there's anything I'm proud of, it's the fact that I can keep my face out of other people's affairs," Ginger said.

"Only if there's any fibbing you want done, or any managin' don't hesitate to call on yours truly. I think I've had a little more experience with the old green-eyed monster than you have, an' don't forget for a minute that the female of the species ain't got the biggest share of jealousy. Say I've seen guys so jealous that a little female hair pullin' contest was like a game of tag beside it."

"Ginger, you're borrowing trouble," Nancy said, "let's not cross any bridges until we get to them. Don't you really think it was nice of Mr. Wescott to let me off?"

Nancy tried to be more hopeful, but Ginger didn't respond. She tried to imagine just what Ginger would say if she told her how Howard Wescott had kissed her, not only in his office, but in the chalet.

What would she say if she knew that Harriet Crosby had seen him making love to her! The thought of Ginger knowing these things frightened her—she was frightened herself, but she was learning not to admit her fright, not to admit a great many things that she was coming to experience.

The feeling that she might fall head over heels in love with Howard Wescott kept intruding on her consciousness. She wouldn't let the thought in, but it was there, knocking.

Such guilty, guilty thoughts. Why guilty? Wasn't she deciding things for herself now? Wasn't she on her own? Why, oh why, was the figure of John Blair always standing there—back, back—vague sometimes, sometimes so clear, so very, very clear.

He had asked her to marry him. She had answered that she wasn't ready. That she had to go out into the world to "win something."

Wasn't that her right? Couldn't she accept John Blair's help without being obligated to him? Without falling in love with him? She wanted to like him. She did like him, very, very much. His rumpled hair and his blue, blue eyes were "sweet," she told herself. But oh, she was being thrilled now—thrilled as she had never been before. And it was Howard Wescott who was giving her those thrills.

"I mustn't, mustn't," she had said half a dozen times, sometimes aloud. And yet, when she thought of Wescott the thrills kept going through her. She had held herself rigid when he kissed her, but deep in her heart she wanted to melt into his arms, to make response to his love making. She felt wicked. She had even murmured a little prayer that heaven would make her strong.

"Better get a move on, girlie," Ginger said. "The sheiks will be here any minute. They're the kind of boys that like to come early and stay late. What shall we do tonight? Got any ideas?"

Nancy hurried to freshen herself up. Hardly had she got back to her room and given the last pat to her yellow hair than she heard Vic and Jerry.

Ginger opened the door. Just one glance at the two youths standing there and Nancy was filled with repulsion. She had felt it before, she couldn't tell exactly why. There was something in their manner, in the way they entered a room, that smacked of cheapness.

Their dress was so obvious, their cravats the last word in cravats, their coats too, checked, their faces seemed shaven too closely even. Vic's skin was glowing pink, freshly powdered, as though he had just left the barber's chair.

Nancy knew now that there was such a thing as being too dressed up. How differently they looked when compared to Howard Wescott, to John Blair. For the life of her, Nancy couldn't remember just what kind of clothing Howard Wescott wore, or what kind of ties. She only knew that when she was in his presence she had the feeling that he was extremely well dressed.

As for John Blair—well, it wasn't the clothes he wore that one noticed. Nancy always remembered his eyes, the way he looked at her. Of course he was well dressed too.

How the clothes of these men placed them, she thought. She was yet to learn that the quiet richness of the things Howard Wescott and John Blair wore cost money. More money than Vic or Jerry could afford to spend, despite their habit of flashing rolls of greenbacks.

"Hello, there, Goldie Locks," Vic said. "How's the little angel cake this evening?"

Prizes for Correct Solutions

Here's the BIG IDEA! Each day the Sun-Telegraph will print a mystery story. Each story has a plausible and more or less exact solution which may be worked out from the situations and clues in the story. The authors have written a correct solution to each mystery. Readers of the Sun-Telegraph who pride themselves on their analytical sense or detective ability shoul figure out their own solutions watch them with the correct solutions which will be printed on the day following the publication of each baffling mystery.

On SATURDAY in the Saturday editions of the Sun-Telegraph there will be printed an original story by the same authors, the solution of which is in a sealed envelope. The person or persons who solve or come closest to correctly solving the Saturday, or PRIZE STORY, will receive cash prizes as follows:

FIRST PRIZE $10
Three Prizes of $5 EACH for the next three.

Contestants for the PRIZE STORY AWARD will have from Saturday morning, the first publication of the PRIZE story, until the following THURSDAY night at 6 o'clock, to send in their solutions. Letters postmarked after that time cannot be accepted, as judges must be able to render their decision on the prize winners in time to make the following Saturday's editions, when the correct solution of the first PRIZE story is printed with a second PRIZE story for you folks to tackle. In giving your solutions you must write several lines telling why you reached your conclusions and justifying your deductions. The decision of the judges is final and without appeal. Put on your disguise and tin badge and see what happened in the mystery printed today. Prizes will be paid only on the Saturday Prize stories.

Indigestion

Immediate Relief!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali, which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade-Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Says New Medicine, Ten Herbs, Relieved Long Suffering; Benefited Whole System.

"Never have I endorsed a medicine, but Ten Herbs has done me so much good that I cannot help but recommend it," was the statement of Mr. George Miller, 844 Freedmore Street, North Side, Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's

MR. GEORGE MILLER

"I am 60 years old, and for years was an employe of the P. & L. E. Railroad, but had to give up my position on account of my health," Mr. Miller continued. "I have not been able to work for the past seven months. I was told that I had an ulcerated stomach. My digestive organs got so disordered that I had to be careful what I ate. In fact, there were few things I could eat without suffering afterwards. Meat, or anything greasy, was entirely out of the question. I would fill with gas and bloat terribly. I was always constipated. Other organs were disordered, too. I had dizzy spells and severe pains across my back. After suffering like this for several years, rheumatism developed in my knees. At times the pains were so severe I could hardly walk. My whole system became weak and rundown and I lost twenty pounds.

"I had been reading in the papers the statements of persons who had been benefited by Ten Herbs, and finally I started using your medicine. Now I can honestly say that all the ailments I have been suffering with have disappeared. I have a better appetite, I can eat about anything I want without having gas, bloating or any other distress afterwards. Biliousness, dizzy spells and pains across my back are gone. The rheumatic pains in my knees have entirely left me. My nerves are more quiet and I sleep better. Ten Herbs does not work on one organ alone, but seems to give the whole system a thorough cleansing. I am regaining lost weight and feel better and stronger in every respect. I shall be glad if you will publish my statement, that others may know what Ten Herbs has done for me."

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

BLISSFUL TUNE

Just to become accustomed to the tune, Ed and Elaine already are warbling the wedding march. They are to wed in March.

ST. FRANCIS FOE OF BLUFFITES TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER.

For the first time in two, no, three weeks, Chick Davies has an opportunity to watch his basketball team play without being on needles and pins worrying over whether or not it wins. Of course, victory is always to be desired, but if the Dukes lose to St. Francis tonight, it won't impair the already precarious standing of the Bluffites in the Conference.

The Dukes have won one of their last three games, all of which were Conference affairs. One week ago, Geneva toppled the locals by a 22-19 score. The Saturday previous the Red and Blue won from Thiel and the Friday before that, Westminster downed the local hopefuls in an extra period contest at New Wilmington.

The Davismen haven't "clicked" right all season. There has been something lacking in the way in which the Dukes have gone about their work—sort of a let-down in aggressiveness. When they get possession of the ball on an out-of-bound play, they take it down the floor too slowly, giving the defense a fine chance to get set. This error contributed in no small measure to the downfall at the hands of Geneva.

PLAY MUST IMPROVE

The pivot play, with Rosenberg in the "hole," hasn't worked right a dozen times all season. The pass to Jock is either low, wide or too hard or Jock fumbles the ball when he does get it. True, the teams hereabouts are familiar with the play, but that does not excuse the way the Dukes have been messing it up. It's a good play, whether you are hep to it or not.

The funny part of it is that Chick Davies, who was never caught parading around wearing a pair of rose-tinted glasses, figured he had a pretty good club before the campaign opened. Trust Chick to bring this team around and bring it around quick. The Saints may be given the works tonight.

JUST ANOTHER ERROR

About a week ago, this column carried a yarn about Jim Marks and the Elder's Ridge Battle Song. The song was erroneously credited to the Sage of Kiskiminetas, and just as erroneously labeled "The Elder Ridge Battle Song." Note that in today's spelling, the Elder's is possessive.

I am greatly obliged to an Elder's Ridge alumnus, class of '02, for the corrections and also, the entire song. Here it is:

"The Elder's Ridge Boys, they are all right,
The wearers of the Blue and White.
Oh, Elder's Ridge, my Elder's Ridge,
I knowed you'd win, I knowed you would."

It further develops that the song first appeared back in 1901, when a baseball team from Allegheny High School of Pittsburgh went to play the Elder's Ridge boys. The score of the ball wag was 27 to 1. And the one was not complimentary, either.

As to the author of the song, it is generally credited to "Prof." Sam Snyder, who, my correspondent tells me, was Director of the Creamery Department. He was assisted in his composition by one Earle Mason. I fail to get the creamery connection.

FROTH

Imagine the embarrassment of the Americans at the battle of Bunker Hill if the British had turned up with "pink eye" when Capt. Putnam made his famous crack . . . "Don't fire till you see the whites of their eyes." . . . Only the color blind boys would have done any shooting . . . Mr. Gus Glurp has been appointed Official Observer Number 37 by Froth . . . Mr. Glurp of the Walla Walla Glurps . . . Mr. Glurp's first observation: . . . "You don't see Andy Mellon signin' any of them blank checks." . . . It's almost time for the baseball players to start eating regular again. . . . How they hate that! . . . And for baseball writers to come out of the fog. . . . Ring Lardner says a graveyard reminds him of the Phils' infield warming-up. . . . Wild Bill Donohoe and his Saints of St. Francis are here tonight. . . . To Play the Dukes. One more and now we'll all go home. . . . if able.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

BUC HURLER'S ACT ENCOURAGES FANS

ORDINARILY, an announcement such as the one now coming from Pirate headquarters to the effect that Pitcher Lee Meadows has been reinstated by Commissioner Landis would not be of any great importance. For, in the first place, the reinstatement is a real formality, as Meadows committed no offense against baseball laws, but retired voluntarily, and therefore was entitled to be put back on the eligible list on request. And in the second place, such a return would generally mean only a probably hopeless come-back attempt on the part of a broken-down pitcher.

Lee Meadows

But it's different in the case of Meadows. The reinstatement itself, of course, is a mere bit of red tape. The fact that the pitcher asked for it is what makes the announcement important. For Pittsburgh fans know the character of Meadows well enough to be convinced that if Lee had not felt sure that his ailing arm had recovered and that he stood a good chance of regaining winning form he never would have asked the Pittsburgh club to waste any further time with him.

THAT Meadows is not the kind of player who would burden a club unless he felt that he could give value received was shown last year, when he voluntarily withdrew from the Pirate payroll with the statement that he was unable to pitch and that he could not accept money under false pretense.

That's why Lee's application for reinstatement, which has just been granted, is so encouraging. If the bespectacled hurler did not feel able to resume steady slab work in the big show he probably would have remained in retirement. He goes further by assuring Manager Donie Bush in a letter that his business arm has not bothered him for several months and that it feels better and stronger than at any time since the world series of 1925.

SO Meadows is not yet to be counted a total loss, by any means. Art Nehf came back successfully after an attack of neuritis, Herb Pennock is counted upon to do the same, and even Carl Mays is thought to have a chance at the age of 36.

Meadows is two years younger than Mays. He is also younger than Burleigh Grimes, Dazzy Vance, Adolfo Luque, Eppa Rixey, Jess Haines and other winning flingers. Don't be too quick to count him as being of no further use to the Bucs.

THE fact that Homestead is found right up with the foremost in basketball in this section, through having such a fast and classy organization as the Homestead District League, comprising eight clubs formed of the best material in Western Pennsylvania, recalls that that hustling borough always has been one of the real, live centers of the floor sport. Even back before the playing days of Chick Davies, now coach at Duquesne University, and Bill Campbell, present coach at Homestead High School, Homestead was represented by many great players and teams that brought much basketball glory to the town.

Bill Campbell

BACK around 1900, Sandy Shields was one of the best players in the land, and led the Steeltown five to many important victories on the Library court. Next arose the Young Americans, with Roy Steele, Jackie Adams, Tom Murray, Allie Brown, Jimmy McCague and Ed Lloyd. Then came the Central League team, with Steele, Brown, Walter Christ, Wohlfarth, Bill Powell, Bill Lukens and Bill Herron, and next the all-Homestead team that represented Wilmerding for a few years, defeating all opponents, and that later was transferred to Camden in the Eastern League, winning several championships.

On the latter team were Soups Campbell, still active in the American League, by the way, Eddie Dolan, Roy Steele, Jackie Adams and Jimpsy Brown. In the same Eastern League Wohlfarth joined the Jasper team and was rated among the best of all time. He was called the "blind dribbler," on account of his habit of holding his head down while dribbling and shooting. He is president of the present Homestead District League.

LATER in Homestead's long line of basketball stars came Bill Campbell, Chick Davies, Peck Lee, Johnny Pearson and Buckets

FIFTH-SOUTH TILT MAY BREAK TIE

The leadership of Section One of the City League hangs in certain balance today as South and Fifth Avenue High Schools tangle on the Fifth Avenue floor. In Section Two, it is possible that the two-way tie which has been existent for some weeks may also be broken, and either South Hills or Oliver gain undisputed possession of the top position.

The Fifth-South game today looms as one of the most important of the season. Peabody, Schenley, Fifth and South have been battling ever since the campaign opened for the leadership, and now, South and Fifth, with clean-cut victories over the other two fives, face the great opportunity.

BOTH TEAMS PLAY

Both boast strong defenses, have well balanced offensive combinations and seem to be equally strong in all departments. If there is any edge to be granted in today's battle, it will be served Fifth because of the fact the Uptowners are playing on their own floor.

South Hills and Oliver High Schools, both in action today, must win to remain in a tie for the lead in the second division. Oliver High faces more or less of a setup in Langley on its own court, but South Hills has the tough Allegheny barrier to hurdle. There are those who think Oliver will be the lone survivor of today's battles, and that the Brighton Road passers will be leading by nightfall.

In a second Section One game, Westinghouse and Ralston will play at Ralston. Vocational and Perry High meet in a third Section Two game.

EIGHT SECTIONS PLAY

Eight sections of the W. P. I. A. L. will see action tonight. Butler High, leaders in Section Three, will tangle with Mars, with the latter five hoping to succeed where all other teams in the section have failed. In Section Five, Waynesburg meets Charleroi High in another comeback test after its defeat last week at the hands of Monessen.

ARMY MAY PLAY PANTHER ELEVEN HERE IN '31

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Army vs. Pittsburgh in Pittsburgh for 1931.

This was the program of Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, today, following a visit to Washington of Dr. Louis K. Manley, dean of the School of Business Administration of the University of Pittsburgh.

After talking over prospects for arranging the game Senator Reed addressed a communication to Secretary of War Dwight Davis urging that the Cadets be permitted to include Pitt on their schedule two years hence.

Senator Reed is chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, handling all legislation coming under the jurisdiction of the War Department. His request will carry great weight. It is almost a sure bet to say the game is as sure as played. In the message to the War Department head, he pointed out that Pittsburgh has a stadium large enough to accommodate 70,000 followers of the gridiron. He also cited the fact that Army has played in a number of other cities in recent years, but had never been to Pittsburgh.

The necessity for laying plans so far ahead lies in the fact that Army arranges its football schedule from a year to two years in advance.

Pittsburgh hockey Pirates, victims of a trick schedule which sometimes forces them into action twice in as many nights and at other times leaves them idle for a week, are resting in a big way today. Benny Leonard's skaters are not to participate in further league competition until Saturday night, when the Montreal Maroons appear here, and Manager Odie Cleghorn, convinced that there is something in the old saw that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," will permit the Bucs to busy themselves with the serious business of doing nothing until tomorrow.

Roger Smith, who is nursing a bruised and cut left eye, was the only casualty in the rough battle at Montreal Saturday night. Smith's injury is not regarded as serious, and he will be in the lineup when the Maroons come here for another tilt on Saturday.

The Pirates are to be put through one-hour practice sessions at Duquesne Garden tomorrow noon and Thursday night. As a result of their 2-0 triumph Saturday, the Maroons lead the Bucs, two games to one, in their season series, and the locals will welcome the opportunity to even the count.

RANGERS ARE BEATEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—In the season's most exciting game at Madison Square Garden, Les Canadiens, of Montreal, scored a 1-to-0 victory over the New York Rangers last night.

The victory puts the Canucks only one point behind the International group leaders, the New York Americans, whom they meet today. It was the second defeat in two nights for the Rangers.

Blue Ridge Loop Is Reorganized

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 29.—Class D, baseball's pioneer league, the Blue Ridge, was re-organized for the 1929 season at its annual meeting here today, when J. Vincent Jamison, Jr., of Hagerstown, was re-elected to the presidency. Jamison, who is a member of the board of arbitration of the National Association, has headed the Ridge circuit since a short time after it was organized 15 years ago.

As in former years, Waynesboro, Hanover and Chambersburg, in Pennsylvania; Hagerstown and Frederick, in Maryland, and this city will compose the league.

Tom Crawley Stops Boychan in Seventh

STEUBENVILLE, Jan. 29.—Joe Boychan, of Newark, O., took a beating from Tommy Crawley, of Pittsburgh, here last night. Boychan was willing to fight, but was blinded by blood from a gash over his eye, and his seconds tossed in the towel in the seventh.

Noted Turfman Dies in Cuba At 105

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 29.—(INS.)—The Carnival spirit of the racing colony at Oriental Park was dampened today by the death of Tom Cheek, believed to have been America's oldest horseman.

The picturesque 105-year-old turfman, who had been riding, training and breeding horses for more than 90 years, died last night, as he said he would—"with his boots on." Refusing to seek medical aid, he crawled to the stall of Basha, his 6-year-old chestnut gelding, and died by the side of the animal he called his best friend.

"Old age and exhaustion" was given as the cause of the patriarch's death.

PRICE, RED SOX SECRETARY, SUICIDE

BOSTON, Jan. 29.—(INS.)—Believed to have been despondent over ill health, James L. Price, secretary of the Boston American League baseball club, took his life today at Fenway Park by slashing his throat from ear to ear.

An old-fashioned razor was found at his side.

The body was found on the runway at the ball park. The runway leads to the executive offices.

Workmen discovered the body.

Jim Price was a prominent figure in the professional baseball life of Boston, and was known all over the country.

Mrs. Price has been ill at a local hotel, where she and her husband made their home. They have two sons in school at Baltimore, Md.

Price was 60 years old. He came to the Red Six in 1924 when President Bob Quinn purchased the ball club.

All the details of the management of the Red Sox were handled by Price, an expert business man.

Price came here from Newark, N. J., where he had been sporting editor of a daily newspaper. He had worked in the sporting departments of New York newspapers and the New York monthly sporting publication. At one time he was a member of the boxing commission in New York.

Low, Famous British Golf Authority, Dies

LONDON, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—John Laing Low, famous British golfer and for many years recognized as an authority on the game, died today at Woking, aged 60.

Low was a member of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews as well as several other golf clubs in Great Britian. He was president of the Oxford and Cambridge Golfing Society of which he was captain for 20 years.

In 1897, Low reached the semi-final round of the amateur championship, repeated this a year later and in 1901 was runner-up. He represented Scotland against England in 1904.

In 1903 he visited the United States as captain of the Oxford and Cambridge team which toured there. For several years he was chairman of the rules of golf committee, retiring in 1921 and it was in this capacity that he became an authority on the game.

BENNY BASS KNOCKS OUT CHAPMAN IN FIRST

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Benny Bass, Philadelphia, knocked out Red Chapman, Boston, in the first round of their scheduled 10-round fight here last night. The fight had gone 50 seconds when Chapman went down claiming a foul, but Referee Frank Floyd counted him out as he knelt on the canvas. Each weighed 129 pounds.

They danced about for a moment at the opening bell, then Bass hooked a left to Chapman's head. Chapman raised his guard, apparently to protect himself from an expected right-hander, and Bass shot in a hard right to the stomach. The Bostonian dropped to his knees and writhed on the floor as the referee counted him out.

Chapman was carried to his dressing room, protesting that the blow had been low, and the State Athletic Commission's physician was directed to make an examination of the boxer. Referee Frank Floyd ruled the blow fair and credited Bass with a knockout. Dan Carroll, Chapman's manager, said he would file a protest with the commission.

HERMAN STOPS SID TERRIS IN SIXTH

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—The come-back aspirations of Sid Terris, once famed "Ghetto Ghost," came to an abrupt end when he was knocked out by Babe Herman, Pacific Coast slugger, in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round bout at the St. Nicholas Arena last night.

Herman was fighting a losing battle when he suddenly unleashed a terrific right hook that landed flush on Terris' jaw. The one-time lightweight contender went down like a log and was counted out, after 22 seconds of fighting in the sixth round. In the previous round, Herman had gone down for a count of nine after one of Terris' right hand smashes caught him on the chin.

Strangely enough, it was that punch that turned the whole tide of battle to Herman. He got up off the floor and tore into Terris with a terrific right-hander that landed New Yorker back to the ropes. Herman lashed out with both hands and had Terris out on his feet at the bell.

As they came out for the sixth round Herman's wild overhand right connected and the former Ghetto idol had met his third knockout defeat in less than a year, Jimmy McLarnin and Ray Miller knocked him out in one round apiece last summer. Terris weighed 134¾; Herman, 135¼.

Sandomire. They won the industrial championship of the state in a tournament at Erie. Davies and Campbell also were stars on the Morry team for several years until they took up coaching. Roy O'Donovan, former Duke star, also is a Homestead product.

Few towns of Homestead's size have developed so many remarkable floor stars, a number of them almost nationally famous. Now it looks as if the borough is starting all over again to turn out another bunch of luminaries.

Charley Arthurs

CHARLEY ARTHURS, former McKeesport High School basketball star, center on the undefeated University of Pittsburgh freshman team of 1926, and for a time this season a member of the Pitt varsity squad, is now playing center for the Nash Motors of Kenosha, Wis., and playing it well, according to newspaper notices he is being given in that city.

Arthurs, after being out of Pitt during 1927, was a member of Dr. Carlson's Panther squad until the first of the present year, when he accompanied the Pitt team on its trip West, where he took part in some of the games. Charley then dropped out of school, was married and went to Kenosha to work. He joined the crack Ne-Nash-A Blue Streaks of that city, one of the leading independent teams of the Middle West, and has won for himself a steady berth at center.

AGAINST the Hammond Hoosiers recently, Chuck dropped in four field goals and one free throw for a point total of nine, third high for the night. His accurate, Pitt-taught passing and fine work in getting the tip-off was a feature of the game.

Playing in his first game and receiving his baptism of middle western basketball, Chuck scored one field goal and dropped in one foul point against the Briggs Realtors of Chicago, one of the strongest teams in the Windy City. Arthurs is well known throughout this district, having played both high school and amateur basketball hereabouts before entering Pitt. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Arthurs, reside at 2002 Colfax avenue, McKeesport.

ONE fighter who does not permit his flights of fancy to run to the extreme of seeing himself seated on a championship throne, is K. O. Christner, Akron (O.) heavyweight, whose showing against Jack Sharkey in New York has earned for him another chance in Gotham, probably with Paulino Uzcudun.

"I'm not banking on ever becoming a champion," Christner is quoted. "I'm a little too old, I guess, to start that long climb, and then I have other ambitions, anyway. I like fighting, but it's a hard game, and I've seen what becomes of some of them. I don't want ever to cut out paper dolls for the privilege of being called the champion of the world.

K. O. Christner

"MY idea is to have a few more big fights and to make just enough money to last me for life. That won't be hard, because I don't yearn to be a millionaire. I'm rather comfortable as it is, after 15 professional fights. Akron is a great place to live in. Why, you'd be surprised at the fine house I recently bought there for $8,000. I spent a few hundred more for furniture, and it's as grand a place as you'd want to live in. It must be fine to be a champion, but, then, there are other things worth while, too. I've been married 10 years, and my wife and two children make things very happy for me. I don't think anything the ring could give me would make me forget them. They're with me all the time, too."

MEADOWS BACK, BUCCO STAFF IMPRESSIVE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

With training camp activities only three weeks removed, prospects today were looking up for the Pirates. The local office last night was apprised by Judge Landis, baseball commissioner, that Lee Meadows had been reinstated and therefore was eligible to put his arm and shoulder to the Buccaneer wheel. The announcement was welcomed by B. Dreyfuss and the official family.

Meadows was retired voluntarily last season after the spectacled pitcher made several attempts to get back to his normal form. A sore arm bothered him for months before he asked for permission to leave the club. He won but one game. Lee returned to his Florida home, put himself under the care of a physician and later noticed much relief. He will go to training camp with the first squad of Buccos in three weeks.

HILL ALSO EAGER

The other spectacled star of the slab—Carmen Hill—also expects to show more stuff than he had on display last summer. The Corry giant was a big factor in winning the flag in 1927, but his performances of last year were not up to his best achievements. Carmen has been taking treatment for his arm and back in the off-season.

In the event of Meadows and Hill coming through like they did in 1927 the Pirates surely would be a dangerous foeman. You can mark down a lot of victories for B. Grimes, the majority of fans feeling that the Duke of Burleigh will annex at least 20 contests in the furtherance of Pittsburgh success.

TWO GOOD SOUTHPAWS

And don't overlook Kremer, who jumped off last season accompanied by a bad attack of the "flu." The ravages of the disease were reflected in the performances of the Frenchman in the first half of the race. In the last part of the campaign, Remy attained his normal form and prevented a rout for himself. He was one of the best pitchers in the circuit in the last half. Kremer takes fine care of himself so that he should report next month in shape to carry on.

Add to that fine quartet of right-handers, a pair of star lefthanders like Jess Petty and Fred Fussell and you have a fine array of sharpshooters. The two southpaws should win something like 30 games between them; if they cop 25 the club is sure to be up around the leaders.

All things considered in the flinging corps, it does not seem that Grimes will have to carry all the burden for a month or two at the start as he did last year.

KNICKERS DEFEATED

The Schneider Club nosed out the Knickerbockers, 21 to 20, in a West Penn League battle last night. The lineup:

Baierl	F	Montgomery
O'Donovan	F	Hunter
Pflaum	C	Harropp
Rogers	G	Murawski
Shrading	G	Shrode

Substitutes—Singer, Flynn. Field goals—Baierl, O'Donovan, Pflaum 2, Shrading 3, Montgomery 3, Murawski 2, Singer, Flynn. Fous—Schneiders, 5 out of 13; Knickers, 8 out of 9. Referee—Hannum.

HUB COUNCIL SETS PRICES FOR SUNDAY BALL PERMITS

BOSTON, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—The city council has passed an ordinance regulating the granting of licenses to play professional baseball on Sunday in this city after clauses fixing the prices of admission and frankfurts had been eliminated.

Before the measure was passed, several councilmen again vented their indignation on Emil Fuchs and Charles F. Adams, president and vice president respectively of the Boston National League Baseball Club, whose charges of attempted extortion by city Council to gain passage of the Sunday sports measure are under investigation.

VOTE IS 12 to 7

The regulating ordinance, passed by a vote of 12 to 7, provided that week-day prices should not be increased on Sundays and that a fee of $2,500 should be charged for licenses permitting Sunday baseball in parks with a seating capacity of 40,000 or more. That is approximately the capacity of the Braves' field.

Clauses limiting 35 per cent of the seats to 50 cents on Sundays and setting 10 cents as the top price for tonics and hot dogs were eliminated only after acrid debate.

Councilman John F. Dowd told his fellow members that investigation had shown that concessionaires bought tonic at 2½ cents a bottle, hot dogs at 3¼ cents, and then made 600 per cent profit. That was too much, he said.

TO END PROBE TODAY

Frederick E. Dowling, acting Council president, delivered a general attack on the Sunday baseball act. He said the act, as it appeared on the ballot, was so worded that it ordered, rather than forbade, Sunday baseball to be played within 1,000 feet of a church. The omission of a comma in a sentence on this matter was responsible, he asserted.

Attorney General Joseph E. Warner, after protracted conferences with Edmund P. Cunningham, secretary of the Braves, has announced that he hoped to finish the taking of evidence in his investigation into charges that the Outdoor Recreation League, sponsors of the Sunda sports bill, had violated the corrupt practices act today. The charge was made before the Boston Finance Commission that Fuchs contributed a large part of the $30,000 llated to various donors to the league's campaign for Sunday baseball.

FELIX ILL, BOUT WITH DEMARCO CALLED OFF

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

The Cuddy DeMarco-Harry Felix bout scheduled for the Moose Temple Friday night is off and in its place Promoter Francis Flynn has matched U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, and Battling Gizzy, of Donora, for a return battle over the 10-round route. Gizzy recently defeated Carpentier in a hectic bout at Washington, Pa.

The DeMarco-Felix bout fell through when Felix reported today that he is ill with influenza and has been ordered to stop training. The pair may be rematched for a later date.

As soon as he received his release from Promoter Flynn today, DeMarco accepted another engagement for the same night. It will be with Larry Brignolla at Erie, and will be their third clash.

CHAPMAN THROUGH

Benny Bass' one-round knockout defeat of Red Chapman at Philadelphia last night is not surprising. Chapman has had only one fight since he boxed Tommy Crawley here a long time ago, and he lost that one. It is reported that his eyes are bad and he has been ordered to quit boxing. In knocking out Sid Terris in New York last night, Babe Herman merely evened up for a similar defeat suffered by himself at Terris' fists in Cleveland two years ago.

George Kerston, of McKeesport, and Lee Sala, of Donora, have been matched to box the second bout at McKeesport Thursday night. Midget Mike O'Dowd, of Columbus, meets Howard Mayberry, of Donora, in the 10-round windup, and Buck McTiernan boxes Allen Beatty in the semi-final.

Jack and Pete Zivic will engage in bouts at the smoker of the Equitable Gas Company employes in the company's Manchester property tonight. Jack will spar with Jack Unglo and Pete with Ray McCall. Other bouts are listed.

BROWN MEETS HUMERY

Al Brown, New York Negro bantamweight, boxes Humery, the French star, in a 15-round bout in Paris tonight. Kid Francis, of Italy, and Earl Mastro, of Chicago, battle in Los Angeles.

The Twenty-seventh Ward A. C. will stage another of its amateur boxing shows in the St. Andrew's Lyceum Friday night.

Tillman to Lead Harrisburg Club

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 29.—(AP.)—The signing of Johnny Tillman, a pitcher, to manage the Harrisburg Club of the New York-Pennsylvania League, has left the Syracuse Club as the only team in the loop which is still without a manager for the coming season. The directors of the local organization announced last night that Tillman has been given a one-year contract at a salary not made public.

HEIDELBERG MUST BOLSTER TEAM OR DROP HOPES

By TOM BIRKS.

THE surprising defeat of the Heidelberg club at the hands of the Union Switch and Signal eleven in the national amateur cup Saturday did not come as a real surprise to close observers of the Heidelberg team this season. In fact, soccer critics in general, watching the work of the Green and Gold, are astounded that more defeats did not come along earlier in the season.

Of course, it is too bad that the defeat had to come in the national amateur cup race, the one particular tourney that Heidelberg can point to with pride from a matter of record.

MUST STRENGTHEN TEAM

But Manager Balsarini and the officials running the former National champions will have to strengthen the lineup if the team is going to get anywhere in the National race. From reports, it is expected Heidelberg will be back in the race, since a protest has been sent to Cleveland to Secretary McEwan. It will likely bring the Green and Gold back into the draw. In this respect, we sympathize with the officials of the Switch and Signal. When the hour for starting the game came around, two players reported sick, and one failed to report. Manager Thomas was forced to play the man questioned.

Coming back to Heidelberg, it is a foregone conclusion that changes will have to be made. With Mangus out of the halfback line, not one halfback of class is available. Chappell is a good wingman, but useless in the middle line. And when Jack Thomas gave orders for Buff Donnelli to be shadowed, the impotence of the rest of the forwards stood out.

While Villani has been the real defense man all season, he had a bad day, and Pagan is now playing on his reputation in other years. Until Heidelberg has not had a center forward since Andy Savage hung up his shoes. Manager Balsarini will have to get a center forward, and keep his wingmen intact. Chappell and McCosky are good, but Fred Donnelli is not a center forward.

LITTLE RESERVE POWER

Heidelberg wants to win the National Amateur cup a second time, but unless Manager Balsarini bolsters his team, this will not be done. In any line of sport, and this goes for soccer, no team is any stronger than its reserve strength. Heidelberg has no reserve strength at the present time, and unless the team is built for the future, it will fail. It is to Heidelberg that Pittsburghers look to for a National pennant. The boys are all American-born and have the fighting spirit. But the life of any team together is about three years. Heidelberg has been together longer than that. It is high time for Manager Balsarini to build for the future. The team's showing against Parkview in the West Penn semi-final, and its showing against McKeesport in the final was not the type of soccer nor the display the fans expect from the National champions.

Is Aged Workers' Problem Industry's or Politicians?

—By B. C. FORBES—

THIS country appears to be moving towards legislation to provide for aged workers.

Gov. Roosevelt of New York has come out openly in favor of action.

Has industry done, is industry doing everything within its power to make state old age pensions unnecessary?

ADMITTEDLY an increasing number of large business concerns have been instituting various plans to enable employes to avoid privations after they are no longer able to work. But, on the other hand, a far greater number of companies still act as if they had no obligations whatsoever to such employes. Quite recently one New York corporation has been lopping off so many workers that bitter indignation has been aroused, especially as no explanation has been offered either the workers or the public. In this particular case the company is financially strong and prosperous.

IN one sense, the problem of providing for the aged is many-sided, complicated, puzzling. In another sense, it can be resolved into very simple elements.

Briefly, aged workers or others no longer able to support themselves cannot be allowed to starve like so many famine-stricken Chinamen. Provision must be made to permit them to exist.

The necessary cost must, in the final analysis, be borne mainly, if not wholly, by industry and business. In some countries workers are called upon to contribute during their active years. Also, in some cases, the government directly bears a share of the burden, with employers contributing so much weekly for each individual employe.

In the end, however, industry and business must first earn the money, whether it is ostensibly put into the pension fund partly by the workers and partly by taxpayers or directly by industry.

HAVE American business and financial leaders given sufficient thought to this question: Is it better for industry to take care of its own or to turn over this duty to politicians?

BUSINESS may rave until it is hoarse about governmental interference, but the undisputable truth is that "governmental interference" has almost always, if not always, sprung from widespread public dissatisfaction over something business was guilty of doing or not doing.

Often it is alleged that Wall Street "gets" this individual or that corporation. Wall Street never "gets" any individual or organization that does not do something to cause Wall Street to act. Leave Wall Street alone and Wall Street will leave you alone. Similarly, if industry and business do not behave in a way to arouse public clamor for governmental action, the government usually leaves industry and business alone.

But if modern industrial trends, including countless consolidations, are resulting in thousands upon thousands of workers over 40 years of age being thrown on the street without hope of finding new employment, it is inevitable that clamor arise for remedial action by the government. If industry casts elderly employes aside, the state cannot stand idly by and see its citizens starve.

GOV. ROOSEVELT, in promising definite action to enact a plan for old age security, makes these statements:

"I want to emphasize that there is nothing socialistic in a program of this kind. No greater tragedy exists in our civilization than the plight of citizens who find themselves, after a long life of activity and usefulness, unable to maintain themselves decently.

"Judging by the number of letters I am receiving, there is a more widespread popular interest in the subject of old age security against want than most people in public life had realized.

"The subject is receiving increasing attention because of recent allegations, which may or may not be proved, to the effect that there is a growing tendency on the part of some employers to discriminate against hiring men or women who, though still hale and hearty, have reached middle age.

"If this be true, it must be combatted, because the state must interest itself in preventing increase in the ranks of those who for one reason or another are unable to earn their own livelihood.

"Into the lives of all of us who have come heartrending examples in our communities. It is time for us to get together and get action."

WHAT do our industrial leaders have to say on this whole subject of discarded elderly workers and old age pensions?

TIGHTER CREDIT CUTS STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—A tightening of credit and upward revisions of margin requirements prompted heavy selling on the stock market today, which depressed a score of recently strong issues about 2 to 6 points. Heavy accumulation of utilities continued, however, several reaching new high ground.

Call money above 6 per cent for the first time in nearly two weeks as loans were called in preparation for the month end payments. The rate, increased to 7 per cent in early afternoon, was expected to go higher before the end of the week.

Conflicting reports from London indicated that between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 in gold had been taken for New York, but the opinion gained ground in Wall Street that the Bank of England would soon act to prevent further losses. An increase in the Bank of England's rediscount rate is regarded as likely this week.

The overnight business news was largely favorable, including several excellent railway earnings reports, the Pennsylvania reporting a record net income for 1928. Inand Steel increased its annual dividend rate from $2.50 to $3.50.

An unsettling development was a drop of about 3 points in United States Steel. Directors meet this afternoon, and Wall Street has grown skeptical over the rumors of an extra or stock dividend, believing that such action, if contemplated, probably would be taken later in the year.

Philadelphia Company mounted 9 points, while Commonwealth Power, American and Foreign Power, American Water Works and Detroit Edison rose 3 to 6 points to new tops. Commercial Solvents jumped more than 8 points to a new top on an excellent fourth quarter earnings report.

Wright Aero, Allied Chamical, Johns Mansville and Mexican Seaboard lost 4 to 7 points, while American Telephone, General Motors (old), Westinghouse, Anaconda, Sears Roebuck and others yielded 2 points and more.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 3 points to a decline of 2 points on some overnight buying orders around the ring were supplied by liquidations.

Southern and local liquidation was promoted by the relatively easy showing of the later Liverpool cables. Old crop positions, which were relatively steady at the opening, reacted to about yesterday's closing quotations. A new crop sold off a few points right after the call. The offerings were sufficiently well taken to give the market a steady undertone, however, and trading was quiet, with prices about net unchanged to 4 points lower at the end of the first half hour.

Private cables said trade calling and continental buying had been supplied by liquidation in Liverpool and that the demand for cotton cloths from India was poor, with China trade less active.

There was a continuance of liquidation and some local or southern selling later in the morning. Prices gradually eased off to 19.80c for March and 19.48c for July, or about 9 to 12 points below yesterday's closing quotations. A little trade buying was reported, but it was evidently in small volume and the market was dull at midday with prices at about the lowest.

Coal Center Priest To Go to Clairton

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 29.—The Rev. John O'Connor, pastor of St. Thomas Aquinas Church, of Coal Center, will leave this week to take up his new duties in the parish at Clairton.

Monessen Girl Hurt When Auto Overturns

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 29.—Miss Anna Thompson, 17, of Monessen, was injured when a car in which she was riding upset at Newell, near here. She was rushed to McKeesport Hospital in a serious condition from a fractured skull.

Six other occupants of the car suffered minor injuries.

Settlement Halts Widow's R. R. Suit

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 29.—Claim of $30,000 against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for the deaths of John Stannis and his son, John, Jr., was settled here yesterday as preparations were being made to open the trial. The widow, Mrs. Julia Stannis, brought the suit.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Pronounced weakness was shown by numerous issues on the curb market today under continued liquidation influenced apparently by the irregularity of the stock market and a belief that yesterday's wide advances impaired the technical position. Buying was selective, but only a few issues made advances.

Utilities bore the brunt of selling pressure. Although there were intermittent rallies in this group, the trend was downward. Electric Bond and Share fluctuated between 243 and 251 in early trading, and around noon was selling at 247¼, or more than 10 points off. Electric Investors yielded 6 points.

General Electric again was in demand, but made only a small gain. Checker Cab was one of the few strong spots, moving up 2 points into new high ground above 73 on buying encouraged by announcement that net profit for 1928 is estimated at $1,218,648, equal to $4.87 a share, against deficit of $283,314 in 1927. There was some buying of Zenith Radio on disclosure a new plant is to be built at Chicago to triple production. Marconi International gained fractionally on reports the company would expand its activities into new European fields and that because of the unusual number of ship disasters unfilled orders for direction finders and radio compasses have steadily increased. Fox Theater, Aluminum Company and Deere were among the weaker issues.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

SCREW & BOLT FIRM ENTERS AVIATION

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

REPORTS that the Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Corporation will acquire the Colona Manufacturing Company and will start the production of airplane propellers have been confirmed through the publication of a notice that application will be made for a new certificate of incorporation on January 30.

THE new charter of the Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Company will permit it to engage in the manufacture of thread protectors, propeller blades, hubs and other parts of airplanes and other vehicles in addition to its present line of products.

Thread protectors are the product of the Colona Manufacturing Company. Details of the exchange of stock will be announced within a short time.

MORE favorable freight rates and fewer labor troubles made it possible for the Pittsburgh district to regain a large part of its lost lake markets for coal in 1928. Shipments from the Pittsburgh field for loading into lake vessels last year were the greatest since 1923.

A total of 4,293,906 tons moved from this field to the lakes, an increase of 68 per cent over 1927, when the traffic amounted to 2,547,716 tons.

The Connellsville and Northern Pennsylvania fields showed similar success in retrieving lost markets. The former's lake shipments were 1,895,445 tons against 909,405 tons in the previous year. The latter shipped 941,320 tons, compared with 145,498 tons.

THE NO. 8 field of Ohio, which has been in the same boat with Pittsburgh in freight rates and labor conditions, increased its shipments from only 298,355 tons in the 1927 season to 1,022,983 tons last year.

All of the more important West Virginia fields showed declines in shipments to the lakes except the Pocahontas mines. These increased from 4,096,952 tons to 4,832,800 tons. Fairmont's lake business dropped from 3,877,170 tons to 2,705,011 tons. Kanawha slumped from 9,457,380 tons to 7,161,826 tons. Thacker-Kenova dropped from 2,099,995 tons to 1,827,921 tons.

THE improvement last year was shown under a freight differential of 45 cents a ton in favor of Pittsburgh mines on coal moved to the lakes. Under a compromise agreement between the northern and southern carriers the rates have been adjusted so that Pittsburgh now has an advantage of only 35 cents a ton over the West Virginia mines.

The relationship is likely to be changed before the lake season actually starts. The Supreme Court will hold a hearing on February 18 on the appeal against a ruling of a district court preventing the Inter-State Commerce Commission from interfering with the placing of lower freight rates in effect by southern roads. These were intended to nullify the decrease allowed to the Pittsburgh district by the commission.

NOTABLES HOLD TEMPERANCE REAL NEED

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Another inundation of letters entering competitive plans for the $25,000 prize offered by William Randolph Hearst for the best common-sense, workable substitute for prohibition to bring about true temperance in America, has been received. They were forwarded over the last week-end from every section of the country.

Along with these proposed legal and social formulas entered in the temperance prize contest are also hundreds of expressions daily from those who say they feel personally unequal to the task of originating a feasible plan, but praising Mr. Harst for leading the way toward a solution of the prohibition problem.

In addition to these letters, the Hearst newspapers are receiving from notable persons in all walks of life expressions of opinion on the contest. Almost without exception these views of leaders of thought and action declare that a crisis of prohibition evils has been reached and that it must be met by intelligent action of the people and their government in the immediate future.

Following are some of the further expressions received:

Clarence R. Edwards

Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, one-time "Daddy" of the Twenty-sixth Division, A. E. F., Boston:

"I am for temperance and I believe that the Eighteenth Amendment was the most unwise fundamental statute ever passed in America. Mr. Hearst has the right idea. We are fast becoming a great nation of hypocrites because of prohibition.

"But I am chiefly concerned with the terrible effects the Volstead Act is having on our glorious youth. I don't care for youth that's moral by restriction of laws. When I served overseas I had 60,000 men in my charge and I tell you that I never saw as temperate a crowd anywhere as they were.

"Perhaps one way to repeal prohibition would be to appropriate about $600,000,000 and attempt real enforcement. Then the people would balk and repeal would be brought about in no time.

"But prohibition is more dangerous to youth than anything else. Before prohibition was passed the youth was becoming by public opinion temperate. In those days liquor was taboo in clubs, colleges and universities.

"Nobody wants the saloon back and it never would come back. But this idea of making a crime out of something that is not criminal is not an admirable state of affairs.

"Today the wine of the country is bad whisky and we are fast becoming a whisky drinking nation, when we should be a wines-and-beer country."

Matthew Woll

"Prohibition has had 10 years of repeated failure. Not only has it proven impossible to stop the flow of bad liquor, it has generated crime, debauchery and death. Therefore, I believe the time has come for modification.

"All the plans in the world will not make the Eighteenth Amendment a success. Whereas, it is possible for a sane and sober modification plan to be worked out and put into effect. For this reason I think Mr. Hearst is pointing his guns the right way by offering a prize worthy of such a plan.

"The sooner the blight of prohibition is wiped out, the sooner will all the internal troubles of the United States abate. To my mind, the majority of the citizens of this country have come to realize that such a wholly ridiculous law as prohibition is a disgrace to our foundations of liberty.

"Nowhere in the world has prohibition been a success, and it is only the closed type of mind that will not concede this failure. Liquor can be bought anywhere, any time, but not the kind that is fitted for even the lowest type of humanity. Modification is the only measure to adjust the situation."

Courtland Nicoll

Mr. Hearst has performed a real public service by offering a prize for the best suggestion for the solution of the problems raised by national prohibition.

"No informed person believes that the Eighteenth Amendment can be enforced. There remain therefore only three alternatives: First, repeal of that amendment; second, its nearly total disregard in those communities where the acts it seeks to prohibit are not considered wrong, or third, some sensible modification that will give a favorable background for temperance and restore to organized society the control over the traffic in intoxicants where public opinion does not support prohibition.

"The repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment is impossible. The second alternative is the historic one that has invariably been followed in the case of unpopular laws. In the case of the Eighteenth Amendment, it would, if allowed to continue, raise graft to the dignity of a national policy.

"There remains, therefore, only the third alternative, that is to find some substitute that will permit prohibition and restore control where prohibition is impossible, and it is wise statesmanship that recognizes these facts and endeavors to encourage a satisfactory solution."

John S. Wise, Jr.

John S. Wise, Jr., prominent lawyer, New York City:

"Not 10 per cent of the people in this country are interested in prohibition. Mr. Hearst is exactly right in declaring that prohibition disrupts temperance. I think his prize offer is a most excellent idea.

"Temperance cannot come through prohibition. Temperance is a matter of intelligence, not of constraint. Drinking is a matter of conviviality and you will never be able to do away with that spirit. There will be places for conviviality no matter how you may legislate. If there are not licensed places, there will be unlicensed speakeasies. And such places are potential forces of wickedness. They have no influence for good.

"The way to re-establish temperance is for the people to get rid of politicians who are easily influenced away from reflecting the minds of their constituents. Get in their places people who honestly understand humanity and the experiences by which humanity is governed."

OIL PROXY WAR IN NEW STAGE

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(INS.)—With representatives of John D. Rockefeller claiming victory in his fight to oust Col. Robert W. Stewart as chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, and representatives of Col. Stewart denying the claim, the "battle of proxies" entered a new stage today.

Thomas M. Debevoise, official representative of Rockefeller, declared in a statement last night that his side had enough proxies to control the elected at the annual meeting on March 7. George K. Bowden, Stewart's New York proxy campaign leader, countered with the assertion that Col. Stewart already had been assured the votes of a majority of the stockholders.

Neutral observers pointed out that the outcome of the contest may remain in doubt up to the last minute, because stockholders who have given their proxies retained the right to change their minds at any time.

Weather Conditions.

The high pressure area is centered over the Dakotas and Manitoba this morning, highest barometer, 30.66 inches, at Moorhead, and the high pressure covers the entire country between the Rocky and the Appalachian mountains, including the Canadian Northwest. The rising barometer caused a drop in temperature over the Atlantic Coast states and the Gulf states, and it is colder than yesterday over the northern plains and Manitoba. Over the Central and Upper Mississippi valley states it is not quite as cold as yesterday. In North Dakota the temperature ranges from 28 to 34 degrees below zero, and over Saskatchewan and Alberta from 30 to 36 below zero.

The skies are clear in the high pressure area, except over a belt, which extends from New England southwestward over this section and westward over Iowa to Colorado, where cloudy weather with occasional snow flurries prevails.

River Conditions.

The rivers are again down to near normal and falling slowly. Stage at Pittsburgh is 15.2 feet. Dam No. 2, 4.1, and Dam No. 6, 10.5. The dams are down. Light ice is running out of the Allegheny river about half covered.

7 Rules of $25,000 Temperance Contest

The purpose of the contest is to obtain a practicable plan, as a substitute for prohibition, which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily possible of enforcement by state and Federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than 1,000 words.

3—This contest will close on April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practical temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the temperance contest committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

SUCCESSFUL METHODS FOR COMBATTING FLU AND COLDS

Follow These Rules—Do Not Fool With a Cold. Use Tried, Safe Methods.

THE DANGER

Cold, "Flu" and Pneumonia Germs multiply by the millions and attack the weak and the strong alike. Watch out for colds, they weaken your resistance. The greatest danger lies in that "simple cold." Kill that cold quickly.

It is of vast importance to clean out the entire intestinal tract, upper and lower bowels regularly. Keep the kidneys well flushed and freshen and strengthen the blood.

Experience of 1918

The experience of the 1918 epidemic showed that one of the best and simplest treatments was to take a steaming hot cupful of Bulgarian Herb Tea.

Why take any chances, why not be prepared to fight off your cold or "flu"?

The right thing to do now is to go to your druggist, get a box of Bulgarian Herb Tea. Kill off your cold. Take it steaming hot twice a week. It will heat up the chilled blood, increase the circulation and rid the bowels and intestines of poisons and germs. Every family will find Bulgarian Herb Tea (purely vegetable), a real blessing to have on hand in this time of need. Keep your system clean all winter.

See your druggist at once. Your health—perhaps your very life—may depend upon taking this simple precaution. Costs but a few cents.

If you have had the flu or a bad cold already, watch out for a recurrence. A cupful of Tea twice a week is your protection against attacks.

Mr. X wanted to sell his radio—he ran a classified ad in the Sun-Telegraph and sold it. Now it is bringing joy to the home of someone who did not care to have the latest type set. You can sell your old set the same way and apply that money on a new radio of the most modern kind. It is a very sensible idea. There are lots of people who would be glad to give you a fair price for your old radio.

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS—Under Agreement entered into between the City of Allegheny, which by annexation proceedings has become and is now a part of the City of Pittsburgh, and The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, operating the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago Railway, which said Agreement was authorized by Ordinance of the City of Allegheny, approved the fourteenth day of October, 1901, and recorded in the City of Allegheny in Ordinance Book, Volume 11, Page 60, in connection with other improvements, the said Railroad Company constructed the North Avenue West and Irwin Avenue Bridges over and across its tracks at its own cost and expense, and assumed the maintenance of the abutments, necessary supports and superstructures of the said Bridges; and

WHEREAS—The City of Allegheny under said Agreement, at its own cost and expense, constructed and paved the approaches to said Bridges, paid property damages occasioned by the change of grade of the approach streets, and the roadways maintained the paving of said roadway surfacing on said bridges; and

WHEREAS—The said Bridges are now deemed inadequate for the proper accommodation of vehicular traffic and foot passage, obsolescent in design and structure, and dangerous to life and property; and

WHEREAS—The parties hereto desire to enter into an Agreement providing for the removal of the present bridges and the building and maintenance of a new bridge in such manner that both parties may receive the special benefits by them desired, to-wit: That the City shall obtain more adequate intersection and greater width of roadway and shall secure the elimination of certain undesirable features in the present bridges, and the Railroad Company shall obtain additional clearance over its tracks, none of which is possible with the present construction;

NOW, THEREFORE IT IS MUTUALLY AGREED BETWEEN THE PARTIES HERETO AS FOLLOWS:

FIRST. The Railroad Company shall and will, at its own proper cost and expense, remove the present North Avenue West and Irwin Avenue bridges and shall and will erect a new structure to the lines and grades as shown on the plans and drawings prepared by and on file in the Department of Public Works of the City of Pittsburgh, and described as follows, viz:

THIRD. The Railroad Company shall and will, at its own proper cost and expense, maintain perpetually the new bridge as hereinbefore described, excepting the roadway surfacing, in a safe and adequate manner, which said maintenance shall include any alteration or replacement.

FIFTH. Prior to the commencement of any work for the removal of the present bridges or the construction of the new bridge, the Railroad Company shall prepare and submit to the Director of the Department of Public Works of the city proper plans and specifications showing the method of removing the old structures and the erection and construction of the new bridge, for his approval, and no work shall be done until after said plans and specifications shall have been approved by the Director of the Department of Public Works of the city.

SIXTH. The Railroad Company further agrees that it shall and will pay to the city the sum of $14,000.00, within fifteen (15) days after this Agreement shall have been approved by the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, it being the intent and purpose of this Agreement that the said sum of $14,000.00, together with the removal of the old bridges and the erection and maintenance of the new bridge in the manner herein set forth, shall be the Railroad Company's share of the cost of the replacement of said bridges, and the city shall pay all costs, fees, damages and expenses incident to the change of grade for the approach streets, incident to the construction and maintenance of the roadway surfacing and the change of grade and grading, paving and curbing of said approach streets, including the elimination of the depressed sidewalk now extending from Beech avenue and Irwin avenue to Rope alley and North avenue West, as its full share of the cost of the erection and construction of said bridge and approaches.

EIGHTH. The City further agrees that the Railroad Company shall construct the new bridge in accordance with the approved plans as hereinbefore set forth, which show an elevation so as to provide one (1) foot additional clearance over the tracks of the Railroad Company, and the City will construct the approach streets to meet the said elevation of the bridge, as shown in the plans hereinbefore referred to.

NINTH. The Railroad Company agrees to commence work under this Agreement within sixty (60) days after the approval of the same by the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and to diligently proceed to completion.

TENTH. The Railroad Company agrees to make provision for and to permit the City to install water lines on the new bridge, the extra expense involved therein to be paid for by the City; and the Railroad Company further agrees to make provision for and to permit Public Utility Companies, when so requested by the Director of the Department of Public Works of the City, to place pipe lines, conduits or other utility facilities on said bridge at the risk of said Utility Companies and provided said Public Utility Companies pay the additional cost occasioned thereby, and provided further that all pipe lines or conduits or other utility facilities placed on said bridge by said City or Public Utility Companies, shall be maintained by and at the expense of the owners thereof.

BUGS BAER Says

Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Portland, Oregon: A Jake-walker was trapped while gnawing a lamp-post down. These animals are doing much damage in the northwest.

Jacksonville, Fla: Mr. Hoover is much interested in the antics of strange two-footed animals which look at him furtively when he passes in an automobile.

They are very shy. When a horn is sounded they jump far, loose and wide.

St. Louis: A Jake-walker was captured while trying to cross the main street without a note from his parents.

Memphis: The continued blowing of police whistles has frightened the last of the Jake-walkers from this city. They once roamed the prairies in countless numbers.

Dallas, Tex: Judge Grump sentenced a Jay-Hopper to six months in a revolving door for reckless driving. His shoe-laces were untied.

San Francisco: A chauffeur was mildly reproved today for running down a pedestrian out of season.

Washington: The Supreme Court handed down a decision from the nation's rumble seat this week. It states that the traffic situation is not a survival of the footist.

New Orleans: A Jake-jumper was rescued from a safety zone in Canal street yesterday. Canal street is the widest thoroughfare in the country. The Horn-leaper had been marooned in the safey-zone for two weeks without food or water.

Denver: Judge Magoop has finally solved the problem of compelling Jake-walkers to walk straight. He gives 'em 20 years on a treadmill.

Home Is Proper Place To Fix Up Our Charter

There will be no sense in any interest, political or civic, becoming frantic about possible requirements and prohibitions of the tentative charter for the consolidated City of Pittsburgh, to embrace the entire county. The amendment to the state constitution permitting the change provides ample safeguards to limit the scope of the instrument and to protect all of the civil divisions of the county in their rights.

The people of the communities affected, by their decisive vote, said they wanted the charter and the people of the state, by their votes, gave them the necessary assent to wipe out boundary lines, in some senses and not in others, and become one great city. Naturally, there should be free discussion of the matter, but bickering, such as is becoming evident, is neither seemly nor necessary.

The Metropolitan Plan Commission, for a number of weeks, has been receiving suggestions as to what the charter should contain. It has heard a number of civic groups as well as representatives of various civil divisions and is now preparing to refine and sublimate the material before it into a working document to represent the ideals of the people as a whole.

The politicians have chosen to ignore the work of the Commission. Public announcement that changing of certain offices from elective to appointive classification was contemplated did not bring one protest from any officeholder, as far as the public has been informed. Matters that might affect the power of political leaders are not known to have elicited any comment from them before the commission.

The implication is that they regard the peoples' effort at charter making as something of a joke. "Oh, let the children go ahead and play! We'll attend to the charter in the Legislature," likely is the way the political boss has commented on the matter.

The people desire that this matter be all threshed out now. They don't want any worthy interest ignored and they do not want any unworthy interest to attempt to spike their guns or hamstring their creation. Just now the Metropolitan Commission represents the people—all of the people, including governments, individuals and politicians. We have tacitly permitted it to become our representative and it is in its deliberations that all phases of the proposed charter should be discussed.

It is likely that the charter emanating from the Metropolitan Commission will look far from perfect to many eyes. The best way to make it as nearly perfect as possible is for all interests, especially those of the county, city and borough governments, to state their views in advance. It is only through discussion and reasonable adjustment of various factors and in making theories compatible with facts that the best interests of all may be served.

Now that the charter is being prepared for presentation in the Legislature February 15, it is said, there are political rumblings. There is even talk of postponing action until the General Assembly of 1931, to give the politicians more chance to get in their fine work.

The people don't want any intrigues—they want a charter and they desire that it be granted by the present session. If the charter, as it comes from the commission, does not meet with public approval, the Legislature will hear about it very quickly, but Allegheny County members are warned not to mistake political squawks for the voice of the people. The demand of the people of this county, not the orders of any political machine interest, should be the guide of the Legislature.

Again—let us thresh out the matter of a charter right here at home, not in bickering and contention, but in reason and equity—so that we will be ready to tell the Legislature it is just what we want.

Morrow's Consent to Keep Post Good News

Our President-elect is certainly to be congratulated that Dwight W. Morrow, of New Jersey, has consented to continue his invaluable service as ambassador to Mexico for at least another year.

This is as good news for Mexico as it is for the United States and will be as welcome across the Rio Grande as here.

During the year that has elapsed since President Coolidge sent Mr. Morrow to Mexico City the relations between this country and Mexico have undergone a complete change. Suspicion has given way to confidence, mutual distrust has been supplanted by mutual respect.

As a result of the efforts of Ambassador Morrow and the cordial response they have evoked from Mexico, President Coolidge was enabled to report to Congress in his valedictory address that our relations with the Mexican people today are on "a more satisfactory basis than at any time since their revolution."

And in this auspicious atmosphere frank and friendly negotiations begun by Ambassador Morrow with President Calles are continuing with President Portes Gil. Several vital questions are within sight of a settlement. Conversations concerning other questions no less vital promise to develop soon into no less successful negotiations.

These are the circumstances under which a change in our mission to Mexico at this time might undo all the good work that today stands to the credit of Ambassador Morrow.

That is why the common sense of the situation argues convincingly against withdrawing Ambassador Morrow even to make him Secretary of State or Secretary of War.

It is not surprising that his excellent service at Mexico City should have created a widespread public sentiment in favor of his appointment to the cabinet. Nor is it surprising that Ambassador Morrow should have preferred the privilege of finishing the delicate and difficult mission which he has discharged to date with such diligence and distinction. There will be time enough for the Hoover administration to take advantage of Mr. Morrow's qualifications for service in the cabinet after the work he has so successfully begun at Mexico City has been completed.

And what will be a temporary loss for the Hoover cabinet is sure to prove a permanent gain both to Mexico and the United States.

By prevailing upon Mr. Morrow to retain his ambassadorship for the time being, President-elect Hoover has wisely followed the advice of Abraham Lincoln not to swap horses in the middle of the stream.

Fools, Money and Monarchies

By Herbert Kaufman

So credit revolution with another score, as one more deuce-spot succeeds in topping a king, and the Ameer of Afghanistan follows his brother and predecessor into exile.

History has never before gazed on so many ex-ing monarchs.

The Royal Down-and-Out Club now includes previously reigning houses of Germany, Austria, Russia, China, Persia, Egypt, Turkey, Portugal, Greece and Montenegro, not to mention the two members from Kabul.

Alexander of Jugo-Slavia has yet to prove he didn't bite off more than he can chew. And, if rumors are accurate, the Queen of Rumania is monkeying with a fire that may burn the palace over her family's head.

Boris of Bulgaria hasn't sufficient income to support a wife in the style to which court tradition is accustomed. And the Mpret of Albania, reputedly, can't squeeze an extra bathroom or motor car into his allotted budget.

One of the Hohenzollern grandsons has waited an entire year for a needed dinner coat; and almost any princess will be pleased to indorse your soap or cigaret for a modest stipend.

In 1900, the writer who dared to predict that most coats-of-arms might soon be out at elbows would have found his prophecy printed in the comic section.

The twentieth century abolished certainties. Riches and power ceased to be guarantees of indefinite permanence—mighty sovereignties and vast fortunes, alike, became vulnerable to maladministration and competition.

In an age when an Armour can lose $140,000,000 within twelve months, and the strongest entrenched dynasty can be erased overnight, it behooves lesser wealth and position to heed "stop-look-and-listen" signs.

Time was when men might bequeath capital and titles with assurance of reasonable perpetuation. Nowadays, place, property and prestige are wasted on folk who haven't also inherited the qualities which won them.

That's why thrones are passing from the picture and so many who once sat in the lap of luxury are cocking eyes at park benches.

Several thousand recent millionaires—"who thank God that their sons won't be compelled to undergo the work and hardships they endured"—are accordingly warned to put Junior over the same hurdles dad jumped.

Any ass can have, but it takes ability to hold on to a concern, an estate or a realm.

O. O. McINTYRE

PARIS, Jan. 29.—Last night I went completely Bohemian and attended one of those arty affairs in a candle-sputtering studio high up on Montmartre hill. The earnest young American who took me declared it was just a weekly grouping of those tasting the joy of creation.

Most of us stood while a few sprawled on the floor in the cobwebby digness, "feeling the happy hurt of beauty." A billowy lady in a seagreen robe finally billowed in, greeted us and read a paper on the gloom of Dostoevski and—wouldn't you guess it?—the whimsicalities of Barrie.

It was a typical crowd of the Latin quarter—soulful-eyed boys in flowing ties who write odes to a passionate petunia or something, girls who paint egg plants in heroic sizes, also other things that resemble the insides of alarm clocks. I seemed to be the only one without an "urge," but I do wash my neck at times.

These are the pale dreamers who declare work must come first, then borrow and bilk to sit around all day drinking picon and smoking cigarets in front of the Dome and Rotonde. There were smocks of apple green, orange and pale lavender, symbolic of defying those silly taboos—the conventions.

And there was one young man whose throat was wrapped in a pink muffler and stood all evening with an elbow resting on a mantle and holding a blue bottle. He was, I was told in awed whispers, a meditationist, but I feel sure he must have a flair for interior decoration also.

It is easy to laugh at such amusing posings, yet it is often only a passing phase of youth—like melancholy and puppy love. Great painters, sculptors and writers have wasted precious hours in such flapdoodle and awakened later to do real serious and immortal work. Henry Leon Wilson and Booth Tarkington were once young idlers in front of Du Dome.

Yet, leaving the studio gathering at midnight and wandering down through the open square of the Place de Tertre and narrow rue Lepic with their crowds of wine-guzzling and merry-making students from all over the world, it seems a wonder even the slight few among those who come here to "create" actually achieve anything at all.

* * *

And one cannot laugh off the profusion of young American best-selling novelties "dawdling" in Paris for the past 10 years. It has been the germinating ground for what, if not the best, is certainly the most original in literature of the period. There is everything in Paris, aside from its leisurely manner, to win one from work, but just the same there has arisen such promising writers as Ernest Hemingway, Glenway Wescott, Stephen Vincent Benet, Michael Arlen and Louis Bromfield. Many think Scott Fitzgerald did his best scrivening on this side of the Atlantic. And Arlen wrote "The Green Hat," his best work, here.

* * *

My impression is the greatest impetus for the writer and artist here is vastly more material than spiritual. Living in certain areas is very cheap if one knows the ropes. No one can write easily with the wolf snarling on the doorstep. Another splendid thing is the individualistic effort Paris demands. There is no log rolling Paris group—I must slip in this dig—no Algonquin movement.

* * *

One of the unpleasant features of Paris for the Yank is the attitude of shop keepers. When an American crosses the threshold prices automatically jump. We do not exhibit that spirit toward the French in America. The weak-kneed American papers here make no issue of it, as they should. In fact, once when I dwelt on the painful topic a Paris journal in a spasm of editorial pouting wondered how I would feel should France deny me its hospitality.

* * *

And that is elegant hooey. France's touted hospitality is sheer blah. The American who comes here pays—and dearly—for everything. The fact he is an American makes him a shining mark for French trickery. If bowing, fluttering and cooing as a prelude to doubling prices is hospitality, the French have it. But we like them just the same.

* * *

The argument is advanced this spirit is shown only by tradesmen. Well, whom else does the American meet? Certainly no Frenchman invites an American to his home.

* * *

Stop Press Bulletin: It was reported today a Frenchman somehow got into Sulka's to buy a necktie and they had to send out for an interpreter.

Tales That Are Told

An Also Ran

THE English bookmaker was paying out on the last race of an unfortunate day. He had been hard hit, and he was honest enough to confess he had only $30 in cash to pay liabilities nearer $50.

"The question is," he said, "'ow am I goin' to do it?"

"Pay out in alphabetical order," suggested a stentorion voice. And so it was agreed. He was instantly surrounded by men who declared their names were Anstruther, Anderson, Allison, Abel, and so on, until the money began to go pretty quickly.

"Salmon."

"Salmon," repeated the bookmaker scornfully. "You don't 'ave a chance. If it 'ad been 'Addock you might 'ave been in the first three."

Something Like a Car

A GOVERNMENT representative was sent to place a considerable order with a firm producing a cheap type of motor car.

"Select one where you please," said the head of the firm, "and we'll go for a trial spin. Make your choice."

They went for 20 miles in excellent style. On the return journey, however, the machine jibbed and declined to move another inch. The head of the firm, greatly perturbed, examined the brakes and looked at the supply of gasoline. Everything appeared in order. Finally he lifted the hood of the car.

"Heavens!" he cried, "they've left out the engine!"

Then how was it the car went at first?"

"Sir," was the reply, "the car has been running all this time on its reputation."

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

I RECKON hair resto r and hair grower must be pretty hard for barbers to sell, because of all the jokes that have been cracked about the stuff. Still, jokes never made little automobiles hard to sell, did they?

This barber seen that the next customer was pretty bald on top, and he pulled on rubber gloves when he went to work on him.

"Why, I thought you'd be likely to ask for some of our Sure-as-Shooting Hair Tonic on your scalp."

"And is it so bad as that? Will it eat the skin off your hands?"

"Oh, dear no! But, you see, one of my men used it without wearing rubber gloves, and the hair grew so thick all over his palms that he had to give up barbering. I ain't taking any chances with that stuff!"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

YOUNG CORBETT fought Pete Myers in Dreamland Rink the other night.

Before they fought a minister of the gospel stepped into the arena and asked for silence. Then, while thousands of fight fans stood with bowed heads, he offered a prayer for the soul of Tex Rickard.

Within 10 minutes, that great building roared again with cries of "Kill 'em! Kill 'em!" and the place where the minister had stood was spattered with blood.

There are many who will be profoundly shocked at such a scene. They will protest against it in the name of Christ.

To me, there was something profoundly significant in that scene.

For those few seconds, that great mass of men remembered God and hoped He would be good to Tex.

They could not have analyzed their act—

They could not have told you what sort of God they believed in—

If they had been given time they might have sheepishly denied they believed in any God—

But the fact is that, at the touch of the unexpected summons, they proved that they DID believe in God, and there, before that blood-stained arena, they perpetuated a true act of faith.

They are not many, if any, jumps ahead of the apes when it comes to fundamental decency—

(And that goes for you and me as well as the rest of the gang, buddy).

But always beneath the grossness there is Something fine—

And always behind the falseness there is Something true—

Some little spark that is akin to God—

THE SUN

By Garrett P. Serviss

"A lighted candle placed in an air-tight box will go out for the shortage of oxygen, etc. But how is it the sun does not go out, due to the same conditions?—Ernest A. Koversler, Brooklyn."

THIS is a useful question, because it introduces some things which ought to be universally known, but which seem to be ignored or misunderstood by thousands.

A lighted candle enclosed in an air-tight box goes out, as stated, because the oxygen in the box is soon consumed, so that combustion (burning) can no longer occur. In the same way, the candle would cease to burn from lack of oxygen if it were placed in a vacuum.

Now, the argument in the mind of the writer of the letter is that, since the open space that surrounds the sun is a vacuum, or at least is destitute of air and oxygen, the sun should go out like the candle.

The argument would be good if only the sun were a fire burning in an atmosphere containing oxygen. But the fact is that the sun is not a fire. It is a thousand times hotter than any fire. The process by which its heat is generated and maintained is not that of oxydation by burning. The sun is an enormous globe of matter in the gaseous state, and the inference from the newest investigations is that the temperature near the center of the sun (at a depth of more than 400,000 miles below its surface) must be many millions of degrees!

The English astronomer Eddington calculates that the central temperature of the sun is not less than 40,000,000 degrees, and its central density, notwithstanding its gaseous state, he figures as 28 times that of water. Therefore, the gases composing the central part of the sun are denser than the metal platinum! This great density results from the tremendous pressure arising from the enormous size of the sun, which is 864,000 miles in diameter.

Science walks over rough, untracked ground and makes many stumbles, though it always recovers its feet and goes onward again. A stumble was made in approaching the question, How does the sun get its heat if it is not burning? The answer made at one time was that the heat arose only from the internal pressure just spoken of, on the principle that a squeeze makes heat. But this hypothesis has been abandoned, and at present the favorite idea is that the atoms do it; they develop the heat by liberating stores of internal energy, for every atom is now supposed to be a little giant of amazing energy. No doubt the immense pressure in the sun plays a part, but not in the simple way formerly assumed. The hypothesis is still undergoing development, and in one of its forms, or offshoots, the astonishing suggestion is made that the sun really is using up its substance, not as a burning body does by combustion, but by the transformation of its mass into radiant energy. This is based on the Einsteinian idea that mass is convertible into energy. Thus it is stated that "a loss of M grams of mass corresponds to the liberation of MC ergs," the "erg" being the scientific unit of energy and "C" being the velocity of light, to which the relativity theory ascribes such mysterious properties. It isn't necessary to try to understand this, but only the conclusion drawn from it, that "it is as legitimate to speak of a pound of heat as of a pound of iron" and that "the sun is losing by radiation 4,200,000 tons of heat every second."

So if all this be true the sun, after all, nowithstanding that it is not a fire and is not burning, is consuming itself, for the benefit, shall we say, of its children, the planets. But the sun is rich in unexpended energy. It has enough, say the theorists, to last for thousands of billions of years.

Bible Passages

Wisdom

(Proverbs 8; 15-36)

BY me kings reign, and princes decree justice.

By me princes rule, and nobles, even all the judges of the earth.

I love them that love me; and those that seek me early shall find me.

Riches and honour are with me; yea, durable riches and righteousness.

My fruit is better than gold, yea, than fine gold; and my revenue than choice silver.

That I may cause those that love me to inherit substance; and I will fill their treasures.

The Lord possessed me in the beginning of his way, before his works of old.

I was set up from everlasting, from the beginning, or ever the earth was.

When there were no depths, I was brought forth; when there were no fountains abounding with water.

Before the mountains were settled, before the hills was I brought forth:

When he prepared the heavens, I was there; when he set a compass upon the face of the depth:

When he established the clouds above: when he strengthened the fountains of the deep:

When he gave to the sea his decree, that the waters should not pass his commandment: when he appointed the foundation of the earth:

Then I was by him, as one brought up with him: and I was daily his delight, rejoicing always before him;

Rejoicing in the habitable part of his earth; and my delights were with the sons of men.

Now therefore hearken unto me, O ye children: for blessed are they that keep my ways.

But he that sinneth against me wrongeth his own soul: all they that hate me love death.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

YOU have been disappointed in a friend?

You thought he or she could overlook some of your disagreeable traits and continue to admire you indefinitely.

But the opposite seems to have been the case.

Did you expect too much?

Have you chosen wisely?

You find there is a limit. Have you overstepped the limit?

You have thought that true friendship required one to stand loyal whether you controlled your unpleasant habits or not.

Doubtless your friend is as disappointed in you as you think you are now in the one who is estranged—the one toward whom you should have shown more consideration if you were a true friend.
